Henderson Letter Says Berlin Had Indorsed Parley Program.

French Bid for Peace by Pledging Help to Germany.

Geneva, Oct. 16 (AP).—Arthur Henderson, president of the Disarmament Conference, refused to "accept as valid" today Germany's reasons for leaving that council.

Germany was told this in a note Henderson sent, with the general approval of the conference, to Foreign Minister von Neurath of Germany, replying to a communication Saturday which announced the Reich's withdrawal.

The Henderson reply read:

"I communicated to the general commission your excellency's telegram of the 14th, announcing the decision of the German Government to discontinue participation in the work of the conference for the reduction and limitation of armaments and indicating the reasons for the decision.

Says Berlin Indorsed Plans.

"The German Government took this step at the moment when the bureau had just decided to submit to the general commission a definite program.

"This program, to be completed within a limited period, provided for the realization progressively, in accordance with the resolutions of the conference in which Germany herself concurred, of the reductions of armaments comparable to those contemplated in the draft convention submitted to the general commission.

"This program was provided also with corresponding measures of security for the realization of the rights which the German Government always has placed in the forefront of its demands.

"I regret, therefore, that this grave decision should have been taken by your government for reasons which I am unable to accept as valid."

U. S. Keeps "Hands Off."

A hands-off policy in the political aspects of Germany's disavowal of the disarmament conference was enunciated tonight for the American arms delegation by Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large.

"While there is a possibility of successfully carrying on disarmament negotiations, we shall gladly continue to do our part," he said in a statement to American newspapermen in which he explained his course during the adjournment of the conference to October 26.

"We are not, however, interested in the political element or any purely European aspect of the picture," he maintained.

"We again make it clear that we in no way are politically alligned with any European power. Such unity of purposes as existed has been entirely on world disarmament matters."

Nazi Plot Jails 20 in Austria

Army Scheme to Deliver Garrison to Hitlerites Bared in Vienna.

Vienna, Oct. 16 (AP).—Discovery of an alleged army plot to deliver the Linz garrison to the Nazis and secret circulation of new Socialist orders to be prepared for a general strike climaxed a feverish 24 hours today, which began with nationwide Nazi rioting in universities.

A score of Hitlerites, including First Lieut. Franz Fritsch, of the Austrian army, a former artillery sergeant and a reserve officer were arrested in connection with the reported conspiracy.

An official communique said conspirators had worked out a plan to take the Linz barracks by surprise. Charges of high treason were lodged against the arrested men.

University students in Vienna, Innsbruck and Graz hoisted Nazi flags on buildings, exploded smoke bombs, shouted "Heil Hitler" and sang Nazi songs in sympathy with the German action in withdrawing from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference. Order was restored in Vienna by officers, who used their sabers after finding clubs ineffectual.

Trio Holds Up Hotel Clerk; Obtains $50

Three men early this morning held up the night clerk of the Fairfax Hotel, Massachusetts avenue and Twenty-first street, and escaped with $50 taken from the cash register.

One of the men guarded the hotel entrance, the second one covered the clerk with a gun and the third rifled the cash register.

250 Millions For Cotton Men May Peg Price

Loan Fund Authorized by R. F. C. to Help Dixie Growers.

Capital to finance the Government's loans to cotton producers, ordered by President Roosevelt, was authorized yesterday by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

RFC directors allocated $250,000,000 for the 10-cents-a-pound loan program to be conducted by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The amount was $100,000,000 less than expected. Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman, said "it is not anticipated the entire allocation will be disbursed, as machinery has been provided that will enable banks and other normal channels for lending money on cotton to make these loans."

Price Pegging Seen.

The program is generally interpreted as pegging the price of cotton at 10 cents. In effect, the RFC is placing a guarantee on cotton loans, by which banks and other ordinary lending agencies can advance money with security to planters.

By making loans on cotton in conformance with RFC regulations, banks and other agencies can rediscount the loans with the Commodity Credit Corporation any time before July 1, 1934. The $250,000,000 capital provided by the RFC will enable the Commodity Credit Corporation to rediscount.

Loans at Warehouse.

Cotton loans will be made at the warehouse, and only farmers signing acreage-reduction agreements are eligible. Ten cents will be loaned on low middling grade of ⅞-inch or better of staple, and 8 cents on low middling, with staple shorter than ⅞-inch.

In the President's original announcement concerning the Commodity Credit Corporation, it was stressed that efforts would be made to "employ the normal channels and agencies for lending upon, handling and storing the cotton."

The farm adjustment administration is preparing to distribute options on approximately 2,400,000 bales of cotton given during the emergency reduction campaign this summer, it was announced yesterday.

After release of the options, holders may call them any time up to December 1, provided the price is not below 9½ cents on New York ⅞ middling. The options may be recalled at will after December 1, regardless of price.

Doctors Give Him Year to Live; Jail Claims Half of It!

With only one year to live, Louis Steale, 35, of 2003 A street northeast, must spend half that time in jail.

Recently physicians at Mount Alto Hospital told him he had only 12 more months to live. Steale determined to make the most of those 12 months.

His program included marriage. He and his prospective bride picked last Friday—the thirteenth—as their wedding day.

Thursday night he was given a party by friends. Leaving the party he was arrested near Bladensburg, charged with driving automobile while drunk.

Yesterday he was fined $101 and costs in the Hyattsville police court. He immediately appealed the case, but could not furnish bond.

He must spend six months—half of his allotted days—in jail, awaiting the next term of the Circuit Court.

Jones Heads Unit to Free Bank Assets

New Plan and Set-Up to Gauge Federal Loans by Actual Values.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, took command yesterday of the President's program to free an estimated maximum of a billion dollars of frozen assets in closed banks.

Henry Bruere, brought to Washington as a credit liaison aid to the President, is not to head the newly created liquidating agency, as originally planned by the Treasury, nor is this agency to be separate from the R. F. C., as Treasury authorities had wished.

Instead, as made clear by chairman Jones in a statement yesterday, he will remain the chief figure in the deposit-release policy and his program is, in the main, a perpetuation of the procedure which he has followed from the outset. It calls, however, for a speeding up of appraisals of assets in closed banks.

But instead of having the Government pay out immediately half of the frozen deposits in banks closed since January 1, as the Treasury had intended, the Jones plan calls for releasing only as much money as "the assets of such institutions will justify."

To Scan Actual Assets.

"While every effort will be made to establish the full value of closed bank assets," Mr. Jones announced, "the exact amount that can be distributed will be governed by the appraisal of the actual assets of each closed bank."

C. B. Merriam, who heads the new Deposit Liquidation Board, announced a press conference yesterday forenoon to explain the procedure. Chairman Jones, however, held the press conference and issued the following statement:

"The first meeting of the Deposit Liquidation Board was held this morning to consider the program assigned to it by the President. It will, through the existing agencies of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the new appraisal boards suggested by the President, proceed at once to bring about the release of deposits frozen in closed banks wherever possible.

Many Loans Already.

"The agencies of the Government represented on the Deposit Liquidation Board already have in their hands a great deal of the information which will be required for the task. The Construction Finance Corporation previously has made many loans to closed banks for liquidating purposes. It is not anticipated, therefore, that many new problems will arise in connection with the intensive effort which will now be made to get into the hands of closed bank depositors every dollar which the assets of such institutions will justify.

"The machinery of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Treasury Department, the Comptroller of the Currency, the Deposit Guarantee Commission and every other related agency of the Government is ready to proceed with all possible dispatch. Given the cooperation of depositors and State banking authorities, there appears to be no reason why there should be any reason for undue delay.

"While every effort will be made to establish the full value of closed bank assets, the exact amount that

3 Injured When Cars Hit Head-On

Two D. C. Residents and Roseville Man Hurt.

Herbert F. Wright, of 1000 M street northwest, driver of one of the cars, received a fractured arm and severe cuts and bruises, and Mrs. L. F. Mackay, a passenger, bruises and lacerations. Wright was driving the car of Lieut. Comdr. Arthur Freeman, U. S. N., 1300 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Thurman C. Wine, of Roseville, Va., was cut and bruised. All were treated by a physician. Three passengers in the Wine car escaped injury.

Many Siam Troops Die Fighting Rebels

Insurgents Reported in Retreat After Battle.

Bangkok, Siam, Oct. 16 (AP).—Many government troops and rebels were killed and injured tonight as severe fighting continued on the outskirts of the capital.

The government claimed rebels were retreating after suffering heavy losses.

Several planes belonging to both sides crashed.

Pecora Acts To Subpena Stock Books

1,375 Brokers of New York Exchange Face Seizures Today.

Move Follows Refusal by Governors' Board to Aid Inquiry.

New York Stock Exchange officials yesterday defied Senate stock market investigators by refusing to circulate to exchange members a questionnaire designed to obtain details of pool and other trading accounts during the past four years.

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate Banking Committee, announced the exchange's action and said he would begin today to issue subpenas for books and records of the 1,375 members of the exchange.

The devleopment came on the eve of the committee's inquiry into the affairs of the Chase Securities Corporation, hearings on which are scheduled to open at 10 p. m. today in the Senate caucus room. Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank, may take the stand.

Market Hearings in Month.

Pecora made clear that the last-minute development in stock market inquiry will in no way interfere with the Chase hearings. Hearings on market operations, ranging from the bear market of 1929 to the so-called bull market of 1933, will not get underway before late November, he indicated.

The questionnaires to brokers was predicated on the cost of the survey, which the exchange's board of governors estimated would run into millions of dollars, Pecora said.

From other sources, he said, he had information that the operation would cost little or nothing, and require only two or three weeks. He warned that the committee process is bound to be much more expensive and require more time and trouble from all concerned.

"We are determined to get this information," he said. "If we can't get it by questionnaires, our only recourse are subpenas."

Informed by Phone.

Pecora reached this decision following telephone conversations with committee investigators in New York. For several days they have been negotiating with Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, and Roland Redmond, of the law firm of Carter, Ladyard & Milburn, counsel for the exchange.

Yesterday they received a letter in which the board of governors stated it had no authority to call on members to fill out the questionnaire. The text of the letter was not made public.

Pecora said he was "inclined to doubt" that many members of the exchange even saw the questionnaire.

Duplications Charged.

Associated Press dispatches from New York quoted Whitney as saying Pecora's questionnaire in many instances would require members to furnish information already supplied to the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Whitney said it seemed "grossly unfair" to compel members to "furnish the same information, almost duplicate in certain aspects, to two departments of the Government." At the same time, he protested the "huge expenditure" involved.

He insisted the exchange is in "no

$2,500,000 Estate Owner Vanishes

Aged Woman Disappears as Mind Test Nears.

Sao Paulo, Brazil, Oct. 16 (AP).—Senhora Josina do Amaral, aged owner of a $2,500,000 estate, disappeared today from a hospital shortly before she was to appear in court for a competency hearing.

Senhora do Amaral had been under hospital treatment for several days, since police rescued her from a house in Rio de Janeiro, where they found her locked in a closet, and arrested her son, Mario.

Previously she had been missing for a year and relatives had told the police they feared for her life.

Treasury Siren Screams 'Thief' And Even Officials Can't Get In

(Associated Press.)

Lewis Douglas, director of the Budget, stood outside the barred door of one Treasury entrance; Assistant Secretary Stephen B. Gibbons stood inside another.

Douglas, returning from lunch, was anxious to get back to his desk; Gibbons had only a few minutes in which to catch an airplane for New York.

But the Treasury guards paid no attention to their pleas for entrance and exit. Orders were orders. A few minutes earlier the siren of the Treasury's burglar alarm system had screeched through the corridors. No one was to be admitted or allowed to leave the building until the all-well signal, two short blasts, was heard.

It came 8 or 10 minutes after the original alarm, for which a short circuit in a subbasement vault was blamed.

Chief Moran of the Secret Service ruled a few minutes later that the Secretary, the Undersecretary, the Assistant Secretaries and Douglas were to be excepted from this order in future alarms.

Machado Pays Visit Secretly With Kin

Montreal, Oct. 16 (AP).—Gerardo Machado, former Cuban president, who left a hotel here Friday without revealing his destination, returned here today.

It was learned he had been on a motor trip to Philadelphia, where he visited his family.

State Bans Shipments Of Wheat

North Dakota Governor Issues Edict to End Plunging Prices.

Calls Farmer "Forgotten Man of NRA;" Fears Ruin for Crops.

Bismarck, N. Dak., Oct. 16 (AP). Gov. William Langer late today signed a proclamation prohibiting shipment of wheat from North Dakota, effective at midnight Wednesday and continuing indefinitely. National guardsmen will be employed if necessary, the governor indicated, to enforce the edict.

The chief executive of the Nation's leading wheat producing State acted in an effort to "restore to our farmers a buying power with which to maintain a livelihood, and to stimulate commerce and trade among our people."

Governor Signs Order.

His proclamation declared prices paid farmers for wheat, "result in an unwarranted drain of the natural resources of our State." The proclamation was signed after a series of conferences.

Gov. Langer declared "it is hardly possible that the embargo alone can raise the world grain markets."

He asserted his action "is a legal and legitimate manner in which to call the plight of the Northwest to the attention of the Nation."

Wheat prices dipped farther today.

"Labor, industry and the professions have their opportunity to prosper under the national recovery act," the governor said. "The farmer, with only this year's crop to sell until another year has passed, appears as the 'forgotten man' of the NRA."

Empowered by Law.

Adjt. Gen. Earle Sarles will be in charge of enforcement, the governor said. Out-of-town shipments of North Dakota Amber Durum and Hard Spring wheat will be prohibited indefinitely.

A law passed early this year empowers the governor to proclaim an embargo on any or all of North Dakota agricultural products whenever prices fall below production costs, or so low as to virtually confiscate the output. The use of National Guardsmen to make the ban effective is authorized.

The governor said his decision came "after a full study of the situation and after appeals to the national administration for relief."

He said declines in wheat prices "mean ruin to many of our people if the prices in other lines continue to advance."

Maryland Nabs Attack Suspect

Man Taken to Baltimore as Crowd Gathers; Woman, 82, Victim.

Snow Hill, Md., Oct. 16 (AP). George Armwood, Negro, sought as the person who was alleged to have attacked Mrs. Mary Denston, near Princess Anne early today, was captured by State police at Beaver Dam, near here, tonight.

Police immediately started for Baltimore with the Negro because of the threatening attitude of the people of the southern part of the Eastern Shore. A large crowd had gathered here.

The three counties of the section had been combed throughout the day by posses of more than 500 citizens and county officers, augmented by State police, after Mrs. Denston reported to Sheriff Luther Daugherty, of Somerset County, she had been grabbed by a Negro and her clothes ripped off before her cries attracted a State road employe nearby.

The State police did not have Mrs. Denston, 82-year-old wife of a Somerset County farmer, to identify him, although she told officers earlier in the day she would recognize her assailant "among a thousand."

NRA Fixes Oil Prices As Ickes Scores Abuses; Higher Schedules Set

Secretary Views Warily Mrs. Greenway's Gift, But Accepts It.

Eve and an apple are symbolic to Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

But this slight tale, current about town yesterday, takes its initial cue from Byron's:

"All human history attests
"That happiness for man—the hungry sinner!—
Since Eve ate apples, much depends on dinner."

That idea animated Mrs. Isabella S. Greenway, close friend of the Roosevelts, and newly elected Representative from Arizona, when she paid a first timorous visit to the office of Secretary Ickes. His secretary had fixed the luncheon hour for the appointment. Mrs. Greenway was sure she would find a hungry, and hence, unsympathetic secretary.

Being hungry herself, she paused on the way to his office, fortified herself with a glass of milk and a couple of apples. She still had an apple left when she was ushered into the Ickes office.

She began warily by saying she had come merely to pay her respects.

"But aren't you interested in these irrigation projects for your State?" he asked.

"Of course," replied the new Congresswoman. "But I thought I'd wait till you'd had some lunch."

"I don't eat lunch," the Secretary remarked, "Too busy."

"Have an apple!" suggested Mrs. Greenway.

The Secretary eyed the apple and the proffering Eve.

"Is this Biblical?" he demanded.

He took the apple.

U. S. Moves For Amnesty In Dry Cases

Action Is Hinted by Justice Officials; Records Would Govern Leniency.

Presidential amnesty for prisoners convicted under the dry law was suggested yesterday in Department of Justice quarters as one of the possible results of repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Although the President is known to favor in general severe treatment of liquor-law violators, it was pointed out he believes in leniency toward offenders sentenced in small cases.

To preclude any possible abuse of the administration's policy of leniency, the amnesty would be well fortified with limitations.

Records Would Govern.

Racketeers, gangsters and other prisoners with bad records would be excluded from general amnesty. Offenders who, in addition to dry-law violations, are serving time for convictions under any other law also would be excluded. This would include those dry-law violators who also have charges against them under the internal revenue laws and interstate commerce regulations.

Even though the President does not elect to declare an amnesty, the Department of Justice will adopt a general policy of leniency with prisoners and also with offenders whose cases are pending and due to be heard after repeal, which it is expected will be effective December 5 when the thirty-sixth State ratifies the twenty-first amendment.

An indication of the new softened policy of the administration came from St. Louis yesterday when Heber Nations was freed of liquor conspiracy charges by a special order from Attorney General Cummings.

Up to Local Officials.

In all liquor violation cases the Department of Justice will decide the case on the recommendations of the local district attorneys and judges. It will follow all recommendations for leniency and leave it to the local officials to determine when a prisoner's record is bad enough to warrant harshness or whether he has any gangster or racketeer connection.

Legal experts of the Department of Justice point out that under section 13 of the Revised Statutes the department has authority to prosecute liquor law violators even after the prohibition amendment has lation occurred before December 5. been repealed, providing the vio-

Justice Section Complete.

Department of Justice experts have been having daily conferences with the representatives of the State Department and the Treasury, working out the details of a report to be given the President, on which he will base his recommendations to Congress.

After studying this report the President is expected to decide whether he will declare an amnesty or will leave the whole question of imprisonment and prosecution to the Department of Justice.

As legal experts wrestle with problems repeal will entail, opinion in the Department of Justice seems to be veering toward a bone-dry District of Columbia until Congress can enact suitable District liquor legislation.

Poll Reveals Congress Aid In Cut Fight

A telegraphic survey of outstanding members of the Senate and House indicates overwhelming sentiment favoring full restoration of the 15 per cent pay cut for Federal workers, E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, said last night.

"Most of the Senators and Representatives have a very favorable attitude," Mr. Babcock said. "The ball is rolling fast in the right direction."

Telegrams advocating restoration were received yesterday by Babcock from Senator Robert D. Carey (Republican), Wyoming, and Representatives William J. Granfield (Democrat), Massachusetts, members of the House Appropriations Committee, and James H. Sinclair (Republican), North Dakota.

"Have always felt it was inconsistent to reduce salaries of Government employes and at the same time demand wage increases in private industries," Senator Carey wired.

Opposition was voiced in a reply from Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas.

"It is my firm belief," Blanton wired, "that Government salaries have been entirely too high and out of all proportion to salaries received for like work in private positions."

Babcock said Congress would be asked to act when it convenes in January, regardless of the results of a Federal cost-of-living index now being compiled. He declared "the survey lags behind because prices are constantly going up."

Revolution Rumored In Portuguese Crisis

Lisbon (Tuesday), Oct. 17 (AP).—Rumors of a revolution in Portugal were current today, rising from a sudden ministerial crisis due to Premier Salazar's establishment of trade corporations under government control.

Salazar discussed the government's position lengthily yesterday with President Carmona, who also interviewed army and navy commanders. An emergency meeting of the cabinet was called for 4 p. m. today.

Honest Stranger Pays for Shoes He Got 2 Years Ago

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 16 (Spl.). On a bitter cold day two years ago a shabby stranger, with worn-out shoes, went into a store at Parsons and asked L. E. Gregg, salesman, if he would trust him for a pair of shoes.

The man explained he would pay for the shoes when he got a job. Gregg thought the man looked honest. He gave him the shoes and told him to pay for them when he could. Then he forgot about it.

This week Gregg got a letter from the stranger inclosing a money order and stating he had at last found a job in Detroit.

Four Cents Is Minimum Profit Allowed to Dealers.

Cost of Crude Raised; Boost in Gasoline Prices Seen.

Inaugurating NRA's first major price-fixing experiment, Secretary Ickes, acting as oil administrator, last night fixed minimum prices for the giant oil industry, effective December 1.

Subject to change, the administrator set $1.11 as the minimum price per barrel for midcontinent 36 gravity crude, the major oil class.

Secretary Ickes, in following recommendations of the oil planning and coordination committee, found "competitive abuses have created an emergency" making price-fixing necessary. His order established a complicated schedule of prices affecting crude oil and its products, including gasoline.

Gas Price Raise Seen.

Some oil quarters were quoted as believing the schedule would force the retail price of gasoline up 1 or 2 cents.

Retail dealers are allowed a minimum profit of 4 cents per gallon on medium grade gasoline by the order.

The basic price of $1.11 for 36 gravity midcontinent crude is 11 cents better than the present price at Oklahoma City. On the basis of $1.11 crude, the refinery price of medium gasoline would approximate 6 cents a gallon, as compared to the present price of 4¼ to 4⅓ cents a gallon.

Differentials were established by the order for various grades of crude ranging up and down according to quality, with base at $2.15 for Pennsylvania Eureka.

Curb Boosts Prices.

Prices of base grades have been rising lately as the result of Federal regulation and curtailment of the flow of oil to market. The bitterly contested expedient of price-fixing was resorted to by the administrator because of threats to the "stability of the interstate market."

Ickes ordered the price schedule subject to change before December 1 should the oil board deem changes advisible after hearings. Objections to the schedule may be filed with the petroleum advisory board.

Differentials were established to cover the wholesale field to govern both filling station prices and prices at refineries. For the Eastern Seaboard area, in which distribution Washington is classed, the minimum price for medium gasoline wholesale, was put at 7¼ cents for terminal or barge deliveries and 7⅛ cents for tank car deliveries.

The midcontinent area price was set at 6½ cents a gallon, medium grade, at refinery. The Pacific Coast was allowed 7⅛ cents for tanker gasoline and 7¾ cents tank car.

Taxes Additional.

Net prices to consumers will be determined by the spreads allowed between wholesale and retail, with taxes additional. The spread on the lowest grade gasoline was fixed in the schedule at not less than 5½ cents, of which 3 cents must

Refund Bonds Quickly Taken

Half Billion Treasury Issue Is Oversubscribed at Once by Public.

The $500,000,000 cash portion of the Treasury's new 10-12-year 3¼ per cent bond issue, intended in part as a refunding operation in connection with the call for approximately one-third of the Fourth Liberty Loan, has been oversubscribed, according to reports from Federal Reserve banks last night.

Treasury officials expressed gratification and indicated the books on the new issue, which surprised financial circles last week, will be closed soon.

In addition to the offering of $500,000,000 of the new issue for cash, the Treasury made the new bonds available for holders of Fourth Liberty Loan [illegible] latter, in the amou[illegible] 000, were called [illegible] tirement April 15, [illegible] bonds were sold by [illegible] 101½.

Allies Declare German Arms Claims Invalid

Henderson Reply Asserts Berlin Had Approved Parley Program.

Henderson Voices Hope.

Arthur Henderson, the chairman, expressed the hope the gathering would continue steadfastly until the first stage in arms reductions is achieved, although Germany last Saturday announced her withdrawal from both the parley and the League of Nations.

Some quarters expressed hopes for an arms agreement based on American cooperation and said that two problems were posed by Germany's retractions—getting Germany back into the negotiations or drafting an arms convention without delegates of the Reich.

"Whether or not conditions are favorable to continue the present disarmament effort is now a question for Europe and not the United States to decide," said Mr. Davis.

"During the week there will be consultations between the capitals of Europe. We do not wish to take an active part in these as the implications are purely political. The principles set forth last May by the President in his message to the heads of States remain the policy of the United States."

The belief was expressed here that a real menace to peace exists if Germany refrains from participating in organized peace processes in Europe—the arms parley and the League of Nations.

The United States doctrine, as explained here, is that while America does not intend to be drawn into any European war she fully realizes she would suffer the consequences of such a conflict.

Hence, according to this view, the United States has a vital interest in preventing fresh trouble.

Some Americans in Geneva professed to think that the German bomb eventually may prove helpful, basing their assumption apparently on the doctrine that progress is achieved through crises.

They said they would like to see Germany freed from obligations of the treaty of Versailles, but think the only way is through a disarmament conference to supplant the Versailles pact.

They added that they want a real disarmament among heavily armed nations and that they agreed with Mr. Henderson's reply to Von Neurath that statesmen already have a plan for a progressive "equality of rights" which the Germans demand.

Russia Protests Reply.

Hungary, Soviet Russia, Poland and Turkey protested against Henderson's reply to von Neurath, but Henderson swept all objections aside, saying that all delegates would know what was going on during the recess.

"I expected to finish the disarmament work by Christmas, but now I expect to be here until the anniversary of the opening of the conference next February," Henderson said.

To the International Peace Association, most of whose members are Americans, he declared:

"My message is that the struggle for disarmament must go on, and that the covenant of the League of Nations shall not be treated as a scrap of paper.

"We will not break faith with the dead who fell that there should be no more war.

"Every delay or defeat must call forth fresh reserves of stubborn and relentless energy. The flower of one generation was slain in the great war, and it is our duty to give the world peace in our time."

Soviet Protest Dismissed.

Supported by Poland and Turkey, the Soviet representative argued before the council earlier in the day that Russia had not been consulted or informed regarding the decision to adjourn the conference, reached in a special four-power meeting, but Mr. Henderson asked with a smile if there were any other objections and then declared the adjournment motion carried.

Lord Robert Cecil headed the great peace delegation which called on the President earlier in the day.

"It cost 10,000,000 dead and 20,000,000 wounded to bring the league into being," Mr. Henderson told them.

Calls League Peace Hope.

He called the league the world's collective peace organization and asserted that "no government can be trusted to remain loyal to the cause of peace if it flouts the collective system to which the world is now pledged.

"A country which rejects that system, whatever its intentions, is inevitably encouraging its citizens to regard war as legitimate and inevitable," he continued.

Messages from Prime Minister MacDonald and Secretary Hull were read. The British leader said a nation refusing to contribute to the restoration would bear a heavy responsibility in the eyes of the world.

French Bid for Peace.

A French spokesman told the Associated Press that the real menace of the existing situation lay in that Germany abandoned the system of peace on which all the hopes of Europe were pinned.

France, he added, extends the hand of friendship to Germany and seeks gradually to restore the Reich to the position to which she is entitled.

The Henderson telegram to Von Neurath was regarded in some circles as another way of saying that there is no last word between friends.

There was some speculation as to whether Chancellor Hitler will make a like amicable gesture. Italian delegates were quoted as saying they hope and think he will.

Hitler alone, these representatives said, can save the world from dire uncertainty and perhaps tragedy by expressing a willingness to reopen negotiations through the chancelleries.

Women Urged To Tell Aims Of Chest Drive

Hogan Says They Make Best Missionaries for Charities.

Women make the best missionaries for such causes as the impending Community Chest drive, declared Frank J. Hogan, general chairman, at a meeting of the Woman's Crusade, advance guard of the campaign, in the Willard Hotel yesterday afternoon.

The meeting was attended by the executive committee of the Woman's Crusade, headed by Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, and leaders of women's organizations.

Hogan urged the women to acquaint themselves fully with the work of the 62 agencies which will be aided by the Community Chest this year and to spread this knowledge among residents.

Speakers included Newbold Noyes, general chairman of last year's campaign; Mrs. Patterson, who presided; Miss Rose Schneiderman, national president of the Woman's Trade Union League; Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General, and Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, vice chairman of the Washington Woman's Crusade.

Hogan will make the principal address at the third speakers' unit supper meeting at the Y. M. C. A. tonight.

The meeting will bring together about 100 speakers.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the principal speaker at a mass meeting to be held under the auspices of the Woman's Crusade November 9.

way seeking or wishing" to delay the investigation.

Dispatches also disclosed that Redmond, in a letter to the board of governors, conceded if had the power to obtain information by questionnaire on practices "improperly" affecting the market. He said the power has frequently been used.

"These instances," he wrote, "furnish no precedent for the present case. The information sought by the proposed questionnaire has no direct bearing on market practices or on the conduct of the members of the exchange. On the contrary, it consists primarily of what might be described as general statistics."

He disclosed the exchange proper was willing to fill out that portion of the questionnaire dealing with its own activities. This information, he said, is the least essential of that sought by the committee.

Counsel for the Board of Governors argues that if members filled out the questionnaire this act might waive their right to object to the relevancy of information sought, Pecora said.

Similar questionnaires had been sent to stock exchanges throughout the country, but up to last night there had been no refusal to comply with the committee's request.

Pecora declined to disclose the nature of evidence sought from the powerful Chase Securities Corporation.

He said it is improbable that Dillon, Read & Co., most recent object of the committee's inquiry, will again be called to the Capital. Some committee members had requested that the New York banking firm's part in the Dodge Motor Co. and National Cash Register transactions be outlined before the committee.

Boycott Is Urged As Reply to Hitler

Magazine Editor Terms Hitler Insincere.

Oberlin, Ohio, Oct. 16 (AP).—Oswald Garrison Villard, contributing editor of the Nation, magazine of opinion, today told the Oberlin College faculty a world boycott of German goods should be called to "stem the growing dangers of Hitlerism."

"When Hitler says Germany is interested in preserving world peace, don't believe him," Villard asserted. "His pretext for Nazi ruthlessness, to save Europe from Communism, is nonsense. I heartily approve an immediate economic boycott of Germany."

He added that the German chancellor was a direct challenge to Anglo-Saxon institutions and ideals.

go to the retailer, and on medium gasoline the minimum spread is set at not less than 6½ cents, of which 4 cents per gallon must go to the retailer.

Special differentials were provided for Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Utah, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Nevada, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands.

Eastern Prices Suggested.

The price schedule contained the recommendation that prices for the Eastern fields be allowed to seek a competitive level during the test period, but it also contained recommended price bases for Eastern crudes. The highest minimum price was established for the Bradford-Alleghany, Pa., oil district, with a price of $2.50.

Principal petroleum products affected by the order are gasoline, kerosene, engine distillate, fuel oil and bunker fuel.

Price-fixing by the administrator on recommendation of the administrative oil board was authorized in the oil industry code, but up to now Ickes has sought every means of avoiding it. Continued price difficulties finally brought many opponents of price-fixing around to the belief that action was necessary if the industry was to be rehabilitated.

Robinson Sees Serious Crisis In Berlin Move

Time Now for Caution and Firmness by U. S., Says Senator.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 16 (AP).—Senator Joe T. Robinson said today "a crisis has been reached which threatens the success of the cause of disarmament," as a result of Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference and the League of Nations.

"Indeed, many fear the abrupt action by Chancellor Hitler may result in very serious consequences relating to the peace of Europe," said the Senate Democratic floor leader, who has just returned from a European trip.

"The United States is exerting and will exert her good offices," his statement continued. "Our people have had enough of war and in my opinion will look with horror on events which threaten a clash between two of the great peoples in Europe.

"This is a time for the rule of wise men. Mad men can not be expected to demonstrate patience and prudence touching causes of great concern. It is unpardonable on the part of any one charged with the responsibility of leadership to fan the flames of hatred and animosity. I am hopeful that the leadership in Germany may be induced to modify its resolution since the chancellor's course adds to difficulties already very great and perplexing."

"It is not often that leaders possessing the temperament which Chancellor Hitler has exemplified seek or accept prudent counsel, and this fact makes necessary exemplification of caution well-seasoned with firmness when such situations as that referred to arise."

U. S. Will Stay Aloof in Nazi Arms Tangle

Decision on Further Talk Up to Europe; Davis May Leave.

Resuming the role of "observer," the United States last night determined to let Europe decide for itself whether conditions are favorable at this time for continuing world disarmament negotiations.

To this end, the United States will take no active part in negotiations between the European governments this week, it was learned last night.

Disavowing any political alignments directly or indirectly growing out of the Geneva situation, this Government will remain aloof from conversations between the capitals which it regards as having a political inference.

The United States delegates went to Geneva purely for disarmament purposes, observers pointed out. If there is any possibility of continuing disarmament discussions, they stand ready to help. But Europe, not the United States, must make the decision.

Conference in Recess.

This, briefly, was this Government's position, authoritatively expressed here, as the World Disarmament Conference adjourned yesterday until October 26.

Every effort is being made here to dissipate the impression this Government is aligned politically with European powers represented at Geneva.

On the contrary, the United States is represented as altogether disinterested in political factors at stake, or in purely European angles of the situation.

Where any union of purpose has been apparent, it has existed entirely on world disarmament questions, it was pointed out.

Davis May Leave.

To emphasize this political divorcement from the European problem, it is probable Norman H. Davis, United States representative at the conference, may leave Geneva within the next few days, it was learned.

While officials here continued to view the situation with concern, all comment was withheld at the State Department, where authorities decided to follow the policy of not talking now, a policy being observed by all of the foreign ministries.

Speculation here turned on whether the conceded seriousness of the situation may cause Secretary of State Hull to postpone his projected visit to Montevideo.

Three-Power Pact Exploded.

Information available here last night exploded recent reports of an Anglo-Franco-American front against Germany, circulated when Germany withdrew from Geneva on the eve of disarmament proposals indorsed alike by England, France and the United States.

The American stand for disarmament is unaltered and no new instructions have been cabled to Davis, it was stated here in high official quarter.

As evidence of this, the State Department made public a letter from Davis to Lord Cecil of England, reaffirming the position taken in a previous communication.

"While the action of Germany may alter the situation and make the task more difficult, a solution of the disarmament problem is, in my opinion, of such vital importance that every effort should still be made to achieve it," Davis wrote.

Expresses "Sympathetic Interest."

Before Germany had withdrawn from the conference, Davis had conveyed to Lord Cecil in an earlier communication the "sympathetic interest" of Secretary Hull and President Roosevelt in a peace demonstration held last Sunday.

The demonstration was viewed by the President as "a solemn reminder to the representatives of the nations of the world that they must not allow the conference to fail," Davis said.

"Fortified with the knowledge that world opinion is backing them in their difficult task, they should redouble their efforts to overcome the obstacles which are still blocking their path and bring about the constructive achievement which mankind confidently awaits," the letter to Lord Cecil read.

Daladier to Tell Chamber of Deputies Course in Geneva Crisis.

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP).—Premier Edouard Daladier is expected to answer Chancellor Hitler tomorrow in the French Chamber of Deputies and tell what course France will take in the present situation.

Tonight, on the eve of the reopening of congress, the premier maneuvered to prevent isolation in the face of a new, defiant Germany.

He was trying, through Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour, who is in Geneva, to keep the United States and England lined up with France in whatever course is taken eventually in the disarmament muddle.

Refuse to Be Isolated.

M. Daladier's attitude was that France will refuse to be isolated through direct Franco-German negotiations. He, however, was said to desire a general agreement of the powers through the league, which would guarantee the rights, interests and security of all peoples.

The German problem tonight exceeded in public interest the financial program, including balancing of the budget, a sound franc basis and lowering living costs, on which the premier will stake the life of his government in the chamber.

He is reinforced, however, in his domestic fight by parliamentary concern over Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference.

A "rally around the flag" atmosphere has developed in the last 48 hours. Many circles believed this would enable M. Daladier to push through his budget-balancing and national works program.

France Shows Weakness.

Some quarters expected Daladier's request for a brief debate only on the various points of his program would lead to a vote without difficulty.

The importance of a balanced budget was emphasized in the early weakness today of the French franc resulting from the Franco-German tension. The franc later strengthened.

The foreign office, meanwhile, announced it supported the stand of American Ambassador Norman H. Davis against adjournment of the arms parley.

Officially it was said the best way out of a "serious situation" might be to complete an arms convention despite the German withdrawal, along the lines already proposed.

A four-power Western European peace pact was given a death blow by the German renunciation of the league, with which the pact was indissolubly tied, according to French officials.

Sympathy With Germany.

Vienna, Oct. 16 (AP).—While Austrian University students engaged in violent demonstrations of sympathy with Germany today many expressions of exultation were heard in official circles.

Nazi Minister Declares Reich To Keep Arms

Von Neurath Warns Agains "Second Disarmament," Hits Paris, London.

Berlin, Oct. 16 (AP).—Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath told the World's Press, in effect, today that "there must not be a second disarmament of Germany."

In a half-hour interview, he explained Chancellor Hitler's appeal of Saturday night regarding Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the World Disarmament Conference.

Baron von Neurath sought to fix the responsibility for the "world's tangle" upon England and France and, at the same time, paid tribute to American and Italian arms delegates for their efforts to mediate.

Equality Big Issue.

The question of Germany's equality, which led to the decisions to resign, the foreign minister declared was the central issue in world politics.

This equality, he demonstrated by an array of historical data, has consistently been denied the Reich.

He challenged powers represented at the Geneva conference to agree on a mutual disarmament; claimed the British foreign office had misrepresented Germany's attitude to Washington, and pledged anew that Germany would assist in any project to rid the world of the arms burden.

"The cardinal question around which the entire politics of the present day turns," he maintained, "and concerning which the unequivocal answer must be given, is:

"Shall the division of nations into victors and vanquished be eternalized, or is, at last, the principle to receive recognition that all States are members with equal rights in the community of nations.

"Recognition Decisive."

"The recognition and realization of this principle is decisive for every form of international cooperation. * * *

"The more evident the political opposition to the execution of general disarmament became, the more earnestly did Germany warn the League of Nations' fate was sealed if it failed to fulfill the task of bringing about a general disarmament and thereby the restitution of Germany's equality.

"When we entered the conference, we learned with disappointment that the foundations of the conference discussions no longer existed. There was but one answer to make, namely, to leave the conference. Public opinion abroad seemed surprised at our reply.

"That is understandable, since the recent negotiations were conducted confidentially, but the participating statesmen were in no wise surprised.

"With satisfaction, I observe that during these last negotiations the representatives of the United States and Italy left no effort untried to mediate.

Accuses Other Powers.

"All the efforts, however, failed, on account of the efforts of the other powers to erect a united front against Germany, to which Germany could do nothing but yield. This united front failed to develop."

Baron von Neurath contended the responsibility for the next step lies with others, who might now devote all their energies to agreeing on mutual disarmament.

"It goes without saying, however, that Germany will always be ready to examine serious disarmament proposals," he went on, "and come to an understanding regarding her future armament regime on a basis of equality."

His vehement attack on Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary, whom Herr von Neurath accused of incorrectly informing Washington regarding Germany's position, was considered by some as surprising because Von Neurath once served as the German ambassador to London.

Hints Misrepresentation.

He indicated a belief that Sir John had given the impression that Germany had made more comprehensive demands than she actually had.

The minister charged English, French and American delegates with changing the whole basis of the disarmament plan Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain offered last winter.

The introduction of a trial period for Germany to prove her good faith he characterized as "defamatory," and the reasons assigned for such introduction as "insulting and slandering the German government and casting completely groundless suspicion on her political intentions."

A large part of his address was occupied with military details and just how far Germany was ready to go to help bring about universal disarmament.

He explained his two-fold ideas on disarmament—a reduction of the armament level and an equalization between the disarmed and highly armed states.

Virginia Wins Right to Try Killer Suspect

Supreme Court of U. S. Upholds Decision in Crawford Case.

Within the next few days the State of Virginia will bring back from Boston for trial George Crawford, 34-year-old colored man, accused of the slaying of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Mina Buckner, in a lodge on the Ilsley estate near Middleburg, January 13, 1932.

Nearly a year of litigation following Crawford's arrest in Boston on a minor charge and his identification as the murder suspect ended yesterday when the United States Supreme Court upheld a decision of the Massachusetts Circuit Court of Appeals that he must be returned to Virginia to stand trial.

A warrant for Crawford's extradition, on file with the attorney general of Massachusetts, will be executed immediately and Sheriff E. S. Adrian, of Loudoun County, with a deputy, has been delegated to bring him back. Trial probably will be at Leesburg.

On April 24, Federal Judge Lowell ordered Crawford freed on a writ of habeas corpus, saying the Supreme Court would nullify a conviction of the defendant in Virginia because colored persons did not serve on juries there.

Pending action on appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals by the State of Massachusetts, Crawford was held in $25,000 bail. The Appellate Court reversed Judge Lowell, pointing out the laws of Virginia made no discrimination against colored persons for jury duty, and ordered that Crawford be delivered to the proper authorities for extradition to Virginia.

The United States Supreme Court yesterday denied a review of this decision.

John Galleher, Commonwealth's attorney of Loudoun County, said Crawford may be arraigned and placed on trial before November 15.

Sandberg May Not Testify.

Illness of Lieut. Fred Sandberg, police fingerprint expert, may force withdrawal of important testimony from the trial of George Crawford, colored suspect in the slaying of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid at Middleburg, Va., in 1932.

Lieut. Sandberg took an active part in investigation of the crime.

For several months he has been ill at his home. His retirement from the department is effective November 1. Should Crawford's trial be held within a few weeks, friends believe Lieut. Sandberg will be unable to testify.

Mrs. L. E. Smith, the boy's mother, brought him here. She said he snuffed the pin into his lung a week ago.

Union Head Jailed For Strike Activity

Gallup, N. Mex., Oct. 16 (AP).—R. F. Roberts, National Miners Union leader, tried before a special court-martial here last week on a charge of interfering with enforcement of martial law in the Gallup coal strike area, was sentenced today to six months at hard labor in the McKinley County Jail.

Roberts was alleged to have urged striking miners to arm themselves and hold a mass meeting in defiance of the military.

German Ballot November 12 Likely to End Presidency

Von Hindenburg Expected to Retire With Hitler Power Assured.

Berlin, Oct. 16 (AP).—When the German nation marches to the polls November 12 to give Chancellor Adolf Hitler unanimous indorsement, it unwittingly may put an end to the German presidency.

There are indications that President Von Hindenburg, after the nation overwhelmingly has indorsed Hitler and his policies, may decide the moment has come when he can lay aside the cares of office and retire to his home at Neudeck—thus making Hitler Germany's supreme ruler in name as well as in fact.

It is an open secret, though the press says nothing about it, that the question of Von Hindenburg's retirement has been under consideration both by himself and the Hitler cabinet.

Devotion to duty kept the 86-year-old chief of state from resigning so long as the Nazi regime was not completely intrenched.

There is also little doubt that Hindenburg, from a sense of loyalty to his former sovereign, would be happiest if he could resign in favor of Wilhelm II.

Chilly Nudists

Town Sergt. Vernon Cockerell, of Herndon, Va., may have to wait until next spring to raid a nudist camp near that town. On a visit to the camp Sunday he learned that when the weather gets cold nudists wear clothes, just like non-nudists.

It was explained that his visit was purely in the interest of the law. He found about 20 people, fully clothed, around a campfire enjoying a picnic. Officer Cockerell said he was given to understand that the residents of the camp didn't intend to wear clothes all the time, but that chilly weather induced goose pimples.

An 80-acre tract, far off the main highways, was found posted with no trespassing signs, but not fenced. Tents are used. Members of the colony, some of whom go down from Washington and Alexandria for week-ends, said permanent buildings will be erected soon.

Crisis May Cut Tension in East

Japan Expects Russia to Watch Europe; German Alliance Scouted.

Tokyo, Oct. 16 (AP).—The likelihood that the German crisis might diminish Russo-Japanese tension was the uppermost thought here tonight.

As the government studied dispatches from its ambassadors in Europe, there was a feeling here that the German situation might direct Soviet Russia's primary anxieties away from the Orient to ominous developments among her western neighbors. This, it was felt, would relieve the Russo-Japanese tension.

"The crisis affects Japan only indirectly through its effect on the Russian policy in the Far East, which is the phase we are closely watching," a foreign office spokesman said.

However, he branded as "unworthy of serious denial" reports from Europe that Germany consulted Japan prior to quitting the League of Nations.

Showdown Due Today in NRA Press Dispute

James True Says He Will Defy Johnson Ban Against Him.

A showdown as to whether Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, can limit his press conferences to bonafide newspaper men is due today.

James True, who writes a weekly "Industrial Control Report" which he supplies to business men, insisted last night he will attend today's press conference. Johnson, who has barred all but actual newspaper and magazine correspondents, says True will not attend.

Many correspondents assigned to the NRA contend that because all except writers affiliated with newspapers requiring daily telegraphic service are barred from the Capitol press galleries, the same rule should be extended to the NRA.

In recent weeks, it was pointed out, the lax regulations of Johnson's conferences have permitted some lobbyists to attend and receive confidential information.

To do other than to attempt to attend the conference, True wrote Johnson, would "constitute surrender" of the constitutional guarantee of a free press. Johnson had charged that one of True's reports was "full of misinformation and sabotage of NRA." True has denied this statement.

Meanwhile, W. M. Kiplinger, also a business letter writer, who has been in difficulties with Johnson, denied he felt "censored" or that his privileges had been abridged because the administrator had charged his letters contained inaccuracies and had instructed him to obtain all future NRA information either from himself or Charles Michelson, NRA publicity director.

"I have no feeling about the situation," Kiplinger said.

LEADERS of more than 3,000 dismissed Federal employes will call at the White House at 10 a. m. today for a conference.

BAKER.

The ousted workers, organized as the Civil Service Reinstatement League are seeking President Roosevelt's assistance in winning preference in employment throughout the service.

They charge that officials are not giving them preference in increasing staffs at various Government agencies while they have Civil Service ratings and long experience.

The league will meet tonight at the Pythian Temple to hear reports on the White House conference and results of parleys with other executives. An intensive campaign is being mapped out to bring their grievances before members of Congress. The group points out that President Roosevelt several weeks ago urged that preference be given those dropped from various offices wherever possible.

THOSE of us who struggle along with the intricacies of the English language are justified in our envy of Mrs. Sylvian J. Pirson with her masterful command of not only English but also German and French in her duties as assistant translator in Division of International Postal Service, Postoffice.

Although born and raised in Washington, Mrs. Pirson received an early knowledge of French and German through her parents, who are natives of Alsace. After attending schools in this country she spent several years in Alsace, where she attended college. She later was employed as secretary to the president of a large industrial firm there, where all of her work was in French and German.

Mrs. Pirson has been in Federal service for more than seven years. In 1931 she spent six months in Eufope, motoring with her parents through England, Belgium, France, Switzerland, Germany, Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

Mrs. Pirson was Miss Meta Bolchert until last June, when she was married to Sylvian J. Pirson, a young Belgian scientist, in Louvain, Belgium. Mr. Pirson now is teaching electrical prospecting at the Colorado School of Mines, Golden, Colo.

The education and talents of this beautiful brunette have not been confined to languages and business offices. Mrs. Pirson plays the piano-accordion at concerts frequently and has been on umerous radio programs. While she calls herself an amateur, her music is polished enough to assure her of a theatrical contract should she ever tire of the career with the Government.

Head of Indian Insane Asylum Fired by Ickes

Detained Sane Persons and Treated the Inmates Cruelly, Charged.

Harry R. Hummer, superintendent of a Federal insane asylum at Canton, S. Dak., yesterday was dismissed by Secretary Ickes, of the Interior Department, on charges of mistreating Indians committed to the asylum.

Among other things, Hummer was charged with detaining sane Indians in the institution. An injunction was issued against releasing these "sane" Indians, and they may be brought to St. Elizabeths Hospital here for celebration.

Disposition of the "sane" Indians depends upon the District Supreme Court, as injunction proceedings similar to those filed at Canton against transfer or removal of the patients were filed here. The Interior Department ordered the "sane" Indians sent to St. Elizabeths Hospital, but this was blocked by the injunction.

Collier Files Charges.

Charges against Hummer were filed by John Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs. They followed a report on the Canton asylum made by Dr. Samuel A. Silk, medical director of St. Elizabeth's.

Hummer was given five days to reply. His answer was found "unsatisfactory."

Collier also asserted sanitation conditions were "unbelievably bad;" that the plant and equipment were inadequate, and that "patients are cruelly treated."

Culp Ousts Hummer.

The Interior Department yesterday reiterated its statement that effort to release the sane Indians "was met by certain Canton interests who profit from selling supplies to the asylum."

Hummer was ordered replaced by Dr. L. L. Culp, special Indian service physician at large, now at Red Lake Indian Agency, Minnesota.

Snowplows operating in choked passes of the Rockies soon will be equipped with radios.

For the first time in its history the Radio Commission yesterday approved installation of radios on plows, which will "work" with highway commission and police department transmitters.

Snowplow radio, it was explained yesterday, is regarded as valuable not only for communication in event a plow is stalled in deep drifts but in receiving orders from headquarters.

No. 1 Universal TRANSFERS

CAPITAL TRANSIT COMPANY introduces itself to the people of Washington and vicinity. After years of planning, with the helpful co-operation of official and unofficial bodies, this Company has been organized to improve through unification Washington's rail and bus transportation systems.

December 1, 1933—at 12:01 a. m.—is the date fixed by the Public Utilities Commission for the new Company to begin operation. At that time Capital Transit proposes, as one of the first benefits to come to the public, to introduce a liberal transfer plan which will permit every street car rider to travel between any two points in the District of Columbia on the combined system upon payment of the cash or token fare. This plan, which will be announced in detail later, will be found to give greater privileges over the combined system than are now available on either the lines of The Capital Traction Company or those of The Washington Railway and Electric Company.

The management of the New Company is working on other developments, public announcement of which will be made from time to time.

Tale of Secret Tunnel Rouses Reichstag Trial

Passage Leading to Home of Goering Enters Fire Defense.

Berlin, Oct. 16 (AP).—Testimony regarding an underground passage from the Reichstag Building to the official residence of Reichs-Minister Hermann Wilhelm Goering furnished a new sensation today in the trial of five men on charges of firing the Reichstag last winter.

An employe of the Reichstag said on the stand that the subway had no safety lock, but merely a makeshift screw-key device which could be opened easily.

This was the first time during the hearings, now in the seventeenth day, that the tunnel was mentioned, but after the February blaze a government communique said it was likely incendiaries escaped from the Parliament building through secret passage.

It was recalled that during the fire no one was admitted to the building or the tunnel entrances and that police cards of newspapermen were voided for the evening.

Georgi Dimitroff, a Bulgarian refugee and one of the defendants, tried to ask about the lock and doors to the mysterious corridor, but did not get far before the court barred further questions by him.

A defense attorney, Alfons Sack, came to Dimitroff's aid, and as a result it was thought testimony about the passage would be an important part of subsequent sessions.

Notorious Outlaw Shot While Defying Officers

Statesville, N. C., Oct. 16 (AP).—Charlie Hilton, notorious North Carolina outlaw, was slain here today as he sought to blaze his way through a cordon of officers after alighting from an eastbound train. His outlaw-companion, Dud Travis, who escaped with him from State's prison in 1932, was captured.

Finding themselves surrounded as officers climaxed a 15-month search, the pair drew their pistols, sheriff G. C. Kimball said. Officers opened fire immediately and both men fell.

Two Killed in Plunge From Flaming Plane

Clarksville, Tenn., Oct. 16 (AP).—William T. Murray, Nashville transport air pilot, and Harry P. Lyle, former Clarksville pharmacist, were killed today in a leap from their flaming plane near here. They were en route from Clarksville to Murfreesboro.

About a mile from Clarksville the plane's motor began to miss, persons in the vicinity said, and the ship was seen to catch fire.

Liquor's Status In White House Awaits Repeal

Mrs. Roosevelt to Reveal Stand When Serving of Rum Is Legal.

Mrs. Roosevelt said yesterday she would wait until repeal before answering the question of whether liquor and wine will be served at the White House.

Answering a question whether she would serve wine at diplomatic receptions, she said:

"There will be no statement until repeal has come, and until it is an accomplished fact in the District of Columbia. Then there will be a statement just as there was on beer."

But Mrs. Roosevelt will not partake. She made that clear in her beer statement issued April 3, four days before the sale of beer became legal.

"When it is legal to serve beer in any Government house it will naturally be proper to do so for anyone who desires it at the White House," she said at that time. "No matter what the legislation, I myself do not drink anything with alcoholic content, but that is purely an individual thing."

Mrs. Roosevelt reiterated her desire to see the elimination of alley homes here. She expressed hope the plan to eliminate alley homes rather than the one to improve them be adopted by the Housing Planning Commission, of which Frederic Delano is chairman.

Mrs. Roosevelt expects to go to Reedville, W. Va., Thursday as a member of the housing committee of the experimental farm and factory community being established there by the Government as part of the general plan for reemployment.

A Statement of Policy
by
NATIONAL DISTILLERS

It seems certain now that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment will become effective this present year.

Thoughtful men and women are already asking, what will happen then?

It is a question you can answer—and we can answer—each in our own way.

The first part of our answer is based on the clear recognition that the American people are not voting liquor in, but Prohibition out.

We recognize there have been serious abuses in the past.

We recognize also that there will doubtless be some abuses in the future, since men and women are still fallible and Utopia is not yet here.

But we recognize most clearly of all that good policy and good taste alike dictate that we oppose these abuses by every means we may properly employ.

To that end we pledge ourselves to stand, in every phase of our business, for moderation and not abuse —for temperance instead of excess —for the strict observance not merely of legal duty, but of moral duty as well.

It goes without saying that no product which bears our emblem will be sold unless it is as good in quality and in purity as science and our skill can make it.

So much for our part of the answer—now how about yours?

Will you not join with us, and by using your new freedom wisely and temperately, help to safeguard the privilege which hopeful American men and women now are voting to give into our common care?

Releasing Purchasing Power.

On Sunday the President announced the details of a plan to establish a special division of the R. F. C. to be administered by a Deposit Liquidation Board. The purpose of this new organization, it is stated, is to make funds available as quickly as possible to depositors in banks closed since January 1, 1933. The official announcement indicates that the plan is designed primarily to provide more efficient administrative machinery for giving effect to the provisions of the existing law authorizing the R. F. C. to aid in the reorganization or liquidation of closed banks.

There is no suggestion of an intention to apply new standards in appraising the value of assets offered in exchange for loans; indeed, the President is careful to state that the amounts distributed will be "limited to the orderly liquidation value of assets on which loans can be made, reserving only what will appear sufficient to pay taxes, expenses, and interest during the liquidation period." If the new organization fulfills expectations, it is officially estimated that at maximum $1,000,000,000 might be released for the benefit of depositors of banks closed since January 1.

The public has discovered that money or credit has to be used in order to be of assistance to trade and industry. Cash hoarded by individuals and potential bank lending power not actively employed are nonexistent for all practical purposes. Money might be poured into the laps of individuals, and excess reserves might be increased indefinitely without perceptible effect upon business, if fear restrains potential dispensers of this money and credit from utilizing the resources at their disposal.

Thousands of depositors holding claims against closed banks, however, are only waiting for their funds to be released in order to make long deferred purchases of necessary articles, and pay overdue bills. The purchasing power that would be made available by liquefying the assets of closed banks is certain to be effectively employed, therefore, by depositors who now lack the power but have the will to buy. Their spending not only would provide a direct stimulus to local retail trade, but it would start a chain of buying and selling that would spread to other lines of activity.

Local merchants who have been unable to collect accounts as a result of bank closings would be able to enlarge the scale of their own purchases as outstanding bills were paid. The credit standing of local firms would be improved and they would be in a position to respond to increased demands as they developed. Thus the purchasing power restored to communities suffering from the effects of bank failures would be increased by many times the amount of the funds released. Consumers, retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers would benefit and employment openings would expand correspondingly. In short, if a rapid thawing of frozen deposits could be accomplished, there would be initiated a series of buying operations of an essential character that would tend to raise prices by increasing the volume of business, thus providing a solid basis for effective demands for goods and services.

This method of adding to the purchasing power of any community has none of the evil after-effects of monetary inflation of the printing press type. It is based upon claims representing actual assets; it is used to buy goods; and it assists the further production and exchange of goods. Those who have experienced the paralyzing effects of bank failures upon the business life of communities know that the tie-up of deposits due to failures spreads like a blight to every class and every producing group within a given trading area. Indeed, the effect is felt, although it is not always consciously perceived, in every part of the country with which the region concerned is connected by business or financial ties.

Apart from the direct tangible benefits resulting from the release of frozen deposits, the intangible gains are likewise substantial. Delays and uncertainties discourage local enterprise and tend to restrict buying to an extent greater than is necessary. Furthermore, haste in completing the work of releasing frozen funds provides a concentrated stimulus to business which is lacking when liquidation is long drawn out. For all these reasons, Government credit properly employed to speed the revival of dormant purchasing power immobilized by bank failures represents an especially constructive type of public activity.

Adult Education.

A project for adult education of a new type is being established in San Francisco in the Adult Center of Social Research. More of a forum than a school, the founder, Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, believes that grown people learn more readily through discussion than through formal lessons. The working out of present-day problems, according to Dr. Meiklejohn, requires the development of greater intelligence in the present generation and less of the lazy evasion which pins hopes on the next.

The new school will conduct classes without tuition charges or credits. Studies will aim at developing the student's powers for dealing with problems of human significance by studying contemporary America. The only entrance requirement will be the interest and ability of the student, and it is expected that persons with greatly varied interests and habits of mind will attend the courses.

A small faculty will work with a limited number of students, it being the intention that the ratio of students to teachers shall not exceed twelve to one. The presidents of Standford University and the University of California have cooperated in planning the venture, and, though not officially connected, have offered lecturers and research facilities. A library fund already has been raised and a building donated.

The new center hopes to unite varied intellectual and cultural activities of the city so that the community as a whole will become aware of the conditions by which its life is determined, and thus clarify the ends toward which its activities should be directed. The accomplishment of these ends may be achieved, it is anticipated, by designing the lectures and discussions so that a large number of citizens will be attracted to attend and participate.

The District Budget.

Some increase in the District budget for the next fiscal year seems inevitable. Elimination of the 15 per cent salary cut seems to be expected by the Budget Bureau. An addition of $3,750,000 to this year's budget will be necessary to take care of this expense. Higher appropriations for a number of other items may be necessary to maintain even the present curtailed service of the District government.

By anticipating that salaries will be restored to their former level the Budget Bureau takes cognizance of the rising cost of living. Higher prices also increase the cost of operating the various departments of government, since a considerable portion of the budget ultimately is spent for supplies and equipment. If the standards of the current year—which already are considered too low by many careful students of the District government—are to be maintained, higher appropriations may be necessary.

In view of rising costs a budget of $39,484,858, as approved by the District Commissioners, does not seem to be excessive. With salaries restored to their former level this figure would leave only a small margin over the original allowances for the various departments this year. Details of the budget have not yet been made public. Consequently, it is impossible to determine to what extent the deficiency in school construction would be remedied, or to what extent administrative furloughs for District employees and curtailment of service would be necessary. But it appears that the actual needs of the District would not be fully supplied, even if the recommendations of the commissioners should be accepted.

The question of the Federal contribution to the District will also be revived this year. Congress reduced the Federal contribution from $7,775,000 to $5,700,000 last year because the District budget was also reduced. When it becomes necessary to increase the budget to meet higher costs, equity demands that the Federal allowance be increased, at least in the same proportion. Congress has not yet worked out a permanent basis for the fiscal relations between the District and the Government. While the present makeshift arrangement is in effect it ought not to be used to reduce the Federal lump sum when the budget is contracting and then to retain the smaller contribution when the budget expands.

The German Plebiscite.

Germany is moving feverishly toward an election on November 12. It promises to be one of the strangest plebiscites in modern history. The German people will troop to the polls in all solemnity to decide an issue that already has been decided for them by the impetuous chancellor of the Reich.

In announcing the withdrawal of Germany from the disarmament conference and the intention of that country to resign from the League of Nations, Chancellor Hitler said that the issue would be laid before the German people for an expression of their position. The Reichstag was dissolved ostensibly to permit the election of new members who would be able to shape Germany's foreign policy during this critical period. But the election will have no such significance.

While pretending to let the people decide the issue, the Nazi officials have so arranged the plebiscite that the people will have virtually no alternative to indorsement of the Hitler policy. Two issues will be presented. First, there will be the question of approving the Nazi policy with regard to disarmament, and, second, the choice of candidates for the Reichstag.

Theoretically, it will be possible for German citizens to vote against the Nazi policy of equality in armaments and withdrawal from the league. But a vote of confidence is made almost synonymous with upholding the national honor. The electorate will not have a chance to choose between two programs or policies. Votes may be cast for or against only a single platform which is closely identified with the elemental aspirations of the German nation. Voters are asked to choose between rampant Hitlerism and complete negation.

In voting for candidates the choice will be similar. Only one roster of candidates, including only Nazis, will be placed before the electorate. A dispatch from Berlin says that a semiofficial warning to possible opposition candidates has been sent out. It is doubtful whether any opposition candidate will have the temerity to declare himself. A campaign speech against the Nazis might be a signal for reprisals and intimidation. Journalistic criticism of the Hitler policy might result in the imprisonment of the editor responsible for it. The people may vote for Nazi candidates or waste their ballots.

Thus only the forms of parliamentary government are preserved. Actually the German nation is in the grip of a single party that has crushed all opposition, muzzled the press, and destroyed all semblance of representative government.

Liquor Questions.

Questions that will arise after repeal of the eighteenth amendment have been under consideration by experts in the State, Treasury, Justice and Commerce departments, and a comprehensive survey of the prospective situation is to be laid before the President. These questions relate to the nature and degree of Federal control of interstate liquor traffic, the extent to which present laws will apply after repeal, the kind of new laws that may be required, the revision of treaties relating to smuggling, based upon enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, and the amount of the tax that should be imposed upon domestic liquor.

It is not expected that the tariff duties upon foreign liquors will be revised, although changes might be made under the flexible clause of the tariff act if the domestic industry could show that it was subjected to unfair competition. The President has power also, under the national industrial recovery act, to restrict or exclude foreign imports if they should be so heavy as to endanger the maintenance of the industrial codes provided for in the act. In any event imported liquors would be subject to the internal revenue tax in addition to tariff duties.

The Treasury Department is said to favor restoration of the war-time tax of $6.40 per gallon on distilled spirits. The first year's revenue from this proposed tax would yield, it is estimated, about $250,000,000. Tariff revenue amounting to $100,000,000 or $150,000,000 is expected from liquor imports.

Doubtless the amount of tax to impose upon domestic spirits will provoke much debate in Congress. There will be considerable argument against heavy taxes on the ground that encouragement would be given to bootleggers. It seems probable, however, that the expectations of foreign liquor interests will be disappointed in regard to the American market. Imports may be quite large at first, but the cost of foreign liquors after paying duty and taxes probably will deter Americans generally from indulging in that expensive luxury.

With the suspension of the antitrust law the brain trust grows. President Butler says there are 60 members of the Columbia faculty alone in the public service.

Germany owes the League of Nations more than $400,000 in dues and offers to pay in German pencils. The League does have a lot of figuring to do these days, and pencils are better than nothing.

The Sunday afternoon motorist can not credit the claim that there are over 3,000,000 miles of highways in the United States over which those other cars might be distributed.

A number of States should realize that mere repeal isn't going to solve the liquor question any more than it was solved by the simple enactment of prohibition.

Chancellor Hitler's action may save the face of the arms conference by avoiding a fade out.

Germany and Japan are now in a position to form the League of Isolationists.

Work Hours Then and Now.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A few months ago a woman of 90 in an eastern Massachusetts textile town was telling of her early days in the mill. She rose at 4, was at her loom at 5, took a half hour off for breakfast at 7, came back to her loom and stayed there, with time out for two other meals, until daylight failed in the evening. In the winter lamps were used morning and evening. Her working day averaged about thirteen hours, her wage about $3 a week. She lives to tell of it 70 years after. Many of her fellow workers did not survive the age of 30. Tuberculosis about that time was sometimes called "mill fever."

A little more than 40 years ago Samuel Gompers was accused of seeking to tear down the Constitution because he advocated an 8-hour day. Not much more than a decade ago leaders of the steel industry were "proving" that it would destroy their business to cut the basic working day from twelve to eight hours. But it was done and steelmakers enjoyed some of the most prosperous years of their history.

Today the President's blanket code calls for a 35 to 40 hour week. Some of the individual codes raise the limit to 45 or 48. The 8-hour day is a rarity under the Blue Eagle. The average of the codes will probably lie between six and seven.

The American Federation of Labor now calls for a 6-hour day, five days a week, as the essential objective if NRA is to conquer unemployment. In her address to the labor convention the other day, Secretary Perkins of the Department of Labor indorses the demand for a still shorter week, though she does not commit herself to a definite figure. She insists, however, that:

"We can not stop with the present minimum wages and maximum hours of labor. * * * Certainly we can not have the purchasing power necessary to balance our production capacity unless we develop wider opportunities for work and wages."

The Nation recognizes that progress in industrial relations is clearly away from the old conditions which frequently made labor a grievously exploited commodity. That system was bad and no one wants to return to it.

There is also an increasing acceptance by business leaders of the fact that mass production, which is the life stream of American business, can not thrive without a constantly widening mass of buying power, the greater part of which must come from the workers.

However, under our present industrial system there is obviously a limit to what industry can pay in wages and live.

Letters to the Editor.

More in Life Than Money-Chasing, as Americans Are Now Discovering.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The protest rising from an article which appeared in a current magazine, in which it was stated that there is little, if any, help in a college education in finding a job, is encouraging. President Neilson in his address in opening the college year voiced this protest effectively. He said it was not the function of a college to prepare for jobs, but to provide a cultural background for its students.

It was to be expected that the president of a college would take this point of view. But it is amazing to see the type of others who are protesting the lack of cultural opportunities which this country, devoted to the pursuit of material wealth, provides. I recently asked a student who had just returned from her junior year abroad what was her dominant impression upon arriving home. Her reply bears on the situation: "The almost total lack of that culture which one feels at every turn abroad. If you go out to dinner in Paris, after the dinner is over you sit in the drawing room and talk art, music, literature, the drama, politics. Here you fly to the movies or to bridge. There seems to be no such thing as conversation in this country."

A few nights after, I sat at dinner beside a man who had been exceedingly successful in acquiring material wealth. I told him what this young woman had said. He replied: "The men in this country are waking up to the fact that they have been giving their lives to providing for their families, who would be much better off without them, four or five bathrooms, endless automobiles, and all the accessories which these things mean, and that there is a vast rich side of life which most men never touch. They are beginning to feel that this struggle is not worth while, and that there is something better, something which makes for far greater happiness than these material things can ever bring." Thinks Women Are Entitled to a Civilian Conservation Corps.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a citizen interested in the welfare of our country, I naturally am delighted to hear the progress made by the Civilian Conservation Corps. It was a worth-while undertaking, and President Roosevelt is to be commended for the courage he had to undertake and to execute this project.

However, there is no reason why an undertaking of like nature should not have been undertaken on the part of the Government for the welfare of the women instead of leaving them to the cold kindness of charity. They, too, have dependents. They, too, have those they love who had to go hungry and cold and miserable, all for the want of real aid to women.

In view of the above facts, how can you expect women to go forward kindly and unselfishly and help men when men have failed and refused to help women? This would be a very good subject for women speakers to dwell upon before they make speeches urging women's support.

Some Bumps in Life Are Lucky—Romance on a Bus.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: They were three women in animated conversation, hanging on to straps in a Mount Pleasant car. Just then the car gave a terrible jolt. "That reminds me," laughed one, as she righted herself, "of a friend of mine who was in a Woodley road bus and, suddenly, it gave a lurch, and she landed right in a man's lap. And do you know a romance developed, and they were married two months later!"

Great excitement among the feminine trio.

"What bus did you say that was?" queried one.

"Coming to it now."

"Let me right off. Good-by!"

THE YOUNGER GENERATION.

Those who imagine that there is a wider divergence between the ideals of the older and the younger generation in our day than ever before are mistaken. There have always been misunderstanding and some hostility. Many old people find young men and women incomprehensible; and to youth many old people appear stupidly obstructive. No doubt Adam and Cain did not always see eye to eye.

I asked a college undergraduate why it was that older people have always thought younger people were going to the devil. He replied, "Perhaps they would have gone to the devil, if the older people had not always thought they were going there." A pithy answer.

The best novel ever written on this eternally interesting theme is "Fathers and Children" by the Russian author, Ivan Turgenev. Although published in 1861, it is applicable to conditions in 1933. It can be read through in three hours, but it will take a lifetime to absorb its ideas. The best evidence to its truthfulness is seen in the fact that it was bitterly attacked by aged conservatives and young radicals—each side assuming that Turgenev was on the other.

The young scientific man Bazarov, the nihilist, calmly announces that all the ideas of older people about religion and morality are going into the scrap-heap. Perfect love may cast out fear; but not the love of parents for their children. The father and mother of Bazarov love him with pride mingled with terror. They fear he will grow away from them; that their caresses may deaden rather than quicken his affection. They fear he will be bored at home. This parental fear is one of earth's greatest tragedies. They know their son is necessary to their happiness and that they are not to his.

And yet the only bridge between the older and the younger generation is the bridge of love.

Man Wouldn't Assert His Equality If He Wasn't Aware of Betters

By Robert Quillen

The October number of a magazine printed for Big Business contains a biographical sketch of a famous speculator. His sayings are quoted frankly, and two of them employ blasphemous profanity for emphasis.

Because I live in the country and make infrequent trips to centers of civilization, I notice changes in morals and manners that escape the attention of metropolitans.

One change that continues to astonish me is the increased use of profanity by men of good breeding.

Twenty-five years ago unclean and blasphemous speech was limited almost wholly to unwashed men of little learning, unstable men who were enraged or drunk and street women who had reached bottom.

Now it is not uncommon to hear statesmen, executives and artists of the highest type spice their ordinary conversation with hyphenated profanity that would astonish the mythical mule driver.

The explanation would be hard to find.

No man of learning and culture says to himself: "Hereafter I shall adorn my speech with livery-stable profanity."

More likely he makes an unconscious beginning in some moment of wrath, having heard his acquaintances use profanity so often that it seems commonplace and inoffensive.

Whatever its beginning, the puzzling part of it is that a man of dignity should without shame play the role of a small boy trying to be naughty.

For without question his purpose, though unadmitted even to himself, is to be wicked—to be tough and defiant of his Maker.

He may have no acknowledged religion and he may even deny the existence of a God, but why would he use the name of the Diety at all except in impudence and rebellion?

Why would he give emphasis to a statement by means of blasphemy if he had no slightest belief in God? Why wouldn't he say "man-damned" or "for man's sake" or something equally ridiculous if he had no naughty-boy urge to be wicked?

Swearing would have no point if there were no God to defy.

The motive of it, however obscure, is akin to the incredible asininity exhibited by a famous author some years ago when he stood in a pulpit and dared God to strike him dead.

Man hides his motives even from himself, but he remains a little Willie, saying a cuss word to prove that he isn't afraid of thunder.

Labor Still Conservative.
Boston Transcript.

Emphatic refusal by the American Federation of Labor to endorse any fantastic scheme of currency inflation supplies fresh proof of the inherent conservatism of that great body with respect to national policies. This is exemplified also in its opposition to the recognition of Soviet Russia, which is being urged so strongly upon the President by some commercial interests, although its influence in this matter may prove of less effect in the long run.

Lawyers and Crime.
Los Angeles Times.

Attorney General Cummings' demand upon bar associations that the legal profession purge itself of lawyers who aid crime and defeat justice is a necessary part of the Nation's effort to demolish hoodlumism. The support given to lawlessness by a certain portion of the bar extends farther than mere petti-fogging and shystering in court; it includes advice on how systematically to commit crime and avoid the penalty. Some lawyers are known to be under retainer from criminals, to appear for them if they get caught, arrange bail and defeat incarceration by any subterfuge possible under the complications of the criminal law.

Disbarment is not punishment enough for some of these lawyers, who are actual conspiratory participants in the crime. Some convictions for criminal conspiracy would go a long way to break up this practice.

ENTITLED "NO ESCAPE."

("The United States Department of Justice proposes to send the country's most desperate criminals to Alcatraz Island, off the Pacific Coast, from which there will be no escape."—News item.)

Alcatraz Island, Nov. 9.—"Eight Gun" Beesel, notorious racketeer and public enemy No. 4, arrived here today, following his conviction of 12 major crimes. There is no escape from this American counterpart of the famous Devils Island.

Alcatraz Island, Nov. 10.—"Eight Gun" Beesel, who arrived here yesterday to spend the rest of his life at this penal resort from which there is no escape, conferred with his lawyer here today.

Alcatraz Island, Nov. 11.—What might have been a serious marine disaster occurred off here today when two ships collided in a fog. They were loaded with lawyers on their way to see "Eight Gun" Beesel. Beesel is prisoner on this island, from which there is no escape.

* * * *

Alcatraz Island, Nov. 12.—Two top floors of the prison here have been set apart for the use of "Eight Gun" Beesel, America's most influential racketeer. The warden explained that Beesel could not confer comfortably with his legal staff otherwise.

* * * *

Alcatraz Island, Dec. 1.—A tug towing two barges loaded with briefs, appeals, petitions and other legal documents prepared by "Eight Gun" Beesel and his staff of lawyers left here for the coast today. Beesel is confined to this American replica of Devils Island, from which there is no escape.

* * * *

Chicago, Jan. 1.—"Eight Gun" Beesel, who has been out of town for several weeks, arrived home today. He reopened his elaborate old headquarters next to the police building at once.

* * * *

Alcatraz Island, Jan. 2.—Reporters today interviewed the warden of this penal institution, from which there is no escape, on the whereabouts of "Eight Gun" Beesel, thought to have been imprisoned here to end one of the most amazing criminal careers in history.

"Beesel?" asked the warden. "Beesel? I never heard of the man."

THE HITCH IN IT.

The American Federation of Labor has voted to boycott all German goods until Hitler recovers his mind. But we still think that after a hard day's work the average workingman is going to find it hard to reject a big platter of frankfurters and saurkraut.

It's about time the President issued a proclamation that a nation half patriot and half chiseler can not endure.

A horse called Quorum won a race at Jamaica the other day. This will come as a surprise to most race followers. They hadn't supposed that enough horses ran at those New York tracks to get a quorum.

How about a code limiting the labors of those football cheer leaders?

A TIP FROM MACAULAY.

A correspondent to the New York Herald-Tribune has dug up a bit of political advice from Macaulay which he thinks is as pat today as when it was written over 100 years ago, says the Boston Transcript. Conservative folk may agree with him.

"Our rulers will best promote the improvement of the nation," wrote T. B. M., "by strictly confining themselves to their own legitimate duties, by leaving capital to find its own most lucrative course, commodities, their fair price, idleness and folly their natural punishment, by maintaining peace, by defending property, by diminishing the price of law and by observing strict economy in every department of the state. Let the Government do this—the people will assuredly do the rest."

WATCH YOUR STEP.

The safe walker does not step out carelessly from behind parked cars or obstructions, says the Atlanta Constitution; does not try to weave his way through traffic; crosses streets at right angles; uses care in getting on and off vehicles in moving traffic; looks left and then right when crossing a street; obeys traffic signals; does not stand in the street; teaches children not to play in the streets; walks against, instead of with, traffic on open highways, and uses particular precaution at night.

The Ant World.

As I was playing golf today
Across a patch of grass I trod
And something strange upon the sod
Caused me in wonderment to stay.
Ant hills of earth in little mounds,
Resembling pyramids of old,
The story of a region told
Where ceaseless energy abounds.

I'd seen them many times before,
But curiously then thought I
A world beneath my feet must lie,
A world which men can not explore.
These busy creatures tug and strain
And daily scurry to and fro,
Tunneling the mighty earth below,
Not thinking all their toil in vain.

Man goes about his tasks and games
And knows his world and its affairs,
Its pleasures and its daily cares.
His goal his whole attention claims.
But here's the ant world fraught with strife
Building its pyramids of sand,
And if we could but understand,
Sharing the mystery of life.

Business Gains Noted in Italy; Fewer Jobless

Trade Increase General in Central and Eastern Mediterranean Area.

Rome, Oct. 16 (AP).—Business is picking up in central and eastern Mediterranean countries.

In Italy the price level, on the 1913 basis, fluctuated from 283.26 in July to 282.45 in August and 282.25 in September, indicating a fairly well stablized level.

Business failures the first eight months of 1933 declined to 7,001 from 8,798 in the same period last year.

Building permits the first seven months show a 25.16 per cent increase over a like period in 1932.

Idleness Decreased.

Italy last August had 57,000 fewer unemployed persons than in the same month last year. Industrial stocks improved about 20 per cent between January and August.

Stimulated by an atmosphere of peace, commercial exchanges among central and eastern Mediterranean countries are slowly improving.

The fourth levant fair, just closed at Bari, Italy, drew 100,000 more visitors than last year; 5,460 contracts were signed, against 2,837 in 1932, and the number of exhibitors rose to 4,983.

The political situation in central and eastern Mediterranean areas, meanwhile, seems better than it has been for years.

Greece, Turkey in Pact.

A recent past between Greece and Turkey consolidated peace between the two nations.

Turko-Greece commercial exchanges, also, are looking up. Italian and Greek trade, too, has increased.

Relations of Italy and Yugoslavia also are better.

The only sore spot in this area is Albania, whose relations with Italy continue troubled because of Albania's decision to deny Italians the right to conduct schools.

Col. House, as Roosevelt Guest, Returns to White House Today

The "little gray man from Texas" is coming to the White House again.

A day's visit will take Col. E. M. House back to familiar scenes of the Executive Mansion, where once his comings and goings with Woodrow Wilson measured the course of nations. With Mrs. House, he will spend today at the mansion, it was announced by Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday.

The visits of the enigmatic colonel to the scenes of his triumphs have not been frequent since his separation from the war President. Once known as "the power behind the throne," his association with the White House was severed with Wilson's.

Interest Was Revived.

With the Democratic party's return to power Col. House's interest in national affairs revived. On his astute judgment President Roosevelt relied strongly during his campaign, and another friendship between the man who was a familiar but unobtrusive figure in the capitals of the warring nations and a Democratic President apparently blossomed.

The extraordinary bond between President Wilson and Col. House made him a frequent visitor at the White House during war days. Before that it was Wilson who visited Col. House at his New York residence in the period when the latter was preparing for the rise of his friend to the Presidency.

Mansion Visits Rare.

Of late, however, Col. House has gone his quiet way in paths which rarely brought him to the Presidential home. Considerable interest is attached, therefore, to his visit to the mansion, with whose walls he shares so many secrets.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she expected the Houses would attend the symphony concert with her tonight.

Deportation Faces American Girl, 19

Fined for Landing In England Illegally.

The girl said she was born in Chicago and deserted by her father in Algiers. She declared Murray took her to Nice.

Steel Strike Ends; 13,000 Work Today

Labor Board Forces Accord Between Unions and Weirton Chief.

Thirteen thousand striking steel workers are expected to return to work today in Clarksburg and Weirton as the result of arbitration efforts yesterday by the National Labor Board.

The strike, involving employes of the National Steel Corporation who walked out of the Ohio and West Virginia plants September 24 because the company would not recognize the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, was terminated when the board brought the strikers and Ernest T. Weir, of Pittsburgh, president of the corporation, together at a hearing.

At first Weir was defiant, challenging the board's jurisdiction.

Reads "Settled Policy."

"To summarize," Weir declared in a statement he read, "we can not submit to arbitration the settled policy of the company to maintain an open shop.

"We feel that the board should not encourage such unfounded strikes and irresponsible leadership by dignifying their complaints with a hearing. We can not negotiate or arbitrate with these strike leaders but must deal only with the representatives regularly chosen by secret ballot by our employes."

A. F. of L. Victory Seen.

At any rate, what he told Weir and the strikers caused them to make the following agreement:

All strikers shall return to work without discrimination. Another election to select employes' representatives shall be held in December, and the voting will be supervised by the National Labor Board. Even though A. F. of L. officials are elected, Weir agrees to frame working conditions with them and to refer any future disputes to the board for arbitration.

The agreements were interpreted as offering the A. F. of L. an opportunity to unionize the plants.

Senate Group Resumes Ship Mail Inquiry

Two Agents of Steamship Owners' Affiliates First Witnesses Today.

Investigation into ocean mail contracts will be resumed today before the special Senate committee, with further inquiry into the propaganda and publicity activities of the Steamship Owners Association.

Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, chairman of the committee, has called as today's witnesses Lachlan Macleay, of the Mississippi Valley Association, and Malcolm M. Stewart, of the Midwest Foreign Trade Association of Cincinnati. Both organizations are affiliated with the Steamship Owners Association.

Officials of the Steamship Owners Association, who testified earlier in the hearing, before Chairman Black called a 10-day recess, revealed Stewart had received $200 a month from the Black Diamond Steamship Co. and had supported it in its fight against the United States Line to purchase various Shipping Board vessels.

Senate investigators have spent the 10-day interim collecting new material from Black Diamond officials, although the mysteriously missing books of the Empire Stevedoring Co., a Black Diamond subsidiary, have not been found.

M. S. Winder, of the American Farm Bureau of Chicago, also will be a witness this week.

Hamilton Heiress' Son Will Marry

Karsch Obtains License in New York City.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 16 (AP).—Relatives were advised today that Hamilton Karsch, Memphis, and Miss Martha Naomi Bradley, New York, obtained a marriage license this morning in New York.

1933 Tacky Ball Guests Will Go On Roller Skates

Cork-Darkened Complexions Expected to Predominate at Monday Party.

Any one in the vicinity of the Mayflower Hotel on the evening of October 23 will certainly be amazed at what their eyes shall behold! The usual steady stream of town cars and taxis will be missing and, instead, weirdly garbed individuals of a cork-darkened complexion will come streaking down the avenue expertly and otherwise, on skates and bicycles, right past the astonished doorman and into the hotel. No one will stop them, for they are bound for the garden.

The soft lights and graceful palms and deep green vines will all have vanished as at the wave of a magician's wand, and instead there will be the typical glaring, rag-decorated interior of a Harlem night club, with its rough barrels and comfortable-though-hard box chairs. Even the pots and pans will have heeded the call to come out of the kitchen, and are to be at the party in full force.

The younger set of Washington has been busy thinking up original costumes and ideas. One very popular member has threatened to bring by the hand the toddling pickaninny of the family cook. From 10 until 4 in the morning the guests will make merry to the strains of a rhythmic Harlem orchestra and partake of the especially nice hot dogs at this tacky ball under the direction of Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, jr., which is given annually by yesteryear debutantes in honor of the new season's buds.

Minimum of Silver Is Helpful to Guests

By using the minimum number of pieces of silver, confusion is avoided at the well-appointed table. It is a good idea to associate each piece with its use, placing farthest from the plate those pieces which are to be used first. Articles of silver not in common use, as oyster forks, should be placed on the plates to which they belong.

Covers should be laid with but one object in view: to simplify service. Whether the salad is placed to the left or right of the plate does not matter greatly as long as it is a part of the service to which it belongs.

Compounding Cocktails Can Be Simple Procedure

The compounding of cocktails is fascinating, yet simple withal. All that is really necessary is to mix thoroughly the specified ingredients by vigorously shaking in a cocktail shaker, or beating with a swizzle-stick or fork. A well-fitting cover for the mixing glass is desirable.

Ice, when obtainable, should always be used in preference to water, as it adds immeasurably to the excellence of the cocktail drink.

Sugar or sirup may be used for sweetening; and while the former is equally efficacious, the latter is handier in that it dissolves more quickly in alcohol.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

If you're a fastidious woman—and, of course, you are—you frequently lament that no sooner do you discover a perfume that strikes a responsive chord in your inmost being, than all the gals of your acquaintance start dabbing the same scent on their ear lobes.

A most disgusting state of affairs! The pathetic part of it is that nothing much can be done about it since perfumes aren't copyrighted. Nothing much, that is, unless you make a mad dash to an F street store and carry off in triumph a scent so new that it is still homesick for Paris, the place of its birth.

The maker's name is as new in the perfume field as his product. He has arranged for limited distribution in this country to safeguard his first offering against becoming commonplace. As a result of this arrangement, only one store in Washington has "Zibeline." The name itself spells witchery.

The scent? Well, it's heavy enough to accent the allure in velvets, furs, lames, and other luxurious winter materials. It has an exotic tang, and there's something forthright about it, too. Entrancing, really!

"Zibeline" has been bottled in several sizes, from a quarter-ounce to two-ounce packages. The price of the smallest size is $3.75.

A nationally known cosmetic manufacturer has taken compassion on the maiden who yearns for a romantic, lily-white skin. The result is a cream that gives a glamorous pallor when used as a powder base.

The cream is also said to be a great help to those struggling to shed the mahogany finish they acquired by sunbakes in the good old summertime. It bleaches efficiently and painlessly during the night if applied at bedtime.

A jolly old English print covers the top of a tilt-top pie-crust table with Duncan Phyfe base. It's low enough to be used for a coffee table and high enough to serve any number of uses. The novel feature of it is that coffee and other liquids may be spilled on the print-covered top without doing a bit of damage.

The wood is mahogany finish. The print, in rich colors, shows three old cronies at a game of cards in the warm atmosphere of an English country house. Price, $12.50.

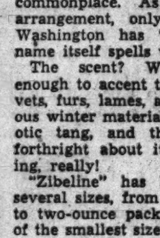
The canary bird can talk right back to the cat when the latter is fastened securely to a plump, square little pillow. Cruelty to animals?



Not a bit of it. The cat, you see, is just a make-believe one. But there's a mighty lifelike look to its bland face, cool, green eyes and funny slit of a mouth.

Faille, in rust, maize, or rose, makes the pillow. Cuddly white fur makes the cat.

It would add an amusing note to a frivolous chaise longue. And can't you just see the expressions of ecstasy on chubby little faces if this new pet came to live in the nursery?

Price: $2.

Now that the matchstick figure is going out and billowy curves are coming in, women may resume a normal interest in sweets. When next you have the gang in for bridge, the candy will likely receive more attention than it has the last few lean years. That attention will be downright enthusiastic if you serve coffee nougat pecan slice. It's brand spanking new. At least the shop where we saw it says the recipe is the latest inspiration of the chief candymaker.

Coffee flavor imparts to the creamy nougat a certain zest. Surrounding the nougat is a layer of caramel, thickly studded with fat pecans.

It sells for 85 cents the pound.

Shiny straw, touched with bits of brilliant color, makes attractive oval-shaped table mats to add verve to that most difficult meal of the day—breakfast. Five mats, in graduated sizes, make a neat little package that sells for 25 cents.

On your Christmas list, without a doubt, is a spoiled young darling who has practically everything. But no modern girl, especially if she is the type that flies to Palm Springs for Thanksgiving, and sails to Havana for Christmas, will sniff disdainfully at two tall square bottles in a black Morocco case. "Oh, she has loads of bottles and jars and all those knickknacks," you think in a hopeless sort of way.

But there are bottles and bottles. These particular ones have precious green prystal cone-shaped tops that are no end Christmasy. A chromium clasp sparkles on the sleek, square leather case. The ensemble is as practical for traveling as it is beautiful for a dressing table. If you're feeling extravagant, stop by a downtown department store and see them.

What's in Fashion?

Directed by Amos Parrish

Information as to where fashions of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

Wasn't your fairy princess of little girl days always a ravishing beauty in velvet and ermine? We can't guarantee the ravishing beauty, but many women will fulfill their dreams of wearing fairy princess clothes with the new fur-trimmed velvet evening wraps.

Maybe the fur won't really be ermine, though some of it is. But the regal effect is there even when you choose other white furs such as soft lapin or flattering fox.

Princess Silhouette.

The silhouette of many of the wraps is going to make you look even more princess like. For you can have a real "princess" silhouette if you like . . . molded in to the figure in slim, graceful lines which sweep the floor.

If you don't want to go to quite such lengths, there's the three-quarter one. (That's the length illustrated.) And when you choose that, you can make nice color contrasts between the shade of your wrap and that of your dress.

The velvet in your wrap can be the heavy Lyons kind (and that's what your princess used to wear), the lighter-weight transparent or the new velveteen, which looks like velvet.

Some of them, of course, are made without fur trimming. And then there's usually more elaboration at the top of the wrap . . . puckered shirrings through the shoulders and sleeves . . . scarfs and tied necklines.

If you're looking for the very newest in evening wraps, you have a choice of several distinctly different types.

One has big dolman sleeves with shirred fullness in the sleeves and bodice.

Loose From Shoulders.

A third, which is one of Chanel's ideas, hangs quite full and loose from the shoulders and shirred yoke.

The full-length cape of velvet is appearing, too, and the three-quarter length cape of fur.

And one of the most unusual of all is the wrap with the monk's hood effect hanging down the back . . . a Lanvin idea. Another version of it by Patou has a long-haired fur collar flung back in a deep cowl.

What Today Means

"Libra."

If October 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 to 9 a. m., from 11 a. m. to 12 noon and from 4:35 to 5:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 to 3 p. m., from 6:15 to 6:50 p. m. and from 8 to 8:40 p. m.

If you have been working along under strained conditions for some time, the chances are that the matter will come to a head on this day. It may mean a change for you in a business way, or a readjustment of your personal affairs. Guard your words and do not speak out of turn; let the other party or parties force the issue.

The child born on this October 17 probably will skip along through the early years of its life without difficulties of any sort. It may be troubled with problems of health in its late teens, but these should clear up nicely in short order. Will generally get its way in most matters without much trouble, but will be capable of fighting hard for what it wants.

If October 17 is the date of your birth, you are quite likely a person with many destructive qualities; you like to tear things down and on many people you have a depressing effect. You are very critical, and no person or thing is accepted by you "as is;" there seems to be a mental reservation of some sort to everything that you think and say. You never look for good in other people and you always call attention to the bad. You expect things to go wrong, sooner or later. Eventually they do, largely because of your own making, and then you blame the other party. You have few friends and you cling to them until you drive them off in some way. You never admit that you are in the wrong; it is always the other person who has "done you dirt."

You have, if born on October 17, many fine qualities along with the others. You are possessed of great energy and you enjoy working hard, whether you are about your own business or are working for another. You have a good mind, and, on most things, think pretty straight. In spite of appearing rather hard and indifferent on the surface, you have a very warm and soft heart and do many nice things for people. It is probable that you do not like those of your own sex. Your supreme egotism and desire to run the whole show may keep you from marrying. There will be tragedy in your life.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. William Adams Slade Is President of "Y" and Trustee of Chest.

President of the Young Women's Christian Association and a trustee of the Community Chest, Mrs. William Adams Slade finds these two phases of welfare work sufficient to engross her entire spare time. Her special interest is in the Y. W. C. A. and the work it does for girls. She is a real working president, attending all meetings and being ever ready to serve on special committees for the various departments of the "Y." Her only other social work is done through the church.

During the past two years, which have been trying times for the character-building organizations of the Community Chest, Mrs. Slade has been a tower of strength to the Y. W. C. A. She has been tireless in her efforts in helping to meet the organization's problems and in devising new methods of service for girls and women.

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. WILLIAM ADAMS SLADE.

"I feel that the work of the Y. W. C. A. is of sufficient importance to demand all my spare time and I concentrate my welfare efforts in this one direction," she says. "I feel that the Y. W. C. A., an international organization that is maintained on the basis of good will and social activities with a religious background, is doing a tremendous work in maintaining a fellowship of girls and women working for a more abundant life.

"The importance of its activities in making our city a better place in which to live can hardly be overestimated," she declared. "For this reason I prefer to devote all my time to this one cause, with the exception, of course, of my interest in the Community Chest, through which the 'Y' and all other chest organizations are financed."

No Other Hands.

By Katherine W. Smith.

Cover all your dying dreams
With flowers if you wish to sleep.
Lay them gently, one by one,
With patience if you wish to keep

Dead dreams hidden from your eyes,
And when they are as dust, take care—
Let no other hands than yours
Renew the blossoms lying there.

New Silhouette Makes Slender Lines Essential

Streamline Effect, Rather Than 18-Inch Waist of Yore, Demanded Today.

The new silhouette, call it what you will—sheathlike, mermaid, waspwaisted, feminine—emphatically demands a figure which is slender at the waist!

While it isn't the ridiculous 18-inch affair of three generations ago, nevertheless it is a decided departure from the carelessly bulging affair tolerated by fashion the last few years.

The new line depends for its loveliness not so much on the actual reduction in circumference as upon a streamline effect. There must be no side bulges, protruding abdomen, or spare-tire effect.

Banish "Spare Tire."

Spare tires and protruding abdomens never could live long under a daily diet of trunk bending and twisting exercises. You start the easier exercise of merely touching fingertips to toes. Without bending the knees, remember.

From that you are promoted to the twisting one. Stand erect before an open window, feet wide apart. Raise arms overhead, feeling quite a pull through the waist. Bend forward and touch fingertips of right hand to left toe. At the same time the left arm comes down to shoulder level, palm facing backward. Back to position and reverse, touching fingertips of left arm to right foot. Try it a few times at first. Soon you should be able to do the exercise at least 10 times.

Trunk circling is another fine exercise, forward, right, as far back as possible without strain, left and forward.

Resistance Exercise.

Here's a fine resistance exercise. Stand erect, feet apart, hands clasped behind head. Bring right leg forward, bending right knee and at the same time bend forward pulling upper trunk and head forward. Try to touch as near to bent knee as possible. Keep head well back against clasped hands resisting during forward pull of trunk and head. That's work for you. Back to position and repeat with other leg.

One more and this one spells death on the bulging business, leaves waist and abdomen trimmer. Lie face downward, preferably on floor. Arms stretched ahead, legs stretched downward. First try raising upper part of body. Back to position. Not so easy, is it? Now try raising legs. Ready for promotion? Try raising both upper part of body and legs at same time. Feel the strain through the waist?

"Calling Card" Time Near in Washington

The merry game of "calling cards" is about to begin in Washington. Every one who wishes to be remembered by an invitation to some White House reception and for courtesy's sake as well, will leave cards at the Executive Mansion early in the season.

Mrs. Roosevelt, of course, is exempt from returning calls made upon her. So, by the way, is Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President. Some Second Ladies of the Land have, however, not availed themselves of the privilege of not returning calls.

Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, for instance, one year tried to call on every one who left cards. She won out in her self-appointed task, but it occupied much more time than she had anticipated.

Of course, many official and private hostesses really wish to see people and have on their cards the days on which they will be at home. They see every one who calls on that day. That is, if they happen to be "in."

Judge Sellers Credits "T. R." With Her Start

As Civil Service Commissioner He Established Precedent in Her Favor.

"I have always had great respect for the judgment of Theodore Roosevelt," smilingly confessed Judge Kathryn Sellers, of the Juvenile Court of the District.

Sunday she celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of her appointment as head of the sympathetic and understanding judicial body, which deals with Washington's minor delinquents. It was, as well, the twentieth anniversary of her admittance to the bar.

She was discussing her appointment, in 1891, as meteorological clerk in the United States Weather Bureau office—which appointment opened the door of political opportunity that brought her in later years the honor of being the first woman to hold a Federal judgeship.

Theodore Roosevelt made it possible.

He was a member of the Civil Service Commission at the time. Judge Sellers, then a girl in her teens, had just come to the Capital from her native Ohio, to try her wings in the broad field of Government service. No woman had ever taken the examination for the Signal Corps Service, and until "T. R." threw the weight of his opinion in her favor, members of the commission were disinclined to establish a precedent.

"T. R." Questions Her.

She tells of her interview with the famous "Teddy."

"Do you think you can pass the examination?" he asked her.

"I ought to. I'm just out of high school," she answered confidently.

At 15 years of age she had interrupted her studies to teach during the spring and fall in the rural schools of her home community.

And pass the examination she did.

From 1891 until 1900 she was meterological clerk with the Federal Weather Bureau. Then she was transferred to the Department of State as assistant librarian. In addition to her regular duties here, she reclassified 12,000 books on international law, working nights and holidays.

"I fastened the Library of Congress classification system on the State Department Library," she laughed. "When I went there I found 80,000 books catalogued alphabetically, in such a way that one had to have an acquaintanceship with all the books in the library in order to know where to find one."

Federal Judgeship Unsolicited.

Her appointment to the juvenile judgeship came in 1918, during President Wilson's administration. Entirely unsolicited, it was in recognition of her eminence as an expert on international law. In 1914 she had received her degree of Master of Laws from Washington College of Law. In the years following she edited two departments of the American Journal of International Law, and was lecturer on criminal law and procedure and equity jurisprudence at the institution. She was handling these jobs at the time of her elevation to the bench.

The indomitable drive of this unusual woman has been forcefully illustrated the past two years. Despite pain and lingering ill health resulting from a fall which fractured her hip, she has carried on her judicial work and, at the same time, busied herself with compiling a volume on women's services during the World War. Judge Sellers was a dollar-a-year attache of the Department of State doing patriotic service in a section of the Division of Foreign Intelligence during that period.

Patient With Transgressors.

Visiting the Children's Court when Judge Sellers is presiding is a revelation to the layman of the infinite patience, humor and understanding she extends to youthful transgressors.

Every effort is made to mitigate any suggestion of criminal procedure. Young offenders are ushered informally into the courtroom, with parents and friends. Seats are found for them. They do not stand as prisoners before the bar.

"Lots more can be gotten out of children if they are permitted to sit, rather than stand," says Judge Sellers. Hers is one of the few children's courts in the country where such concession is made.

After each finding of the court, Judge Sellers had a few direct, kindly remarks to make to the accused. The substance in every instance was an appeal to the child's self-respect.

Truants, moral delinquents, incorrigible small boys, petty thieves, shoplifters, housebreakers, passed before her in slow procession. Justice more than tempered with mercy was meted out to each.

Shows Humor, Understanding.

Having severely rebuked a mother who was defending her small son's truancy from school, the judge remarked to the courtroom, with a broad smile, when mother and son had departed:

"He is a lonely person who hasn't got someone who will commit perjury on his behalf!"

Judge Sellers is responsible for two notable improvements in the District Children's Court. She elevated the status of probation and investigating officers by having it made a professional classification, with special academic requirements, and she brought the churches of the city into direct liaison with the court in working for improvement of child morale.

No End of Books

George Russell (A. E.), Irish Poet, May Make His Home in Chicago With Son; Patrons of Public Libraries Have Increased 40 Per Cent in 4 Years.

George Russell, Irish poet and agriculturist, whose pseudonym, "A. E.," is almost better known than his real name, may come to this country to live with his son, Dairmuid Russell, in Chicago. It is said that "A. E." finds Ireland too depressing after the death of his wife last year, and the death this year in a sailboat accident off the Donegal coast of his friend, Prof. A. Kingsley Porter, former codirector of the Fogg Museum of Art in Cambridge, Mass. Now in London, "A. E." plans to make a trip around the world. After that he may settle down with his son.

In the last four years there has been a 40 per cent increase in the number of people using public libraries, according to Carl H. Milam, secretary of the American Library Association. On the rolls are 4,000,000 new borrowers. By far the heaviest demand is for books in the technical, trade and cultural fields. Fiction gets little time from these millions possessed with new leisure.

"Whistle for Me," a novel just published by Morrow and written by Michael Jackson, a young man of 24, takes its title from a phrase in a poem by Edna St. Vincent Millay.

With his comedy, "Ah, Wilderness!" running on the New York stage, Eugene O'Neill has already written another play. It is called "Days Without End;" marks a return to his sombre vein, and concerns a Catholic priest whom Mr. O'Neill treats sympathetically. The Theater Guild may produce it in January.

Frank Scully, who was working for awhile on former Mayor Walker's as yet unfinished autobiography, has sent Simon & Schuster the manuscript of "More Fun in Bed." This will be a sequel to his hilarious book on how to enjoy convalescence.

Fun About England.

A satirical novel, "ENGLAND, THEIR ENGLAND," by A. G. Macdonnell; the MacMillan Co., $2.

Mr. Macdonnell, Scotchman, tells of an England viewed through rose-colored and slightly off-focus glasses. It is an England of lush countryside, countless pubs, incredibly ancient traditions, decadent but peppery London society, muddling but efficient statecraft. There is not a whisper of the ugly, industrial England of loom and mine, of smoky Liverpool and Birmingham. Neither is there a word about social unrest or that disintegrating population existing upon the dole.

Yet this high selectivity results in pleasant reading. The book has gone through five editions in England. The first American edition has a preface by Christopher Morley, who goes plumb Piccadilly in his enthusiasm.

The crackling wit of Mr. Macdonnell flares up gorgeously at times, especially in the chapter of war memory and the narrative of a swank week-end party. If this inhumanly high key of mordant fun had been maintained, the book would have been an authentic masterpiece. The chapter about the cricket game may be funny, too. An American wouldn't really know. But it seems to be just custard pie exercises a la Hollywood.

Charm reeks from Mr. Macdonnell's pen like the scent of gardenias. Here is his description of the idyllic Great Central Railway: "It goes to places that do not need a railway, that never use a railway, that probably do not yet know that they have got a railway. It goes to wayside halts where the only passengers are milk churns. It visits lonely platforms, where the only tickets are bought by geese and ducks. It stops in the middle of buttercup meadows to pick up eggs and flowers . . . It is a dreamer among railways, a poet, kindly and absurd and lovely."

When the book goes modern and cynical about the delegates at the peace conference, it is equally good. Some of the humor is a bit Elizabethan, or, in our word, Freudian. Mr. Macdonnell introduces drinking companions who are simply Olympian. Take Mr. Huggins, who in the middle of a binge suddenly bursts out: "In God's name, let's talk about something else. Do you prefer crocodile or suede for foghorn containers?"

That will give you a rough idea of the drolleries of Mr. Macdonnell. He is manifestly somewhat hipped on the subject of England, but for a' that and a' that he's a verra entertaining person.

MARY HARRIS.

For Woman's Rights.

An autobiography, "ONCE UPON A TIME AND TODAY," by Maud Nathan; Putnam, $2.50.

An autobiography which can win the commendation and forewords of Henry Van Dyke and Carrie Chapman Catt has achieved much at the very start of its career.

Mrs. Nathan stands out as a leader for woman's freedom in the Consumer's League, the Municipal League, and the suffrage campaign.

There is much charm in Mrs. Nathan's description of personal incidents in her life. Her recollections of notable persons such as Theodore Roosevelt, her travel notes, her amusing account of American reporting and publicity methods, her happy musical memories, are the lighter touches in a serious account of her campaign for civic reform and suffrage. The book altogether is a valuable record of American social development.

Story of Wedding Printed on Linen

Roosevelt and Longworth Edition Shown Here.

An Ogden, Utah, newspaper, printed entirely on linen and bound with silk, containing a detailed account of the wedding of Alice Roosevelt and Nicholas Longworth, is on exhibition temporarily in the rare book room of the Library of Congress. The paper was published February 17, 1906.

The newspaper was brought to the library by a woman who had received it from C. M. Jackson, the editor. V. Volta Parma, director of the rare book room, said that never to his knowledge had another complete newspaper been printed on cloth. Only one copy of the Ogden paper was printed on linen.

The editor of the paper was a friend of both Theodore Roosevelt and Longworth.

Good Health Promoted By Correct Diet

Body Needs Building Foods, Fuel Foods and Regulating Foods Daily.

By Ruth Chambers.

The newer knowledge on the subject of nutrition has simplified the problem of the housewife who, not long ago, found herself enmeshed in caloric calculations until she considered hiring an expert accountant to work out menus for her family.

Under the earlier system, the value of foods was estimated according to the amount of energy they furnished, measured in calories. The discovery of vitamins, however, introduced another factor, for while vitamins do not contribute to the energy supply of the body, they have much to do with the utilization of proteins, fats, carbohydrates and salts.

The system of judging food by its caloric value has not been discontinued, but it has been made less cumbersome through the discovery that the exact calculation of food amounts is not necessary. The danger is not that a person may eat too much or too little of any one kind of food in a day but that the diet may be lacking in some essential nutriment over a long period of time.

Three Types of Food.

The important thing to keep in mind is that the body needs building foods, fuel foods and regulating foods in sufficient amount. Proteins are the building foods. Carbohydrates and fats provide most of the fuel. Then there must be foods to furnish minerals, vitamins and bulk.

Many menus may safely be built about the food which is the best supply of protein. That is meat. Meat also furnishes fat, mineral salts, vitamins, specifically B and G, also traces of A and D.

Meat should be supplemented with fruits, vegetables, especially leafy vegetables, starchy foods, milk and a small amount of sweets.

Food requirements vary according to the individual. A growing child or an adult engaged in hard work needs larger amounts of food than other members of the family. When there are children in the family, it is a safe rule to consider their needs first, since meals which meet their requirements will certainly be adequate for the adults.

Appetite a Safe Guide.

Appetite is usually a safe guide as to the amount of food needed, though it can not be relied upon in the selection of food. To illustrate, the appetite may be satisfied by sweets; a diet of bulky food, such as potatoes, may appease hunger. Yet neither of these foods alone would supply the body's needs and malnutrition would be the result of such restricted diet.

Faulty food habits are another cause of malnutrition and the housewife should see to it that her family does not fall into bad habits, such as eating between meals. Irregular or hurried meals are also detrimental to health.

Balanced Menus.

For variety in menus select fruit and vegetables in season. Meat, which is always in season, provides variety according to kind, cut and the countless ways of serving it.

Whole Wheat Delectable in Low Cost Dishes

Recipes Show How It Can Be Combined With Beef or Made Into Muffins; How to Make Scrapple Told.

In many parts of the country people are using whole wheat, either home grown or bought at the feed store, to help feed the family at low cost. Whole wheat is a very nutritious food, since it contains proteins, minerals and vitamins in addition to carbohydrates that are the chief constituents of white flour. It is recommended especially for vitamin B.

To save time and fuel in cooking, the wheat may be cracked, says the Bureau of Home Economics, which gives the recipes that follow. Perhaps the feed store will crack it. At home a coffee grinder or a meat grinder can be used. If the whole grain is used, soak it overnight and then boil gently for three or four hours to make it tender. The cracked wheat can be cooked in a shorter time and needs no soaking.

For the dish of beef and whole wheat in the picture, cooked whole wheat is used. Cracked or ground wheat is used for the scrapple and muffins.

Beef and Whole Wheat.

2 tablespoons fat
4 tablespoons chopped onion
1 pound of beef, diced
Flour
3 cups water
¼ of a chili pepper
Salt
2 cups of cooked whole wheat

Melt the fat and cook the onion a few minutes, then add the meat, which has been lightly rolled in flour. When the meat has browned somewhat add the water. Partly cover and simmer until the meat is tender. Stir in the chili pepper and the wheat and add salt to taste.

Whole Wheat Muffins.

2 cups finely ground whole wheat
3 teaspoons baking powder
3 tablespoons brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
¾ cup milk
2 tablespoons melted fat

Mix all the dry ingredients thoroughly. Beat the egg, add the milk and stir with the fat into the dry ingredients. Do not stir the batter any more than is necessary. Bake in greased muffin pans for 25 to 30 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees to 425 degrees F.). If desired omit the egg and increase the milk to 1 cup.

Scrapple.

Select 3 pounds of bony pieces of pork. Simmer in 3 quarts of water until the meat drops from the bone. Strain off the broth, remove the bones, taking care to get out all the tiny pieces, and chop the meat fine. There should be about 2 quarts of broth, and, if necessary, add water to make this quantity. Bring the broth to the boiling point, slowly stir in 3 cups of cracked wheat, and cook for about 30 minutes, stirring frequently. Add the chopped meat, salt and any other seasoning, such as a little sage or thyme. Pour the hot scrapple into bread pans which have been rinsed with cold water. Let stand until cold and firm, slice and brown slowly in a hot skillet. If the scrapple is rich with fat, no more fat is needed for frying.

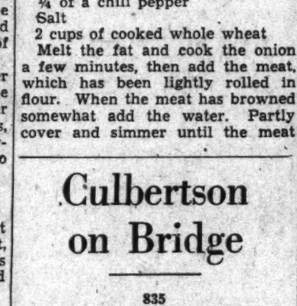
Concealing Strength.

"Concealing strength in a suit opened against a notrump contract with a view to discouraging a shift to another suit is one of the badges of expert play worn by very few," writes Mr. Carl S. Uhrig of Pittsfield, Mass., in submitting the hand below. He adds that one explanation of the fact that such concealment of strength is rare is that it violates in many cases the wooden principle of usually allowing the Opening trick to run to the closed hand. The following hand he gives as an illustration of the truth stated above:

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



South disliked Opening notrump bids, so, while having 5 honor-tricks, chose instead the Opening bid of one diamond. North responded with one notrump, and South carried the contract to three.

East's Opening lead was the fourth-best club, and after studying the Dummy, North decided that diamonds were obviously the best suit held by the opponents, but it was quite probable that the strength was so divided that they were unaware of that fact. A shift to diamonds obviously would stop game and such a shift was a distinct possibility in view of the now apparent flimsiness of South's Opening bid. If instead the opponents could be persuaded to continue clubs, there remained a chance that a low heart might be established for the ninth and game-going trick.

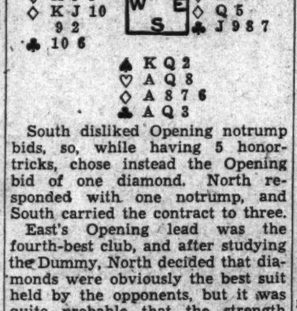
In accordance with this reasoning, South won the trick with the Queen of clubs, and West read the play as a finesse. Now the closed hand was entered by the lead of a low spade and a heart finesse was at once taken. West won with the King and returned another club, which was won in Dummy with the Ace. The Ace of hearts was then laid down, followed by the third round, which West won with the Knave. At this point it was too late for the defending side to shift to diamonds as the Declarer's thirteenth heart was established for the game-going trick, the King of clubs serving as an entry card.

If South had opened the bidding with one notrump and played the hand at a contract of three notrump, he too would have had his work cut out for him. Assume that West opens with the Knave of diamonds. East, of course, would be forced to overtake with the Queen and return the suit. South could afford to take the second round of diamonds as, if East had three diamonds, the opponents would be held to three tricks between them. The Declarer would now try to establish clubs and when this failed he would run three spade tricks and throw West in with the low diamond, forcing a lead up to the heart tenace at the end.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

If South is playing a contract of three notrump and West opens the diamond 5, upon which East plays the nine, what card should Declarer play provided West has doubled the game contract?

South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

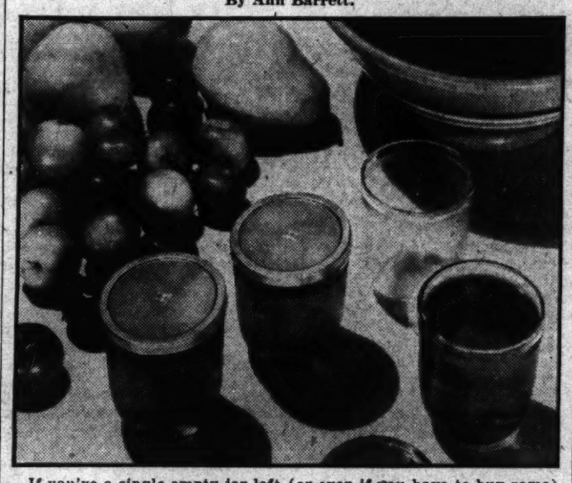
What's Good to Eat

Fruits Still in Market For Making Fine Jellies

By Ann Barrett.



If you've a single empty jar left (or even if you have to buy some) remember that crab apples and quinces and winter pears are in market—ready to be made up into what authoress Faith Baldwin considers the best jellies and jams of the whole season.

You'll want to make sure you have the hard variety of crab apples and pears, free from blemish. You'll want your quinces ripe—golden yellow and with a heavenly odor. (Like pears, they'll ripen if you let them stand in a cool place.) And you'll want to make sure to cut away the extra-hard bits around the quince core.

Quince Jelly.

Aside from that, here's how to proceed to make quince jelly: First wash, core and quarter 12 good sized quinces, taking care to get out all the seeds. Put the quinces into a preserving kettle with enough water to come nearly to top of fruit. Cover and cook slowly till soft. Then mash through a coarse sieve and place in jelly bag to drip. Next measure the juice. For each cup of it put ¾ cup sugar into another pan and heat it slowly in the oven. Boil the quince juice 20 minutes, then add heated sugar. Boil till mixture sheets off spoon (about 5 minutes). Then skim and pour into sterilized glasses. Seal with paraffin and let stand in sunny window.

Quince Honey.

Quince honey, another old-fashioned favorite, will give you a grand excuse (if you need one) for having hot biscuits, griddle cakes and waffles this winter. Here's how to make it: Pare, core and grate 5 large quinces. Then dissolve 5 pounds sugar in 2 cups boiling water. Add grated quince and cook 20 minutes. Pour into sterilized glasses and seal with paraffin.

Quince and Pears.

If you're a real quince fan, you'll want to stew up some quinces and pears (time-honored combination) for eating right now. Like this: Wash, peel, core and quarter enough pears to make 1 quart, and enough quinces to make 1 pint. Put 1 pound sugar on with 1 cup water, and let come to boil. Then drop in the quinces, cook partly soft, drop in the pears and simmer till tender.

Pickled Crab Apples.

Pickled crab apples (that make grand company for almost any kind of meat) go like this: Wash 6 pounds of good, large, unblemished crab apples. Remove stems and flower tips. Steam just until tender (taking care not to let them break or go mushy). Then put 1 quart mild vinegar into large kettle with 2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon each whole cloves, and allspice, and 1 small piece ginger root. (Tie spices in bag.) Add crab apples. Bring very gently to boiling point, then simmer 20 minutes. Seal in sterilized jars.

Mrs. Lindbergh's Poetry Wins Fame

Literary fame has come to Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, wife of the famous flier, it was learned recently. The aviation society of Paris, Les Ailes Prisees, has sponsored the translation of Mrs. Lindbergh's poem, "Remembrance," by Rene Nazelles. The American composer, Maury Madison, has set the poem to music.

The poem, which starts with the lines: "Your hands have curved about this bowl; your lips have felt a kiss upon the teacup's rim," was written by Mrs. Lindbergh before she married the transatlantic flier.

Mrs. Lindbergh, the former Anne Morrow, established a unique place in literary circles while she was still in Smith College. Many of her poems were written there, it is said. No new poem of hers has been made public since her marriage, although it is said by close friends that she still writes verse in between her air journeys about the world with her famous husband.

Casual Sport Clothes Take on "Slick" Air

Sports clothes with that casual English look have been made exciting by the substitution of fetching new wool jackets for the usual suede or leather ones. Plaid gabardines and cravenetted tweeds are distinctive when made hip length and lined with chamois. Natural and brown gabardines are slick for wear in the rain.

For those who are determined to stick to their old love, suede, a well-known maker of sports clothes is offering a nifty shirtwaist of that material, with tailored turnover collar and terse buttons.

Servantless Hostess Should Not Imitate

The woman who does not have a servant will find it much easier to entertain if she gives up all idea of imitating the services of a trained waitress. Even though she may not remove the plates one at a time, her dinner will be served smoothly if she keeps her table uncrowded.

Reserve supplies of relishes, bread, butter and water may be placed on a serving table, which may be improvised from a card table or tea cart. This makes it possible for the hostess to reach reserve supplies without rising.

Mother's Dreams Come True In Her Haven for City's Waifs

Down in "Hungry Lane" Mrs. Bennett Gives Aid to All in Need.

Billy Sunday has come to town—to oblige a gentle, little lady who lives in the gray dinginess of the mission district.

Down near police headquarters, in what the jobless call "hungry lane," she reigns over a 7-story building that is the fulfillment of a dream.

Children of all ages take refuge here—babies, their mothers in hospitals; little tots, their fathers taking "the cure;" older girls and boys, temporarily stranded.

Inside they find good food, comfortable beds and motherly care. Swings and slides and parallel bars in a playground on the roof. There is a chapel equipped with tiny pews where the littlest ones whisper their "Now I lay me down to sleep" every night to the woman whose dream made this reality.

She's "Mother Bennett."

She is Mrs. John S. Bennett, superintendent of the Children's Emergency Home, 624 Louisiana avenue. She is a practical interpreter of the century-old "Suffer little children to come unto Me!"

To the children she is known better as just "Mother Bennett"—a tiny, pretty woman with one of the kindest smiles.

Impossible to realize, as she talks in her cozy top-floor apartment, that 18 years ago she lived on this same spot—in a tumble-down building overrun by rats!

A native of Philadelphia and schooled at Bryn Mawr College, Mrs. Bennett first came to Washington in 1915, when her young husband was summoned to head the Central Union Mission, a rescue mission for men.

Recently bereft by death of their only child, a baby girl, it was bitter work starting life anew in a strange city, living in quarters a tramp would have scorned—two huge halls, once the reception rooms of a Civil War hostelry, then used as the first postoffice in Washington until condemned as a firetrap.

Rats Made Her Miserable.

"The rats were the worst!" Mrs. Bennett said.

"As I was moving in they told me the postoffice clerks used to hang their lunches on the chandelier to keep the rats from eating them!"

She laughed as she recalled how Mr. Bennett used to sleep with an iron bar beside the bed at night.

With burlap screens, painstakingly fashioned by hand, Mrs. Bennett curtained off the immense halls into eight rooms. She worked shoulder to shoulder with her husband in his mission, helping him clear its $30,000 debt, getting a new roof on the building. But even these duties were not enough to keep her from grieving for the little girl she had lost.

"One day," said Mrs. Bennett, "the phone rang. It was a woman wanting me to care for two baby girls. No other institution would take them—either due to regulations, such as age or vaccination requirements, or just being filled up. I though of my own baby and couldn't refuse."

Frightened Waifs.

She took them in with open arms, two frightened, bewildered little waifs—Viola and Virginia, aged 3 and 5. Their father was a drunkard, their mother penniless. Whenever Mr. Bennett came near at first, they cried and clung to her—terrified of any man!

"Thinking of my own baby and

caring for those two," said Mother Bennett, "gave me my dream—a children's emergency home to furnish immediate aid to the destitute child without waiting upon any of charity's usual technicalities."

That was the beginning. A little boy came next. And then others. The eight burlap-screened rooms, once so vast, were no longer large enough to house the ever-multiplying brood.

With just $150, Mrs. Bennett moved to a 12-room house at 458 C street, there founding the city's first Children's Emergency Home.

Success Comes.

Scrubbing, cooking, sewing, teaching the children, traveling miles for donations of furniture and money, Mother Bennett did it all. By 1924, $65,000 had been collected. The following year Mother Bennett interested Mrs. John J. Duff in her dream project. Mrs. Duff gave $100,000 for the erection of the present building, to be known as the Mary Farr Perry Memorial, in memory of her sister.

But little Mrs. Bennett does not consider her work done. She is the kind of person who never quits.

In 1931, she persuaded Phillips Lord, better known as Seth Parker, a personal friend, and Homer Rodeheaver, who was Billy Sunday's song leader, to put on a benefit concert under the auspices of Women's Guild at Constitution Hall. So successful was this that two more were given, only two weeks apart. They cleared $12,500 for the home.

Now a Summer Haven.

And now Mother Bennett has dreamed again—this time of a summer home for her brood—a place in the country to help convalescent tots get well and strong. And again her dream is materializing! Through the aid of Washington churches of all denominations that control the mission and home, a farm has been purchased at Brookville, Md. Mrs. Bennett is now working to develop that farm as a home for her children next summer.

This particular week, Mrs. Bennett claims with a happy smile that she is "busier than ever!" She is helping Mr. Bennett with plans for celebrating the forty-ninth anniversary of his Central Union Mission.

They are conducting a city-wide revival campaign for this week beginning at the National City Christian Church on Thomas Circle. Homer Rodeheaver will give his services again and Billy Sunday will be present.

Dozens of Hats, Yet None of Them Alike

Designers Give Women Inducement for Variety.

Clever people, these designers! They have given us such an intriguing variety of hats this season that only a woman with an iron will or a flat purse can resist buying them by the dozen.

She who yields to temptation and purchases 12 at one fell swoop may have each one strikingly different from the others and still remain in the front ranks of fashion.

A few of the many intriguing new types are the little choir boy cap, which exposes the forehead; the round cushion toque with a broad wing curling up from its crown; the pork pie hat, perched on the top of the head with a dashing tilt to the side.

Then there is the musical comedy felt, with low, square crown, the sides of which slope down to the tiny brim; the off-the-face model; the bonnet type; the hat with diadem or halo trimming; the captoque, which shows a trace of the Greek helmet.

Others include the "chapska," expressing Polish influence with its diamond-shaped flat tilted top; the cuff turban with manipulated crown, and the eternal beret, which has received brand-new treatment from a host of designers.

Entertaining Easy If System Prevails

It is possible to take care of a fairly large number of guests if buffet service is used. Important things to be remembered are: Food should be arranged in indivjdual portions on the serving plates when possible, so that guests will find it easy to serve themselves; hot foods should be kept hot; viands should be only those which may be combined on a single plate, with the exception of dessert.

One of the hostess' intimate friends may be asked to pour the coffee. Others may be chosen to replenish plates, pass the rolls and relishes, and exchange the main course for the dessert.

Conservation of Space Aids Bridge Luncheon

Since the bridge luncheon or supper is served frequently at card tables, it is desirable to select foods which may be arranged invitingly on the serving plates in the kitchen. Foods in individual molds are especially attractive for this type of service. The limited table space demands that as few dishes as possible be used. The salad may be served on the plate with the main course and, if the bread is buttered in the kitchen, bread-and-butter plates may be omitted.

The Family Marketer

Sweet Potatoes and Peanut Butter Among Today's Food Bargains.

The Marketer started out this glorious fall morning knowing she would find many succulent vegetables fresh from the various farms and truck gardens. And to prove optimism really pays in the end, she was not disappointed.

In a conveniently located downtown market, there are local sweet potatoes, symmetrical and without the dark spots which often make potatoes spoil quickly. These sell 3 pounds for 10 cents, or, as the manager of this neatly arranged stand said: "Just send me the people, we'll sell them things cheap."

Just inside the door of this same market we found one of the few places in Washington where freshly-made mayonnaise, at 25 cents a pint, and peanut butter, for 15 cents a pound, may be purchased. What is more appetizing and nutritious and economical—three important considerations these days—than toasted sandwiches made with freshly ground peanut butter and served with a glass of milk as the main part of a child's lunch?

The Marketer wandered on to a local chain store where prices are moderate and quality high. This week the store has on sale many varieties of a well-known brand of canned goods. Crushed pineapple, usually selling 2 cans for 15 cents, is a splendid buy at 5 cents a can, as is also tomato juice, that indispensable article in our diet, at 2 cans for 15 cents.

Apples Cheaper in Bulk.

In a Northeast market just off Florida avenue are large fresh heads of cauliflower for 10 to 15 cents each this week. Quite a comedown from its high price of last week! Okra, for 15 cents a pound, makes a pleasant change in the line of green vegetables. In this same established firm we find bushels and bushels of all kinds of apples, with Winesaps selling wholesale from $1 to $1.50 a bushel, or retail at 6 pounds for 25 cents. If your family is large, why not save 50 cents a bushel by buying these apples by the bushel instead of the pound?

Spinach, bursting with vitamins and selling for 5 cents a pound, keeps down the price of our dinner menu today.

In a stand adjoining this same Northeast market two enterprising brothers are conducting an excellent meat market. To show you what you have missed by not patronizing this shop before, last Saturday's specials included fresh shoulders at 10 cents a pound. When we realize a 6-pound shoulder will make three meals for a family of four this becomes an even better buy! Fitting in with today's low cost menu, this market sells smoked ham for 25 cents a pound. And not ordinary ham! This ham has been brought from the West and smoked by the brothers themselves!

Ham for Dinner.

Why not try a slice of this ham baked for tonight's dinner, following this recipe:

Place the pound slice of ham in a baking dish; sprinkle with 2 tablespoons of brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon of mustard and 3 whole cloves. Cover with milk and bake covered for 45 to 60 minutes in a moderate over.

And to carry home these inviting purchases, the Marketer found in the downtown market first mentioned sturdy market baskets. They were made by an old German family in Baltimore that has been in this business for 50 years. Besides market baskets, which are only 50 cents, there are laundry baskets at 50 cents and pet baskets—ingenious contraptions to take care of one's pet when traveling—which sell for $1.98.

Dinner for 4 at 63 cents.

Hays Opposes Producer; "Her Master's Voice" Warmly Received.

It is just barely possible that the withdrawal of the Hitler government of Germany from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference will serve a useful purpose to the American film industry.

That is to say, if Herr Hitler persists in alienating the allied powers, the makers and distributors of American motion pictures may be at least partially relieved of the embarrassment which a day or two ago seemed inevitably to confront them as a result of the refusal of an independent producer to abandon his plan to produce a film called "The Mad Dog of Europe," dealing with the Hitler regime.

The Motion Picture Producers ar I Distributors of America, the organization of which Will H. Hayes is president, was reported in Sabbath dispatches as having failed in its attempt to prevent the filming of "The Mad Dog."

Al Rosen, an independent producer, told the Hays representatives that he had enlisted the support of organized Jewry throughout the United States in making the picture. He is said to have exhibited a letter from Samuel Untermeyer, New York attorney, saying the latter had rejected overtures from President Hays of the M. P. P. D. A., to use his influence against the production of such a film. Rosen declared he was proceeding with the picture.

Recalls War Days.

Major producers, a majority of whom have theaters and distributing offices in Germany, protested against the film because of complications they believed it would inevitably cause.

The making of this picture and the impulses actuating its production, in so far as they have been revealed, are strongly reminiscent of the wartime depiction of the diabolical nature of Emperor Wilhelm II, set forth in a vicious celluloid document released when anti-German feeling was at its heighth under the illuminating title of "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin."

It was thought at the time that this alone would be enough to encompass the eternal alienation of Germany from any friendly inclination toward the American people.

The potentiality for evil of this particular film was proved by subsequent events to have been vastly overestimated. The same will probably be true in the case of "The Mad Dog of Europe."

The week beginning Friday, October 20, will mark the last of Gracie Barrie's eminently successful seven weeks as mistress of ceremonies at the Earle Theater—an assignment which she accepted upon the departure of Maxine Doyle for the West Coast on an ostensible vacation of six weeks' vacation, which developed into a seven-year contract with Charles R. Rogers, whose productions are released through Paramount. For her farewell week, Gracie will offer programs of songs consisting exclusively of request numbers. Requests should be sent to the manager of the Earle Theater at the earliest convenient time. Who will succeed to the post of mistress of ceremonies at the Earle has not as yet been decided. The Warner executives are still searching! Another like Maxine and Gracie will be difficult to find.

"Henry VIII" Previewed.

Those who first brought tidings of the many superior qualities of "The Private Life of Henry VIII," starring Charles Laughton, to the National Capital gave the impression that here was probably the greatest laughing picture of all time. United Artists executives were represented to have rolled in the aisles in hysterics at the first official preview of the film in New York. The thing was a riot.

It was a little surprising to many, therefore, when the "trailer" currently on view at RKO-Keith's Theater, announcing the imminence of this subject as a Keith attraction, failed to reveal any of those qualities which ordinarily are relied upon to throw an audience into convulsions. The trailer was, and is, distinctly and overpoweringly unfunny. So is "The Private Life of Henry VIII."

Not a Comedy.

This flat statement is made only after viewing the film at a private screening for the press yesterday morning. This flat statement, too, it may be said, should not be construed to mean that there is no humor in the picture. There is. But in the large view, it is no more a comedy than Cornelia Otis Skinner's sketches of "The Wives of Henry VIII," or, say, Ernst Lubitsch's tremendously moving picturization of the life of Du Barry, released in this country, as the vehicle that introduced Pola Negri to American audiences, under the title of "Passion."

"The Private Life of Henry VIII" is an authentic, serious, and at times, magnificent picturization of the marital career of a monarch who was by turns bestial and tender, jovial and cruel, vindictive and pliable, coarse and punctilious, compassionate and brutal. It treats its subject seriously and as respectfully as the character and temper of a contradictory personality will permit. There are times in the action when Henry VIII is every inch a king; there are others when he is every inch a lout. Never, however, is he reduced to the extremities of a farcical ruler.

Laughton's Fine Work.

Charles Laughton does an almost unbelievably fine piece of work in the role of Merry King Hal. It would be a splendid companion-piece to his widely lauded Nero in Cecil B. DeMille's "Sign of the Cross," did it not surpass that creation so astonishingly. The all-English supporting cast has been chosen with exceptional judgment. The production is such as effectually to lay to rest the claim that only in America are superb pictorial and photographic effects to be obtained. Many of the scenes in "The Private Life of Henry VIII" are extravagantly beautiful—all have been executed with minute attention to detail and the atmosphere of time and place.

"The Private Life of Henry VIII," in short, may be looked forward to by discriminating theatergoers as one of those infrequent masterpieces to be ranked with the best ever made—"The Birth of a Nation," "Cavalcade" and precious few more.

Even if you entertain any silly prejudice against "period costume pictures," do not let it keep you away from this one. Mr. Laughton will make you largely forget the bizarre trappings in which he executes one of his finest protrayals yet disclosed on the American screen.

Having, within the last few days, previewed both "I'm No Angel," Mae West's latest ribaldry, and "The Private Life of Henry VIII," the so-called critical fraternity this morning will have its collective brain put in a complete whirl by the Warner Brothers' executives, who are screening "Footlight Parade" in the Ambassador Theater at 11:30 for their especial befuddlement. After all, there is just so much kaleidoscope in every reviewer's cranium, beyond which things become merely a formless blur. We'll do our best, but if we have Henry VIII doing a cooch dance in a carnival sideshow, Mae West slapping Ann of Cleves around and Jimmy Cagney marrying Katherine Howard in these columns these next few days, you will understand that we have been previewed goofy!

The Fight Widens.

Sensational charges against Warner Bros., Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film companies were disclosed yesterday by two groups of screen creative talent, actors and writers, as they carried directly to President Roosevelt a fight against the proposed motion picture code.

Bitterly atacking the proposal to include star antiraiding and salary control board clauses in the code, the Screen Writers Guild and the newly organized Screen Actors Guild telegraphed the President from Hollywood they would resist "by every means at our command" any attempt by the "financial buccaneers," who have bankrupted the major companies," to "saddle" their sins on the creative talent.

Before the telegram was sent, it was read to a Sunday night mass meeting of about 1,000, who cheered as Eddie Cantor, comedian and president of the actors' organization, told them of the contents.

This code business started out as more or less of a private fight, but it begins to look now as if anybody could get in it!

Jean Harlow, platinum blonde actress of the cinema, and a Washington favorite ever since her week of personal appearances here at the Palace a year ago last April, who underwent an emergency appendicitis operation at the Good Samaritan Hospital in Los Angeles on Sunday, was reported yesterday by her physician to be resting easily and already showing signs of a quick recovery. The unexpected attack upset Miss Harlow's plans for a honeymoon trip to Honolulu with Harold G. Rosson, film cameraman, whom she married a few weeks ago in Yuma, Ariz.

A Thought.

That statement by an ardent supporter of the NRA that he would only sell tickets to his theater to persons who had signed the NRA pledge, by the way, sounds to us like a little of the old code liver "oil."

Philo Vance Comes Back to Life!

Not that he actually has been dead, except to the local screen, but now that the Metropolitan has decided to run something besides "Too Much Harmony," it is interesting to know that William Powell once again will impersonate the great Van Dine detective in "The Kennel Murder Case," opening Friday. He is assisted by Helen Vinson, shown above, and Mary Astor, two authentic beauties.

Mr. Twilling.....Frederick Perry
Phoebe.....Josephine Williams

Not since the days of the late Winchell Smith and Frank Bacon, or the more active intervals of Frank Craven's career of authorship or perhaps of the more prolific days of Miss Kummer herself, has the theater offered so amusing, so gay and so refreshing an evening at the play as was enjoyed by last night's charmed and enthusiastic audience in the National Theater.

In "Her Master's Voice," presented as the second of the season's subscription plays of the American Theater Society of Washington, Clare Kummer has concocted a feathery and frolicsome comedy, based upon the slenderest of plots, but alive with wit, instinct with a brittle and at times brilliant sapience and utterly free from the taint of suggestiveness or offensive modern "sophistication."

It is a brief excursion into a simple New Jersey home, presided over by an eminently unsuccessful husband and son-in-law, but dominated by a wealthy and dictatorial aunt, that begins on a quiet note and progresses through five cumulatively provocative scenes to culminate in a final devastating burst of sheer hilarity, that has been utilized for the groundwork of the fable.

Miss Kummer, with that rare insight into the commonplaces of life and its manner of living that makes an audience immediately en rapport with the figures of her story, has an unique faculty for imbuing the inconsequentialities with a genuine "air" and rendering the trivial things important. It is of such gossamer stuff that "Her Master's Voice" is fabricated. The familiar device of mistaken identity, whereby a scorned husband of a favorite niece is made the object of the rich aunt's reluctant affection, is the simple expedient upon which Miss Kummer relies to lend substance to her play. A chilly sleeping porch and a sudden substitution of fresh air sleepers are the seemingly innocent instruments of a climacteric situation that is no less than explosive in the sudden violence of its humor.

Only seven players in all are needed for the complete relation of the family history that comprises the foundation of a gentle comedy that demonstrates once more with what skill a gifted playwright can weave a spell with implements of the theater that are not complex. Of the seven, only five are of vital importance. These five have been selected with impeccable judgment.

That their recent appearances on the screen have done much to endear them to the theatergoing public was made plain by the warmth of the receptions accorded the principals upon their first entrances last evening, although, of course, no little of the enthusiasm was in the nature of a welcome back to the medium in which their fame was first achieved.

In Roland Young, Laura Hope Crews, Elizabeth Patterson and Frances Fuller, Miss Kummer must see the complete embodiment of the characters she had conceived for her merry little charade. Frederick Perry, sterling actor, appears advantageously in a role of slightly less conspicuous importance than these four and Frances Pierlot and Josephine Williams do ample justice to brief but amusing appearances as chauffeur and maid.

Mr. Young is intensely effective in the quiet drollery that has made him one of the cinema's most deft comedians and revives pleasant memories of similar successes before the celluloids won his interest. Miss Crews, as Aunt Min, the member of the family unharassed by the perplexities of poverty, here adapts to amusing uses the same qualities of obtrusive possessiveness that asserted themselves under less agreeable auspices in "The Silver Cord." Were she not so fascinatingly and obtusely amusing, one would wish earnestly to kill her for her meddling!

Miss Patterson, in the role of a submissive sister, is acidly humorous in the early scenes and wholly reconciled to a belated romance in the later movement of the play. Miss Fuller, as daughter, wife and niece of a family trio magnificently engaged in working at cross purposes toward an identical end, gives further proof that she is one of the contemporary stage's most engaging and most authoritative ingenues.

All of these gifted mimes, each with a particular flair for precisely such delicious comedy as he is afforded in his present congenial task, were applauded to the echo, as the saying goes, not once but numerously throughout the action of the two acts. At the conclusion of the final act the cast responded to seven curtain calls that could as well have been 17.

For an evening of unalloyed delight in the theater, "Her Master's Voice" is unreservedly recommended for the entire family, even if the ages range from 9 to 90!

"Khaki Shirts" Leader Ready To Face Court

Philadelphia, Oct. 16 (AP).—Four stars gleaming on each side of the collar of his jaunty uniform, Arthur J. Smith, commander in chief of the erstwhile khaki shirts, surrendered to the bluecoats today.

It was "Gen." Smith's first public appearance since early Thursday, when police reported he disappeared through a window of his "army's" headquarters.

Smith had announced "10,000,000 men" would march on Washington to make President Roosevelt the Nation's "dictator," and the Philadelphia delegation, impatient at an all-night delay, started to ask pointed questions.

Police Seize Weapons.

A moment after the commander in chief departed police squads descended on the general headquarters and two "brigade" headquarters. More than a score of men were arrested and 2 bushels of weapons seized. Police said the men had been planning to storm a National Guard armory to obtain ammunition for their march on the Capital.

One of Smith's "generals" swore out a warrant for him, charging fraudulent conversion of furniture, and it was on this charge the Khaki Shirt organizer surrendered. He was released for a hearing tomorrow.

The charge is a "lot of hot air," Smith explained as he adjusted his stick pin bearing a Fascist emblem and the word "commander. He seemed to enjoy the appearance until it was time to be photographed and fingerprinted.

Insists He's General.

Meanwhile, a score of his former shock troops gathered in detective headquarters to tell their grievances. They were advised to attend the hearing tomorrow.

Declining to answer questions concerning the pistols, blackjacks, knives, clubs and swords seized in the raids, Smith insisted he still was a commanding general and was going back to headquarters "as soon as I get through here."

Col. Crupper Quits State Customs Job

Rosslyn Man Surrenders Post to Successor.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—Maj. I. Walke Truxtun, who retired as city manager of Norfolk Saturday, took the oath of office as collector of customs for Virginia today and immediately assumed his new office.

Col. Joseph L. Crupper, retiring collector, turned over the reins to his successor. After an exchange of felicitations Col. Crupper prepared to return to his home in Rosslyn, Arlington County.

Low Punch

Resort Bars Him; Boxer to Wed Rich Widow.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Enzo Fiermonte, Italian boxer, returned today from Bermuda, where he was refused permission to land last Friday, and said he is to marry Mrs. Madeline Dick, widow of John Jacob Astor.

The boxer said he would leave in two weeks for Paris and that the marriage would take place there as soon as Mrs. Dick is discharged from a Bermuda hospital, where she is recovering from an injury received in a fall. Fiermonte said he will become a broker.

Fiermonte was indignant over the refusal of Bermuda authorities to permit him to land.

"If it costs me my last penny, I'll find out who is responsible," he said.

(Associated Press.)

Following is editorial comment on Germany's leaving league from leading American papers:

New York Times: In the presence of an almost insanely excited Germany, other nations should strive to maintain their poise * * *. It is true that the German leaders have been talking war and preparing for it, but it is clear they have no present intention of bringing on hostilities * * *. It was an amazing display of egomania by Chancellor Hitler.

New York Herald Tribune: If war is a possibility, it is not yet here. Germany has not yet openly begun to rearm, and the greater the domestic triumph which Chancellor Hitler achieves by his defiance, the less will be the domestic pressure upon him to do so.

New York World Telegram: The world is drifting toward war. What can America do now? We can only go on working for peace and joint disarmament, even if we fail. America does not want war. America is not causing war. If there is a European war, it will not be our war.

Davenport (Iowa) Democrat: While Hitler talks peace, at the same time there is in the tone of his remarks a desire for preparedness, not for peace but for war. There is also manifested a spirit of distrustfulness.

Vindication Seen for France.

Des Moines Register: Those powers (major allied powers) did not disarm downward toward the German status as the world was given to understand in 1920 they would do. * * * They are faced today, therefore, with a race tired of pandering and humilitation, unwilling to palaver and beg any longer, and prepared to risk the most desperate calamity against the restoration of national pride and economic equality.

Chciago Daily News: Germany again appears before the bar of international opinion as the bad boy who threatens the peace of Europe, while France which, until the triumph of Hitler, was almost universally censured for its militarism, appears vindicated in its intransigeance. * * * Perhaps Hitlerism would never have triumphed in Germany if France had shown more liberality toward the Socialist-Democratic elements which first tried to reconstruct the Reich.

Boston Traveler: Does Hitler want war? We doubt it. He wants to hold his job. His anti-Jewish campaign has brought upon him the withering scorn of the world. The German people sense the scorn. * * * Our guess is that Hitler hopes to revive his popularity by asking the voters of Germany to approve of his latest despairing gesture of defiance.

Christian Science Monitor: Withdrawal of Germany from the disarmament conference and her plan to leave the league should shock the nations—not excluding Germany—and help them to see where they are going. The nations are not on the path to peace. * * * Yet all are acting as if force were the only remedy.

Urges U. S. to Stay Clear.

Atlanta Constitution: With the hot-headed and irresponsible Hitler capitalizing to the fullest extent the opportunity to inflame the German people, it is impossible to know what will eventuate. * * * Only one sane course is open to the United States—to steer clear of any possible entanglement in another European mess.

Philadelphia Record: Hitler prepares to make war by talking peace. The olive branch is extended by a bloody hand. * * * The withdrawal, coupled with the announcement of a sham election and plebiscite—seem bound to stir the war spirit in Germany, to transmit that spirit to neighboring countries, to precipitate the gravest situation since 1914.

Cleveland News: Disarmament for the time being, has failed again. Concessions to Germany may win back her cooperation, and these should be made as far as possible.

Wichita Eagle—Germany has a lot of manpower, but is not implemented for war. France, as principal enforcer of the Versailles Treaty, has seen to that. There is a good deal of bluff to Hitler.

League Seen Tottering.

Los Angeles Times—As for the League of Nations, already weakened by the withdrawal of Japan, German departure threatens its collapse. The United Kingdom, France and Italy remain as its chief members; whether they can hold it together remains to be seen. But if the league goes, anything may happen.

Nasheville Tennessean — What course can now be followed to ward off war is a matter which must have the frantic attention of Europe's chancelleries. The future of the Saar Basin, the Treaty of Versailles, the four-power pact, the World Disarmament Conference and even the League of Nations itself seem in the balance.

Detroit News—The German contention is that other nations have had plenty of time to disarm and have not done so. Refusal to disarm is likely to lead, sooner or later, to war if the rest of the world will neither settle with Germany's claims nor make them impossible by disarming.

Sen. Gore Wants Death Penalty for Kidnaping

Oklahoma City, Oct. 16 (AP).—A bill making kidnaping a capital offense and regulating the sale of machine guns will be submitted to the next Congress by Senator T. P. Gore, he said here today.

Under the present Federal "Lindbergh law" the maximum punishment is life imprisonment.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Mary Jane Dane, who was 17 and weighed 200 pounds, killed herself today because girls called her "Fatty."

She had been missing from home since Saturday, when she intercepted a card from her school principal to her mother, asking why Mary Jane had been absent from school for a week.

Her mother said the girl probably had stayed away from classes rather than face her companions' joshing.

"She was a sensitive child," the mother said. "She used to confide to me that her heart was sore because girls called her 'Fatty.'"

Her body was found in a furnished room where she fired a bullet into her temple.

A note to her mother said: "I have caused you enough trouble. Now you are free of me. I am sorry. My coat is in the closet and my purse with my compact and eyeglasses and 8 cents. I love you mother."

U. S. Will Buy $15,000,000 Butter for Idle

Hopkins Plans Purchase of Beef, Also, to Aid Raise Food Prices.

The Government will buy $15,000,000 worth of butter and a substantial quantity of beef immediately, Harry L. Hopkins, Emergency Relief Administrator, announced yesterday, for the Nation's needy. The purchases, it was said, would relieve farmers of a large part of their surpluses.

The Agriculture Adjustment Administration plans to buy not less than 2,000,000 pounds of butter a week and not less than 9,000,000 pounds a month. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and members of the A. A. A. approved the plan at a conference with Hopkins.

The Treasury Department approved allocation of $10,000,000 with which to buy the butter. The additional $5,000,000 will be provided jointly from relief funds and processing taxes.

Cattle to Be Bought.

Hopkins' new relief corporation is preparing to buy range cattle of the "cutter" and "canner" grades. He said the plan is supported by the American National Livestock Association and other beef production organizations.

The butter-buying program will help to reduce a surplus estimated at 70,000,000 pounds. This surplus, according to A. A. A. officials, has been a big factor in keeping down prices.

"Needy persons on our relief rolls in many communities have not been supplied with sufficient meat and butter, while cattle, dairy and hog growers are suffering from poor markets," Hopkins said.

Average beef cattle prices have declined from $3.97 a 100 pounds in July to $3.79 in August and $3.61 in September.

Market Glutted.

Government officials attribute these declines largely to the burden on the market of the lower grades of cattle. The glut also has been aggravated by hesitancy of farmers in corn States to buy normal quantities of stocker and feeder cattle because of the precarious nature of the markets.

The movement of feeder cattle into the corn-belt States in July, August and September has been the smallest for this period in the last 15 years.

Hoover Foes Hit for Delays

Democrats Held Recovery Back, G. O. P. Women Told at Parley.

Cincinnati, Oct. 16 (AP).—Women nationally prominent in Republican politics were told today by Mrs. Robert L. Bacon, of New York, wife of a Republican representative, that Democratic members of the House and Senate retarded recovery during the Hoover administration.

The Democratic aim, she asserted, "seemed to be to throw as many monkey wrenches into the machinery as possible."

Federal Grant Sought to Rid South of Rats

Spreaders of Typhus Fever Cited in New Drive Asked by Dixie.

Uncle Sam as a modern Pied Piper will stalk through the South eradicating rats to halt a serious typhus fever epidemic, if the Public Works Administration grants $592,000 requested for the work.

More than 1,000 cases of the dread disease, spread over a far-flung area of 16 Southern and Southwestern States, have been reported so far this year, it was divulged yesterday by officials of the Public Health Service and the Biological Survey, who sought the appropriation.

Dr. John W. Brown, State health officer of Texas and an advocate of the eradication program, reported rats caused property damage exceeding $15,000,000 last year in his State alone.

Experts explained rats are hosts of fleas carrying the typhus fever germ. Plans call for their extermination by poisoning, trapping and starvation measures.

In addition to their menace from a health standpoint each rat—and there are as many of the rodents in the South as there are human beings—is responsible for an estimated crop and property loss of $2 a year.

Officials in requesting the Federal grant stressed the fact that several thousand men would be given employment, as poison would be deposited in every building, barn and dwelling in the area where the scourge is prevalent.

Seventy counties in Georgia, 21 in Alabama and 14 in Texas are most seriously effected. Cases in Georgia alone this year have totaled about 400, a large increase over last year.

Authorities reported the fever's mortality rate is only 2.6 per cent, but the victims suffer severely. One outstanding symptom is extreme depression, generally accompanied by a desire to die. The malady has been compared to sea sickness.

French War Chief Dies.

Paris, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Gen. Pouradier Duteil, former military governor of Lyons, died here today. He commanded the thirteenth region in the World War.

McKee Brands Anti-Semitism Charge "Libel"

Assails LaGuardia for the "Lowest Strategy" in Injecting Issue.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Charges of antisemitism raised against Joseph V. McKee, independent candidate for mayor, were denounced by him tonight as "an unfounded and scurrilous libel."

McKee, expressing abhorrence of bigotry, declared an erroneous construction had been placed upon an article he wrote 18 years ago for a Catholic publication.

He said a reading of the whole article, rather than of excerpts, "will convince any fair minded person that no direct or indirect attack on the Jewish race or religion was made or intended."

McKee, in his address, declared the injection of the religious issue into the campaign was "the lowest possible political strategy."

He had been called upon to explain the article of 1915 by Fiorello H. La Guardia, Fusion candidate, and Samuel Untermyer, mayor.

John H. McCooey, veteran Democratic leader of Brooklyn, staved off a threatened revolt against his leadership when the Kings County executive committee met and adjourned without taking any action on a movement to desert the Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate, in favor of McKee.

A plot to embarrass Mayor O'Brien politically by permitting "obscene shows" to flourish on Broadway was charged by License Commissioner Sidney S. Levine today against his predecessor, James F. Geragherty.

"Geragherty's laxness," said Levine, "was part of the Flynn-McKee plan to put Mayor O'Brien in a bad light."

Association Will Meet.

The Petworth Citizens Association will meet at 8 p. m. today at Barnard School auditorium, Fifth and Decatur streets northwest.

Brokers' Books Studied to Trip Tax Dodgers

Agents Seek Evidence of Income Frauds by Fictitious Sales.

Internal revenue agents yesterday began to gather data from brokers regarding stock transactions of clients whose income tax returns are to be checked for possible fraud.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering, issuing orders to this effect, said he felt that, due to the wide fluctuations of the market from 1929 to 1932, there probably were many transactions not reported properly in income tax returns.

"Because certain individuals have taken advantage of the opportunity through sales that have a fictitious character, as between husband and wife, or between a taxpayer and an individual in close relationship to him, to distort taxable income through claims of losses, it is particularly appropriate this year to invoke the authority conferred upon me by the acts of 1928 and 1932," Helvering said.

November 15 Is Deadline.

November 15 has been fixed by the commissioner as the deadline for the return by brokers of forms to be filled out with respect to the status of customers' accounts.

A fortnight ago, when the intention of the Internal Revenue Bureau to demand cooperation of brokerage houses in a drive against fraudulent tax returns was made known, Commissioner Helvering indicated an intention to be lenient with persons who inadvertently filed inaccurate returns. Yesterday's order went further, promising leniency for taxpayers who now make voluntary disclosures of profits not hitherto reported.

Brokerage houses were advised on October 4 of the commissioner's impending order, which, as issued yesterday, read:

"The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is releasing to field offices of the bureau instructions directing their cooperation with brokers and other agents of taxpayers to the result that the Government may obtain information with respect to profits and losses of the years 1929 to 1932.

Agree on Procedure.

"The commissioner and representatives of the brokers have agreed upon a plan which it is believed will impose the least possible burden upon the latter, and appropriate forms have been prepared for their use in furnishing the information.

"The revenue acts of 1928 and 1932 authorize the commissioner to call upon every person doing business as a broker to render correct returns showing the names of customers for whom such person has transacted business, with such details as to profits, losses or other information as will enable the commissioner to determine whether all income tax due on profits or gains has been paid.

Leniency Indicated.

"In prior releases the commissioner has indicated the bureau would be inclined, where voluntary disclosures on claimed losses which had no basis in fact were made, to be lenient in its attitude in the imposition of penalties and in appropriate cases, while the facts in the matter might justify recommendation for criminal prosecution, to refrain from such recommendations where such action appeared justified.

"Revenue agents are being instructed to cooperate with brokers and other representatives of taxpayers to the fullest extent in order that the returns may be filed on or before November 15, 1933."

Dickerson Loses Wife Death Plea

U. S. Court Denies Review of Life Sentence.

Howard C. Dickerson, alias Wimbley, yesterday lost his last chance to escape a sentence of life imprisonment for the murder of his wife, Elizabeth Wimbley, two years ago.

The United States Supreme Court denied a review of a decision by the District Court of Appeals upholding conviction of Dickerson and John M. Crowder. Dickerson had protested that a confession by Crowder, admitted in trial court, was not made in his presence. The Government insisted the confession was read to him by police.

Mrs. Wimbley and her daughter by a previous marriage were drowned in September, 1931, while in a canoe in the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal. They had gone on an outing with Dickerson and Crowder. A short while before the drowning, Dickerson had taken out a $10,000 accident insurance policy on his wife.

Injured Fireman Forgets Accident

Patient Is Believed Victim of Hit-Run Driver.

Apparently the victim of a hit-and-run driver, Firemen Cornelius Ridley, 33, attached to No. 25 Engine Company, lay seriously injured in Emergency Hospital last night, unable to tell police his movements after 5 p. m. yesterday.

Ridley said he remembered nothing after leaving his home, 3014 Ninth street southeast, en route to work. Near Alabama avenue and Benning road northeast his machine was overturned by a speeding sedan.

He was taken to the hospital by a friend, George Smith, of 1600 West Virginia avenue northeast. Smith said Ridley was brought to his home after being injured.

New Agent Is Injected in Blood to Restore Consciousness.

Boston, Oct. 16 (AP).—A recall acid made in inject into the blood to restore consciousness quickly to those who slip too far under anesthetics is under experiment at the Harvard Dental School.

This new phase of safety in surgery was announced today at a celebration of one of the greatest surgical discoveries of all time, the first use of ether which electrified the medical world. The celebration was at the Massachusetts General Hospital, where 87 years ago today W. T. G. Morton, Boston dentist, demonstrated this use of ether.

The name of the recall acid was not disclosed. The effect is to stimulate respiration. Announcement of the expirement was made by Dr. Leroy M. S. Miner, dean of the Harvard Dental School, while delivering the "ether day" address.

British Leader Raps Germany

Arms Parley Withdrawal Ill-Advised, Asserts Chamberlain.

Nottingham, England, Oct. 16 (AP). Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, tonight referred to Germany's departure from the League of Nations and the arms conference as "precipitate and ill-judged."

The statement, made in a speech, inspired prolonged cheering.

Speaking of efforts to restore international trade, Mr. Chamberlain declared "nothing could have contributed more powerfully than adoption of a disarmament convention such as that proposed by the British foreign secretary at Geneva.

"We must therefore deeply regret the action of the German government, which seems to be both precipitate and ill-judged because of the proposals made by Sir John Simon, which received general support not only by France but also the United States and Italy."

These proposals, the chancellor said, "were specifically designed to give Germany complete equality of treatment within a reasonable period.

"I am not going to say more tonight, but I ask you to recall the saying of the late Field Marshal Haig that 'No news is ever so good or so bad as it seems at first.'"

Duncan Sought To Start Term For Fund Theft

Former Arlington County Clerk Dodges Court; Warrant Out.

An order for the arrest of William H. Duncan, former county clerk of Arlington County, was issued last night after he failed to appear before the Circuit Court of the county for resentence on a charge of misappropriating public funds.

Duncan, convicted last year and sentenced to three years' imprisonment, appealed. His appeal was denied and he was ordered into court yesterday for final sentence.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy issued a capias for Duncan's arrest, giving the order to Sheriff Howard B. Fields. A motion for forfeiture of Duncan's $5,000 bond was denied.

Duncan was convicted of misusing State highway funds, totaling $7,815. There are two indictments on which he has not been tried, one charging misuse of $66,761 and the other charging misuse of $4,450.

Kathryn Kelly, Mother Moved

Oklahoma City, Oct. 16 (AP).—Mrs. Kathryn Kelly, wife of George (Machine Gun) Kelly, and her mother, Mrs. R. G. Shannon, both sentenced to life imprisonment in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping, were removed from the county jail here today.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 16 (AP).—The Shelby County penal farm was instructed tonight to prepare quarters for Mrs. R. G. Shannon, mother of Kathryn Kelly.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Ornamentation—Its Drawbacks.

Dr. L. Hollander, who reports some cases of skin rash due to the use of hair waving compound gives the following as the kind of cosmetic to be suspected when the rash is of the appearance and location listed:

If a rash is pale pink with fine blisters, and if it appears on skin where creams have been used, these cosmetics should be investigated as the probable cause. The finer the texture of the skin and the more vigorous the rubbing the greater the danger of a cream rash.

In a properly located rash that is reddish-bluish in appearance the probable cause is face powder or rouge. A dry, scaling, red eruption around the mouth is apt to be caused by the chemicals in a tooth powder, paste or wash. On such eruptions there are sometimes small blisters. All eruptions around the lips are liable to cause cracks or fissures which run at right angles to the free border of the lips. In the case of tooth powder rash these cracks are quite persistent, but they heal quickly when use of the preparation is stopped.

Hair lotions, tonics, and dyes produce redness and swelling of the scalp itself, the skin of the brows, and the eyelids. There may be small blisters near the hair line and on the ears. An eruption due to a tonic is apt to come quickly and cause more swelling and itching. One due to a dye is more liable to come slowly and to cause breaks in the skin and blisters, and to result in pustules and sores.

Cracks behind the ears are apt to be due to dyes used on the hair or clothing and to hair tonics.

If an eruption first appears on a part of the body that has been exposed to sunlight, and if it comes in large, red, swollen placques and turns brown after being red, a perfume dermatitis should be suspected. The rash due to sunburn is apt to be more easily spread over the suspected area, to be more sore, more like an erysipelas, and to be almost free from itching. Scaling is suggestive of a sunburn not aided by perfume.

Nail cosmetics cause some inflammation of the skin near the root, and sometimes peeling of the finger tips.

An eruption which itches out of all reason is apt to be due to hives or uticaria, to some local poison, such as poison ivy or other poisonous plant, or to the use of cosmetics. The eruptions due to cosmetics may be caused by bedding and pillows that have been used by a person who has beautified himself. (The word himself is chosen with deliberation.) There are other ways in which a person can get his cosmetic rash by proxy.

Keeping Water Down.

S. S. writes: I have read the letter from Mrs. D. N. R., who can not drink water between meals without becoming nauseated. I had the same trouble and cured myself as follows: On awakening I take a full glass of water and go back to bed for 15 minutes. The water stays down.

Listen to Warning.

M. E. A. writes: What causes hiccoughs which last about 20 minutes after meals? I am 13 years old and tall and slim for my age.

Reply.

Your stomach is on the same line as your hiccough station. Your stomach is telephoning that you eat too fast, do not chew your food enough, eat too much or eat the wrong foods. Listen to the bell.

New Women's Chief Installed By Democrats

First Lady and Farley Pay Tribute to "Molly" Dewson.

The Democratic national committee yesterday installed a new director of women's activities—Miss Mary Dewson, of New York, known more informally "Molly" to women workers in the Roosevelt presidential campaign.

Escorted to Democratic headquarters by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Miss Dewson was welcomed by Postmaster General Farley.

He greeted her as "Molly" and told her the Democratic party was "very fortunate" to have her services.

Miss Dewson, who was in charge of women's activities in the Roosevelt campaign both before and after the Democratic convention, was installed in the post formerly held by Nellie Tayloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming.

Mrs. Roosevelt, friend of the new director and associated with her in suffrage and Consumers' League activities, suggested, jokingly, that Farley give Miss Dewson an engrossed card bearing the motto of campaign workers, "Be calm, cool and collected."

Dressed in an autumn frock of dark green and a black hat, Miss Dewson lived up to the motto. She outlined to reporters her plans for strengthening the party's woman vote. She said she believed more Democratic votes can be gained among women than among men.

D.C. Tags Bring Arrest of 20

Twenty motorists were arrested on Rhode Island avenue in Mount Rainier at the District line yesterday by State Policemen E. R. Quandt and C. S. Jones for driving automobiles with District license tags although they reside in Maryland.

All but two appeared last night for preliminary hearings before Justice of the Peace Robert E. Joyce. They were instructed to appear in Hyattsville Police Court today at 1 p. m.

Those appearing last night were F. Tolbert, Brentwood; James H. Palmer, Mount Rainier; W. C. Hall, Beltsville; J. W. Laughlin, Riverdale; S. M. Murphy, Edmonston; Robert Lansdowne, Brentwood, David Schafer, Berwyn; J. E. Few, Cottage City; Leo Williams, Berwyn; Mack Kahn, Bladensburg; E. C. Hammerly, Landover; R. J. Valentine, J. T. Olliver and J. R. Seaton, Mount Rainier; Leo A. Young, Edmonston, Roy P. Turpin and Daniel Webster, Hyattsville; Wade Bolt, Riverdale; Loring Wood, Hollywood; Vernon Marstell, Mount Rainier.

The two cited motorists who failed to appear were Ernest Humphrey, Takoma Park, and Phawthan Diggs, Mount Rainier.

Ritchie to Attend Repeal Convention

Maryland Governor Cuts His Vacation Short.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 16 (Spl.).—Much refreshed by a ten-day vacation at Hot Springs, Va., Gov. Ritchie returned to his executive offices here today.

He cut short his visit to attend the constitutional convention here Thursday when delegates chosen at the recent special election will cast the State's vote for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Gov. Ritchie announced he would defer final action on the death sentence of Euel Lee until after Thursday, when he will hear a final plea by Bernard Ades, counsel for the condemned Negro, convicted nearly two years ago of the murder of Greene K. Davis, Worcester County business man, and three of Davis' family.

States Speed 400 Millions To Road Work

Several Governors Ask More Funds Be Allocated.

Reports from governors of the various States to the Public Works Board revealed yesterday that all contracts for highway construction under the $400,000,000 Federal allotment will have been awarded by January 1. The greater portion of the awards will be let in 30 days.

Every governor reporting assured Secretary Ickes, administrator of public works, that speed in initiating work is being sought.

Additional funds were requested by several governors. These requests were made on the ground that a large portion of the money goes into jobs and wages, providing means to combat unemployment.

In some instances the Public Works Administration has allotted additional funds on a 70-30 per cent basis. This system provides a 70 per cent loan and a 30 per cent grant.

In some States bids have been advertised or contracts let for as much as 75 per cent of their highway allotments.

Of the $1,918,469 allotted to the District of Columbia on June 23, 1933, the etsimated cost of projects of all classes approved to October 5 was $1,463,000. This sum was for 12 projects.

Central Labor Union Votes German Boycott

Supporting similar action taken at the recent A. F. of L. convention, the Central Labor Union last night adopted a resolution to boycott German-made goods.

Another organization was added to the number studying the District's status upon repeal of the eighteenth amendment when the labor group recommended for committee action a resolution to that end. Plans were announced for a mass meeting Thursday night at Typographical Temple, 423 G street northwest, at which cooperation of trade unions with the NRA will be discussed.

Billy Sunday Here; Speaks Tonight

Will Address Four Revival Mass Meetings.

The Rev. Billy Sunday arrived in Washington yesterday to conduct a revival.

Accompanied by his wife, Sunday went to the Mayflower Hotel. He spoke over Station WOL last night and then went to visit Supt. and Mrs. John S. Bennett of the Central Union Mission, under whose auspices tonight he will open the first of his revival meetings in the National City Christian Church. He will address four mass meetings there. No tickets will be necessary.

The last time Sunday was in Washington was during the Coolidge administration, when he and Mrs. Sunday were dinner guests of the President. His forthcoming revival will be the largest he has undertaken in the Capital with the exception of the memorable meetings of 1918.

Central Union Mission week will be climaxed with an anniversary banquet Saturday night at the Mayflower, and there will be three meetings the following Sunday. Homer Rodeheaver, Sunday's song leader, will arrive toward the end of the week.

Johnson Arraigned In Holdup Attempt

Paroled Convict Chooses to Stand Trial.

Arraigned in the Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday, Henry Johnson, alias Henry Hamilton, pleaded not guilty to attempting to rob Mrs. Maurine Weir, cashier of the State Loan Co. of Mount Rainier.

The holdup attempt occurred October 4. Johnson, a paroled Missouri convict, was captured when Mrs. Weir's screams attracted Chief of Police Eugene Plummer. He has been indicted.

Max Grossman, a former California convict, pleaded not guilty to breaking in the house of Robert L. Smith, in Seat Pleasant, Md. Leonard Huer, Mitchellville, Md., pleaded not gulty to the theft of antiques from Dr. Radford Brown, of Washington.

NRA Ad Code Hits "Shopping Papers"

Wage and Hour Clauses Bring Protests.

Publications containing only advertisements and which are distributed by merchants as "shopping news" to avoid expense of newspaper advertising are having hard sledding under the NRA proposed advertising code.

Because of the wage and hour restrictions in the code, which was debated at a hearing yesterday, Woodward Clum, publisher of the Los Angeles Shopping News, asserted he would be unable to continue employing carrier boys, from 12 to 17 years old.

George P. Jensen, of Chicago, secretary of the House-to-House Distributing Association, testified he could not compete with shopping newspapers. Because they employ boys, they were able to underbid him the last two weeks and win contracts which took work from 1,500 men, he said.

Stamp Group Meets Tonight.

Walter Mac Peek will address a meeting of Branch 5, Society of Philatelic Americans, tonight at 1900 R street northwest. He will speak of the philatelic activities of the Boy Scouts of America. An auction sale of stamps will be held.

Lawmaker Heads "Let's Go" Drive

A plaque bearing the portrait of President Roosevelt and the words, "Let's Go," will be the emblem of a national "support the President" campaign by the National Let's Go Roosevelt Committee organized by Representative Virginia Ellis Jenckes, Indiana. Two thousand NRA speakers will assist in the campaign. Mrs. Jenckes is shown with the plaque, designed by W. Clark Noble.

Scientists Dazzle With Ciphers In Telling Size of Universe

Between 76 Quintillions and 1 Septillion Miles Across, Two Say.

(Associated Press.)

How big is the universe?

Anywhere from 76 quintillion (76,000,000,000,000,000,000) miles to more than one septillion (1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000) miles across. These are the largest and smallest estimates in official figures issued yesterday by the Smithsonian Institution.

No one knows for sure that the size of the universe can be measured at all, for it may be infinite in extent, but two famous astronomers believe the theory of relativity shows it has limits and have undertaken to calculate its size.

These estimates of the size of the universe are part of the Smithsonian physical tables, issued by the institution as a standard reference book for scientists. This year's issue is the first in 14 years.

Whatever the size of the universe may be, its countless stars, suns and worlds are built up out of electrons and protons, the building stones of atoms, totaling 10,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000.

This is the estimate of Sir Arthur Eddington, noted British astronomer, included in the tables.

Mrs. Roosevelt Sees New Era

Speaking at Y. W. C. A., She Predicts Better Order of Events on Way.

The coming of a new order of civilization was forecast by Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt last night in a talk at the annual fall setting-up conference of the Y. W. C. A. in the association's building at Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

"Out of all our troubles and all the sorrows we have seen around us, there is going to come a new order that will mean a definite change in the future," she said. "I am most anxious to see such organizations as yours think not only of the adjustments that must be made to tide us over our present difficulties. I want you to build for the future."

She said she thought the Y. W. C. A. had "met in a remarkable way the crisis that has been facing us."

Mrs. Roosevelt was gowned in black velvet with a short train and brocade bodice. Her evening wrap of rich brocade was collared with brown fur.

Before her arrival a playlet was given by girl reserves and messages were brought by Miss Elizabeth Eastman, of New York, chairman of the national Y. W. C. A. board, and Miss Bertha Pabst for the Community Chest.

U. S. "Leaning" Toward Soviet

(Associated Press.)

Representative Sirovich (Democrat), New York, recently returned from a trip to Russia, reported his observations to President Roosevelt yesterday and predicted afterward the United States would recognize the Soviet regime within a month.

Sirovich said the President appeared much interested in the question. He said the President's name was cheered in Leningrad when he mentioned it in a speech.

Another recent visitor to Europe—Senator Reynolds (Democrat), North Carolina—told newspapermen yesterday he thought Russia was a "remarkable" country but he was not ready to say whether he would vote for recognition.

Reynolds said he was impressed with Russian industry, shipping and agriculture. Apparently, he said, there is no unemployment problem there.

Lincoln Park Citizens Pick Officers; 1 Retires

With the exception of William P. Carlin, who retired after 14 years as secretary, all officials were reelected. John P. Kern was retained as president; Alfred Calvert, vice president; B. Frank Campbell, treasurer, and Helene D. Reed, secretary.

A membership drive, in charge of C. W. Gwinn, director of publicity, was launched with the admittance of eight new members.

Roosevelt Bank Plan Wins Traylor's Praise

Chicago, Oct. 16 (AP).—President Roosevelt's plan to thaw closed banks drew praise today from Melvin A. Traylor, head of the First National Bank, who said it would be a powerful tonic to business.

The Federal Government's action, Traylor estimated, would release 60 per cent or more of deposits frozen in closed banks.

President's Mother Visits Lee Shrine, Sleeps in Cabin

Mrs. James Roosevelt, on Virginia Tour, Attends Historic Church.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 16 (Spl.).—Mrs. James Roosevelt yesterday visited the birthplace of Robert E. Lee, leader of the Confederacy, at Stratford. During her visit the mother of President Franklin D. Roosevelt went to the same Yeconico church where the first President's mother worshipped two centuries ago.

Mrs. Roosevelt was offered the choice of a bed in the luxurious room where Lee was born or the rough bed of an old log cabin. Declaring she had never slept in a log cabin, she spent the night in this bare pioneer structure with Mrs. Tom Felter, of Washington.

Mrs. Edward Guest Gibson, director of the Maryland Chapter of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, while visiting the Roosevelts at Camp Belle, Me., last summer, extended to Mrs. Roosevelt an invitation to visit Stratford as the foundation's guest at its annual director's council this October.

Mrs. Roosevelt included also in her visit to Virginia a tour of the historic shrines of Fredericksburg.

Forgery, Narcotics Case Held for Federal Jury

Plasant A. Poling, 39, Falls Church, Va., charged with forgery and possession of narcotics, was bound over to the grand jury yesterday on $1,000 bond at a hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Roads Delay Buying Rails On U. S. Loans

Balking by Steel Firms on Price Cuts Is Seen as Obstacle.

President Roosevelt's attempt to prime the basic industries into activity by lending railroads an initial $25,000,000 to purchase steel rails apparently was held up last night upon a question of price.

Although the proposal is two weeks old, the administration was without word that the four companies producing heavy rails were coming forward soon with bids. Officials generally assumed that the White House demand for trimmed prices was responsible.

C. V. McKaig, vice president of the Carnegie Steel Co., A U. S. Steel Corporation subsidiary, in Pittsburgh said "$40 a ton is about right."

However, some of the roads stipulated that the price should not be above $35 a ton.

Whether President Roosevelt or the steel companies will make the next move, officials were not inclined to guess.

Jones Tells New Bank Aid Program

can be distributed will be governed by the appraisal of the actual assets of each closed bank.

"The plan of operation will be to select a chairman of the deposit liquidation committee in each Federal reserve district, this chairman and his committee assuming responsibility for appraising and certifying as to the value of the assets of banks in his district that have closed since January 1, 1933.

"It will be suggested to this chairman that he use the facilities of the R. F. C. agency, including office space and such clerks and examiners as in his opinion will enable him to expeditiously do the work.

"He will have the authority to appoint such committee or committees as he wishes, both at the home office of the Federal reserve district and branches thereof, as well as such other sections of the district as would seem advisable.

"It will be the duty of these committees, acting under their chairman, to contact State banking commissioners and the Comptroller of the Currency, urging that they have their receivers make application for loans to the R. F. C. with as little delay as possible.

"When applications are in form, they should be forwarded to C. B. Merriam, director of the R. F. C. and head of the Deposit Liquidation Board, Washington, for consideration by the Deposit Liquidation Board, named by the President, and approval by the directors of the R. F. C.

"As stated in the President's announcement, it will be the purpose to lead up to the reasonable liquidating value of the collateral, reserving what seems to be necessary to provide for taxes, interest and expenses during the period of liquidation. The board feels that a period of five years should be set as the probable period for orderly liquidation."

The Treasury had hoped to avoid the delays inherent in such appraisals as are contemplated. Treasury estimates of the probable amounts to be freed under the Jones plan are far less than $1,000,000,000.

Many Now Evaluated.

The Comptroller of the Treasury already has on file appraisals of the assets of the 778 national banks which remain unlicensed. These banks have deposits of $671,000,000. The appraisals of these banks are now to be reexamined. Until then, it is impossible to judge how much the R. F. C. liquidating board will advance, but Treasury experts are of the opinion that the amount will be comparatively small.

Chairman Jones explained yesterday that assets will be reappraised in the light of changed conditions, but not with an eye to liberalizing previous rules of value.

The R. F. C. liquidating board will then lend receivers and conservators of national banks up to 50 per cent of a closed bank's deposits when and if the appraisal of assets justifies this much. More or less will be advanced, depending upon the asset values.

Will Supplant Board.

The Jones plan also provides that the Deposit Insurance Corporation will take over the functions of the liquidating board after January 1. No provision is made under the Jones program for assisting nonmember banks, now open, which may need aid to qualify for Federal deposit guarantee by January 1. The Treasury's original program embraced provision for these banks.

Until appraisals are made of frozen assets in closed nonmember banks, it is likewise impossible to estimate how much of the deposits in these banks will be freed under the Jones plan.

Thus while the program now adopted differs materially from the plans indorsed at the Treasury, in both scope and speed, it promises an acceleration of the processes already in operation.

Substitute Mailmen Find U. S. Lenient

Not Required to Buy New Uniforms for Week.

Substitute letter carriers whose earnings have been reduced materially no longer will be required to furinsh themselves with new uniforms, First Assistant Postmaster General Joseph C. O'Mahoney announced yesterday.

Suitable helmets, caps or hats must be furinshed, however. The new uniform ruling applies only in cases where "hardships would be worked by the old rule on replacements."

Under the Federal economy act, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, clerks assigned to carrier duties are not required to furinsh uniforms. If they remain on duty a month or more, however, they must furnish caps and badges.

Stocks Tumble 5.3 Points on Selling Rush

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Stocks and commodities tumbled sharply as long positions were liquidated.

For shares, the average net loss of 5.3 points in the Standard-Statistics-Associated Press composite was the largest since July 21, bringing the closing figure to 73.1; it was necessary to go as far back as late May for a lower level.

Volume increased to 2,666,432 shares on several selling flurries, the most intensive of which came in the last hour after wheat had swooped down the allowable limit of 5 cents a bushel. Cotton was off a couple of dollars a bale, while minor staples and bonds sagged.

European Affairs Blamed.

The confused state of European affairs was held responsible for a wide upturn in dollar exchange during the morning, a movement which presumably influenced the trend of other markets.

The overseas situation brought a lively demand for dollars, both from covering shorts and from those who sought to convert funds into our currency, thus revesing the course of action they had followed not so long ago.

How much Europe's difficulties, in themselves, affected the direction of stock and commodity prices was a matter of conjecture; some brokerage houses reported that the buying from abroad had been better than the selling. The day's news bearing on the international picture added little or nothing to what had been known on Saturday; in fact, second thoughts in that connection seemed more temperate.

Stocks Uniformly Weak.

Stocks were uniformly weak, especially on the late reaction which uncovered many stop loss orders and brought liquidation from other sources.

U. S. steel flopped under 40 and was down about 4 points net, similar losses being recorded by Du Pont, Celanese, New York Central and American Can.

Allied Chemical, National Distillers and Case were off around 6, while Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Harvester, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and American Commercial Alcohol yielded in the neighborhood of 3. Union Pacific's net loss was 5. American Telephone's decline was more moderate; the Bell System gained installations last month for the first time in 3 years and the earnings statement disclosed some improvement.

Dollar Advances Early.

The dollar did most of its advancing during the morning, later dealings witnessing a retracement of ground gained. French francs at one time were some 17 points lower; then closed with a loss of only a point. Sterling, which had been down 10½ cents at $4.46¾, finished at $4.54½, off 2¾ cents.

Although week-end surveys were inclined to view the immediate outlook with some degree of uncertainty, they spoke rather hopefully on the longer term. Speculative holdings of securities, it is pointed out, have been sharply reduced by recent market shadedowns and the probability that more attention will now be paid to such old-fashioned factors as corporate earnings is being stressed in some quartres.

Business is represented as making progress in its necessary adjustments to NRA, although too much is not being expected of fourth quarter results. Release of frozen bank deposits, it is believed, should help purchasing power.

Treasury Notes and Greenbacks

By Ralph West Robey.

With customary promptness some "high authority" in the administration has moved to kill the belief, engendered by the bond conversion plan of last week, that there is to be a quick stabilization of our currency. According to him—he was not named in the copyrighted Associated Press dispatch—the Government believes prices still are too low to consider stabilization at this time. Further, and far more important, he gives it as the view of the administration that an issue of noninterest-bearing Treasury notes of small denominations would not constitute "greenback inflation," and consequently, by implication, would be a perfectly sound method for raising prices.

Since this "high authority" is not named, it is impossible to appraise the accuracy of his interpretation of what the administration really thinks. It is possible he merely is one of the "soft money" advocates in the Government who is airing his own views and claiming that the Government agrees with him. If this is not the case, or that is, if his interpretation is correct, the outlook on monetary policy is far more serious than is generally believed. It means, in plain terms, that the administration is flirting with currency inflation—the only reservation being that it is to be called by some other name.

Provision to Be Made in Budget for Retirement.

This other name is justified, as this interpreter of administration views sees it, because in the case of such noninterest-bearing Treasury notes there would be a provision made in the budget for their gradual retirement. This, according to him, would make their issuance merely the substitution of one kind of Government obligation for another—the substitution of an obligation which costs us nothing for one upon which interest must be paid year after year.

If one will give the subject a little thought, however, it must be evident that such a distinction is meaningless. Suppose, for example, that such notes were issued and it was agreed that they should be retired at the rate of 4 per cent a year. Obviously we would have little reason to believe that such an agreement would be lived up to. On the contrary, there would be strong arguments for believing just the reverse, for retirement would necessitate the imposition of enough taxes to yield a surplus over the expense of the Government and since having the notes outstanding would be costing us nothing, it may be assumed Congress would hesitate to pass the essential legislation.

Distinction Made on Plans for Retirement Is Significant.

The emphasis placed upon such a budgetary provision for retirement making a legitimate basis of distinction between ordinary greenbacks and noninterest-bearing Treasury notes of small denomination, however, is important. It means, in the first place, a recognition that otherwise the two are identical. This, of course, is true, because greenbacks or printing press money are nothing more nor less than noninterest-bearing Treasury notes.

Secondly, it indicates that in the mind of this spokesman for the administration greenbacks are viewed as notes which are issued with the expectation that they will be repudiated, whereas these other noninterest-bearing Treasury notes would be issued with the expectation that they would be paid. Perhaps such a distinction is justified. It is small comfort, however, to think that at most we have advanced in the fight against currency inflation only to the point that the administration thinks it would be unwise to issue notes which it plans to repudiate.

Bond Market Driven Lower On Light Sales

Secondary Loans Lead in Liquidation; Trading Cut to $11,252,000.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Secondary bonds dropped rather sharply today, apparently in sympathy with stocks and commodities, although liquidation was not heavy except in a few of the more volatile maturities.

Sales totaled $11,252,000, par value, compared with $13,046,000 last Friday, and the average for 60 domestic corporate issues lost one-half point.

Aside from the weakness of shares, the market appeared to reflect some confusion regarding the cloudy European picture as well as the domestic situation.

Prime Issues Hold.

Prime investment loans held up fairly well, most of them limiting their losses to small fractions. There also were some gains scattered throughout the list.

The rails bore the brunt of the selling.

Losers in this section, of 1 to 3 or more points, included some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Central Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation, Chicago & Great Western, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Illinois Central, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern and Wabash.

Some Gains Recorded.

Moderate gains were recorded by some bonds of Consolidated Gas, Dodge Bros., Kresge Foundation, Leclede Gas, McKesson, Philadelphia Electric, Phillips Petroleum, Public Service, Sinclair Oil, United Drug and Western Electric.

American & Foreign power 5s dropped 4 points and declines of 1 to 2 or more were recorded by bonds of International Telephone, Postal Telegraph, Columbia Gas, Studebaker and Warner Bros.

United States Government securities were quiet and a little irregular. Obligations of Dutch East Indies slumped 2⅝ to 8¼ points, and those of France, Denmark and Switzerland lost 1 to around 3. While German Government 5½s sagged 1⅛ points, some corporation loans of the Reich rallied. Berlin issues were down 1 to around 4.

Curb's Prices Close Lower In Dull Session

Oils and Metals Lead in Declines; Sales Rise to 350,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—The curb market closed heavily today, with losses of 1 to around 8 points, scattered liberally throughout the list.

Leading oils, metals and various industrials suffered sharp drops. The major part of the decline occurred in the late afternoon, after a dull but sagging forenoon market.

Bunker Hill & Sullivan toppled more than 8 points, while General Tire & Rubber lost nearly as much in a light transfer. Shares closed 4 to around 6 points lower, including Gulf and Humble Oils, Hiram Walker, Pan-American Airways, New Jersey Zinc and Newmont Mining.

Utilities sagged after showing some early resistance. Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric yielded around 2 points. Aluminum Co. of America canceled an initial advance to slide 2⅝ under its previous close. Standard Oil of Indiana, Distillers Corporation-Seagram's, Parker Rust-Proof and Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" were 2 to 3 lower.

Transfers increased to 350,000 shares compared with 258,000 for last Friday.

Foreign Markets.

Oct. 16 (A.P.).—London—Traders on the Stock Exchange took the disarmament upset on the continent calmly. Quotations were marked down as a precaution, but renewed support caused prices to recover in the forenoon in many instances. German bonds registered net losses of 4 to 6 points. Gilt-edged securities and transatlantic issues eased in the late trading, while gold mining shares declined owing to the drop in the price of bar gold. The market closed unsettled.

Paris—The disrupted international situation added to other financial worries, induced prices on the bourse to sink, rentes falling 2 points. Young plan bonds and bank, electric and chemical issues were particularly heavy. The closing was weak.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse were depressed and weaker with general losses being unrecovered at the closing. Uncertainty concerning the foreign political situation overshadowed favorable news regarding September exports.

Wool Markets.

Boston, Oct. 16 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. of Agri.).—The market for domestic wool here is quiet, but quotations are firm. Members of the wool trade for the most part appear content to wait developments in the goods market. This attitude is helped by the limited supply of some lines of domestic wool.

Estimated receipts of domestic wool at Boston, reported to the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange during the week ended October 14, amounted to 2,510,200 pounds as compared with 1,418,900 during the previous week.

Visible Supply U. S. Grain.

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes, in bushels: Wheat increased 324,000; corn increased 1,393,000; oats decreased 206,000; rye increased 145,000; barley increased 250,000.

A. T. & T. Net Is Reduced to $101,225,317

Income Cut Puts Shares on $5.42 Basis; $3.85 Is 9 Months Return.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. today reported for the nine months ended September 30 net income of $101,225,317 after charges and Federal taxes, equivalent to $5.42 a share on the capital stock. For the corresponding period last year net income was $110,704,774, or $5.93 a share.

Breaking down the company's figures for this period it is indicated that net income for the quarter ended September 30 amounted to $35,110,808, equivalent to $1.88 a share, compared with $34,059,282, or $1.82 a share in the preceding quarter and $35,413,893, or $1.90 a share in the September quarter last year.

"Treating the system as a whole, including the Western Electric Co.," said a statement by Walter S. Gifford, president, "the earnings on American Telephone & Telegraph Co. stock were about $3.85 per share for the first nine months of 1933, or at the annual rate of about $5.13 per share compared with $5.96 per share for the year 1932.

"The earnings of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. by itself, amounting to $5.42 per share in the first nine months of 1933, include dividends not fully earned by the associated companies during the nine months by about $17,000,000 and do not reflect the current deficit of the Western Electric Co."

Preliminary report of E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. for the quarter ended September 30 indicates earnings of 95 cents a common share including 22½ cents received from the company's investment in General Motors Corporation. This compares with 28 cents a share including 23 cents from General Motors in the preceding quarter and 36 cents a share including 23 cents from General Motors in the same period last year.

For nine months the company's earnings were $1.98 a share including 68½ cents from investment in General Motors compared with $1.37 a share including 92 cents from General Motors the previous year.

Total income of the New York Life Insurance Co. during the first nine months of 1933 exceeded total disbursements by $43,133,000, and this amount has been added to the ledger assets of the company, according to a statement sent to the policyholders of the company today by Thomas A. Buckner, president. Total income aggregated $277,990,000 while disbursements amounted to $234,857,000. Disbursments included $188,870,000 paid to policyholders and beneficiaries, the balance of $45,987,000 covering payment of trust funds, dividends deposits, reinsurance, taxes and other expenses.

During the nine months period, total income averaged $1,235,000 a business day and included $196,773,000 of premium income and $63,898,000 of interest and rent received. New investments made during the first nine months of 1933 exceeded $46,300,000.

Dome Mines, Ltd., a gold producer, had net profit of $2,644,698 before depreciation, depletion and surplus adjustments in the nine months ended September 30. This compares with $1,752,399 in the same period of the previous year. For the September quarter profit was $982,723 against $836,613 in the previous quarter and $480,281 in the September quarter of 1932.

Cuba's Foreign Trade Cut by $10,500,000

Cuba's foreign trade in the first half of 1933 declined by $10,500,000, or 15 per cent as compared with the corresponding period of 1932, according to advices to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache Albert F. Nufer, Havana. Total export and import trade in the January-June period of the current year had a value of $58,815,000, as compared with $69,315,000 in the 1932 period.

The heaviest drop occurred in imports, the report shows, these declining from $30,203,000 during the first half of 1932 to $23,399,000 during the first six months of the current year, a drop of 22.52 per cent. Exports declined during this period from $39,112,000 to $35,416,000, a decrease of 9.45 per cent.

During the first half of the current year the share of the United States in Cuba's import trade was 52.11 per cent, as compared with 58.59 per cent in 1932. In this period the United States increased its share of Cuba's exports to 74.02 per cent, as compared with 73.26 per cent last year.

Europe's participation also showed an increase during the first six months of 1933, amounting to 21.52 per cent, as against 19.23 per cent during the equivalent 1932 period. There was a substantial drop, however, in Cuba's exports to other North and South American countries during the first half of 1933, these taking only 3.65 per cent of the total as against 5.87 per cent in the first six months of 1932.

By Andre Vulliet.

Edouard Daladier, French prime minister, faces a reassembled Parliament today. He is bound to fight one of the closest battles of his career.

The sittings of both the Chamber and the Senate will be held in a very tense atmosphere due not only to the recent developments at Geneva, but to the fact that the life of the cabinet will be at stake within two weeks. Americans will watch with interest the outcome of this contest which, in the long run, will mean whether or not France will remain on the gold standard.

The issue at stake is the discussion of the budget. Premier Daladier, responding to a widespread feeling, has pledged himself to "guard the franc against inflation as he would guard French soil against an invasion by a foreign foe." The indispensable condition for carrying out such a promise is, of course, a balanced budget.

Deficit of 6 Billion.

According to experts, the French deficit amounts to some 6,000,000,000 francs. The plan carefully worked out by Daladier with his Finance Minister Bonnet and his Budget Minister Lamoureux provides for a reduction in expenditures of above 2,500,000,000 francs (approximately $140,000,000) and an increase in receipts of a like amount.

The state profit resulting from the minting and putting into circulation of the new 5-franc silver coins, the intrinsic value of which is far below their face value, will help cover the rest of the deficit.

Proposed economies apply chiefly to military and civil pensions which would be cut from 5 to 10 per cent. Some reductions would be affected in the salaries of public employes and administrative expenses. Purely military expenditures, which were cut by 1,495,000,000 francs in July, 1932, and by 508,000,000 francs in February of this year, would not be touched.

Extension of Taxes.

Revenue would be increased by an extension of certain existing taxation, the suppression of a few exemptions and drastic measures against fraud. Treasury experts consider the latter evasion costs the government, year in and year out, more than a billion francs ($55,000,000). Many taxpayers relying on the fact that most French securities are unregistered fail to include this item in their general income tax returns. The government now plans to enforce general income tax on all coupons paid at source in addition to the special tax already applied. The creation of a fiscal monopoly on the production and sale or armaments, is also contemplated as a sort of compromise to please the Socialists.

Everyone agrees, of course, that the budget must be balanced to avoid inflation. But the political groups disagree on the particular steps which must be taken.

The Left, of which M. Daladier is a leading member, is the largest party in the chamber, but not sufficiently large to give the government a clear majority. The problem for M. Daladier is to line up those additional votes.

On the other hand, the Right will vote the economies, but will balk at such measures as a new fiscal monopoly or the deduction of taxes at their source.

Position of Socialists.

On the other hand, the Socialists stand ready to back any new taxation which would not affect the working class. But they oppose any cuts in pensions and government employes' salaries. What will they do? The outcome of the situation in the next few days depends largely upon their attitude.

The premier has declared that he would rather fall than have his party take the responsibility for an unsound fiscal policy. He means to act in whirlwind fashion and force the chamber to adopt the procedure known as "extreme urgency."

Raymond Poincare, who saved the franc in 1926, used the same tactics. But his position was entirely different. He headed a government of "national union," in which all parties were represented. Besides, the deputies were threatened into prompt decisions by hostile demonstrations of the crowd at the gates of Parliament.

Crab Packers Facing Tax to Finance Group

Crisfield, Md., Oct. 16 (Spl.).—Members of the newly organized Associated Crab Packers, Inc., will be taxed on their products to finance the association, according to N. R. Coulbourn, of this city, chosen president of the group which includes the majority of packers in Maryland and Virginia.

The organization hopes to have the National Recovery Administration approve a code for its industry in the near future. Meanwhile the nine directors have approved the impost system and taxes agreed upon are half a cent on each gallon of crab meat that members market, a quarter of a cent on each dozen of soft-shell crabs or peelers and 1 cent on each barrel of hard-shell crabs.

Lead Price Reduced.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—The American Smelting & Refining Co. today reduced the price of lead one-tenth cent a pound to 4.40 cents.

White Wine Supply Nears Exhaustion

Pouilly Sur Loire, Oct. 16 (U.P.). There is one industry in the world which is suffering from underproduction and overconsumption.

The famous wine crop of Pouilly, the favored vintage among oyster eaters, has been dropping off ever since the record vintage of 10,000,000 quarts in 1905. This year's harvest in estimated at a mere 2,000,000 quarts. In 1929 the yield was 7,000,000 quarts.

The slump is due to the high cost of tending the vines to keep them free from disease. The wine grows on 1,470 acres on a 4-mile front along the Loire River.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Arrangements were made today for sale of a New York Stock Exchange membership at $135,000, a decrease of $15,000 from the previous sale.

Uruguay Takes Steps to Slash Foreign Business Tax Levies

Steps looking toward a modification of the tax burden on foreign business enterprises operating in the republic have been taken by the government of Uruguay. A proposal to this effect has been submitted to the minister of finance of the republic, Dr. Pedro Cosio, by the minister of foreign relations, Dr. A. Mane.

In a recent letter to the minister of finance, the minister of foreign affairs set forth his views, as follows:

"This office is of the opinion that consideration should be given to the position of foreign business firms which, having confidence in the future of the country and the equitableness of its government, have established themselves in Uruguay, being subject thenceforward to the contingencies of the economic and financial evolution of the country, to whose development they are undoubtedly contributing. This office believes that a study should be made having in view the modification of existing legislation in regard to absentee owners, in order to avoid the unfair treatment now given by the application of this tax to capital investments, the return on which does not exceed reasonable limits. At the present time the tax upon absentee owners applies uniformly to the property of the various enterprises, regardless of whether the sums invested in the country by said enterprises return a profit or produce a loss. It is not surprising that the present situation could give rise to opposition and criticism which reflect unfavorably upon the nation's foreign credit. I believe that our country should make all possible efforts to maintain with all nations the most cordial relations compatible with its own welfare."

Sawmill Inventor Deserts Woods

Portland, Ore. Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Andre Gagnon, "father of the modern sawmill," has left the woods and mills of the Coos Bay area and come to spend the rest of his days in the city.

Gagnon, 90, invented the Gagnon band gang saw, the steam canter and the bull-chain retainer or clutch. He is known from Norway to Mexico for his mechanical genius, but little financial reward came to him for the inventions now found in practically all sawmills today, bringing millions of dollars to their owners.

The remarkable physical condition of the sawmill "wizard," he says, is due solely to a waste product of a mill.

"You have never seen a bald-headed sawmill man," he declared, "that is because of the sawdust—it is a wonderful preservative."

C. & O. Railway Loading Rose to 31,214 Cars

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Freight loadings on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway last week totaled 31,214 cars, compared with 29,798 in the previous week and 32,477 a year ago.

Freight car loadings on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway, first of the large systems to report for the week ended October 14, were 27,931, compared with 25,763 the previous week and 29,365 for the same period in 1932.

United Airlines Carry 17,242 Passengers

Chicago, Oct. 16 (AP).—United Air Lines today announced it had carried 17,242 passengers in September, and said the figure set a new high for fall air travel on the line.

The company's planes completed 96 per cent of the 1,500,000 miles scheduled, the announcement said. Its September mail cargo totaled 295,000 pounds.

Wheat Slumps In Stop-Loss Selling Drive

Eastern Sources Blamed in Declines; Other Grains Lower.

Chicago, Oct. 16 (AP).—Caught in a whirlwind of stop-loss selling, wheat fell 5 cents in final transactions today, and pulled all other Board of Trade staples down.

Most of the selling of wheat appeared to come from Eastern sources, and was in general looked upon as liquidation associated with stock market unsettlement.

Except corn, every kind of grain dropped to the extreme limit allowed for any single day, and each broke to new bottom price records for the season. Wheat went down more than 54 cents under the season's high, with corn off 3½ cents.

Wheat Closes at Bottom.

Wheat closed semi-demoralized at the day's low point, 4¾ to 5⅛ cents off as compared with Saturday's finish; corn showing ¾ to 1⅝ decline; oats, 2½ to 2⅞ down, and provisions at setback of 5 to 37 cents.

Prior to the sudden big tumble that all commodities suffered at the last, wheat had scored maximum gains of 2 cents a bushel after early downturns of nearly 3 cents. The initial weakness was ascribed to severe disturbance of British exchange rates.

Most Chicago wheat traders soon swung, however, to the view that any eventuality in the German situation would prove a stimulus to the market for United States wheat and other commodities.

Loss of Buying Power.

Fading away of new buying power in wheat, nevertheless, followed evidence that sharp breaks had developed in securities. Gradually the advances scored by wheat were wiped out, but it was not until near the end of the day that the wheat market began to show losses compared with Saturday. At this stage selling pressure from the East became abruptly acute and during the remainder of the day the dealings in wheat were at a [illegible] pace, with the climax nearly 7 cents a bushel below the early top.

Contributing to uneasiness of wheat holders was an unexpected increase of the domestic visible supply and steps taken toward an embargo on wheat shipments from North Dakota farms.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat, but corn showed relative firmness owing to wet weather likely to delay husking operations.

Steel Advance Attributed to Contract Rush

Cleveland, Oct. 16.—Speeding up production to complete specifications on expiring contracts by October 15, as required by the steel code, resulted in a 2-point advance in steelworks operations to 40 per cent last week, states the magazine Steel.

This acceleration, however, does not measure consuming demand. Due largely to the fact the automobile industry is beginning the changeover in models, and that users generally have just taken in large stocks, the prospects now are for a rather sharp reduction.

New releases on fourth quarter contracts and spot purchasing are exceptionally light. Comparatively little tonnage remains to be rolled on third-quarter contracts. This week, therefore, the industry will be working entirely under the price provisions of its code.

More Advances Expected.

Further price advances in some iron and steel products appear likely, following a rise of $1.25 to $2 a ton in standrad grades of furnace and foundry coke, which is expected soon to exert an influence on pig iron.

Nut and bolt manufacturers are preparing to increase their prices for November. An important producer of stainless steel has reduced base prices for bars, plates and shapes, but the introduction of quantity extras leaves the net prices to consumers little changed. Some revisions in alloy bar differentials are under consideration.

Warehouses are putting in effect a new plan resulting in specific delivered prices in every city. Prices will be based at the nearest mill, plus warehouse price differentials, plus less carload freight to point of consumption.

Steel to Be Released.

Closing of larger structural shape tonnages, which placed 15,386 tons on mill books last week, is being expedited by the expiration of price protections, also to a larger extent by action on public works.

Over the next three months 40,000 tons of steel will be released for Mississippi River improvements. Actual awards include 4,500 tons for a dam at Alma, Wis. In a tentative stage at Chicago is a plan to spend gasoline tax funds to build 160 miles of elevated highways, which eventually would require 1,280,000 tons of steel.

Federal financing of bridge construction work in the Buffalo district has developed requirements for nearly 8,000 tons of shapes and concrete bars. Early award of 13,000 tons of structurals for the New York postoffice is assured. The New York port authority is taking bids on 2,000 tons of nuts and bolts.

Tonnages in Prospect.

In plates, too, some larger tonnages are in prospect. For a gasholder at Omaha, Nebr., 3,000 tons have been placed, and 4,000 tons are pending for a gasholder at Washington. For watermains at Cleveland, 2,000 tons have been awarded. Navy and Coast Guard work will take 8,200 tons. Recent inquiries for bargers at Pittsburgh, however, have lapsed.

Rail mills appear in no hurry to respond to Coordinator Eastman's suggestion for a price of $35 a ton or less, and it now seems they will not meet that figure. In the meantime railroad material releases are slow. The Northern Pacific has placed 12 locomotives with the American Locomotive Co.

Ford is warming up four openhearth steel furnaces preparatory to opening the rolling mill at Fordson, and is informally inquiring for 10,000 tons of basic iron.

Pig Iron Shipments.

Pig iron shipments for the month are shrinking below the September level. Scrap prices still are soft, with the tendency downward. In some districts the spread between scrap and basic iron prices now is unusually wide.

Strikes, at least for the present, are no longer a factor affecting steelworks operations. In the Wheeling district the steel rate advanced 10 points to 45 per cent; New England, 20 to 95; Detroit, 9½ to 55; Pittsburgh, 2 to 40; Youngstown, 2 to 57, and Chicago, 1 to 49. At Cleveland the rate was down 8 points to 46; eastern Pennsylvania, down 5 to 26½; Birmingham, 4 to 30; while Buffalo was unchanged at 29 per cent.

Steel's iron and steel price composite is off 1 cent to $31.59; the finished steel composite is unchanged at $49.20; while the scrap index is down 12 cents to $10.46.

Iowa Farms Use Limestone Heavily

Ames, Iowa, Oct. 16 (AP).—More than 142,000 tons of limestone was used on Iowa farms during the last year, says R. K. Bliss, director of the Iowa State College extension service.

The extent to which legumes are increasing in popularity among Iowa farmers, he said, was evidenced by an increase in alfalfa acreage from 25,000 acres in 1910 to 486,000 last year.

Sweet clover acreage has increased from 90,000 in 1926 to 221,000 this year and soybeans from approximately 20,000 acres in 1926 to more than 144,000.

Lincoln Life Reports Annuity Premium Rise

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 16.—New annuity premiums of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., showed an increase of 31 per cent for the first nine months of 1933, as compared to the same period of 1932, it was announced here today by Arthur F. Hall, president of the company.

This is in keeping with a trend toward forms of insurance that will provide an income in old age, Hall pointed out, adding that each period of 1933 has shown a marked increase in annuity policies, whereas other forms of life insurance have held at about the same level.

SUGAR—Raw sugar was easy today under increased offerings. Spot prices declined 5 points to the basis of 3.28. The only sale reported was 35,000 bags of Cuban from store at this level, but more was available.

Following recoveries of early declines, sugar futures developed renewed weakness in the afternoon under increased liquidation and hedge selling, with the market closing 4 to 7 points net lower. Sales were 52,450 tons.

The market opened 1 to 4 points lower under liquidation and selling by houses with European connections promoted by the firmer ruling of the dollar and the inactivity in the spot market. The early offerings were well absorbed and the market gradually hardened on increased covering and buying by trade interests. The upturn failed to inspire any general buying interest, however, and after selling back, or a point above the previous close, the market weakened again under a renewal of hedge selling and liquidation influenced by the sharp declines in other commodities and the decline in spots. Final prices were at the lowest of the session.

Refined sugar was quiet and prices were unchanged, with refiners listing at 4.60 and second hands available at from 4.55 to 4.57½.

Probable Supply Is Drop of 2,067,000 From Date Last Year; Exports and Domestic Consumption Found Relatively High, Aggregating 2,413,000 Units.

New York, Oct. 16.—The total stock of cotton in all hands in the United States on September 30, including the estimated unpicked portion of the current crop, was 18,266,000 bales, compared with 20,333,000 on the corresponding date last year, and 21,321,000 two years ago, according to the New York Cotton Exchange Service.

The distribution of cotton by exports and domestic consumption is running at a high rate, and hence the supply is being run down more rapidly than in recent seasons.

The total distribution by exports and domestic consumption during the first two months of the season, August and September, aggregated 2,413,000 bales this year as against 2,021,000 in the same months last year and 1,709,000 two years ago, says the Exchange Service.

Exports Also High.

Both exports and domestic consumption ran relatively high in the two months. Exports totaled 1,323,000 bales against 1,124,000 last year and 820,000 two years ago. Consumption aggregated 1,090,000 bales as against 897,000 and 889,000, respectively.

Although the end-September stock this year was 3,055,000 bales less than that of two years ago, if was much larger than the average stock at this time of the year. The end-September stock of 18,266,000 bales this year compares with 14,783,000 bales on the corresponding date in 1929, 14,823,000 in 1928, and 14,091,000 in 1927. The calculated stock this year was increased 471,000 bales by the increase in the Government crop estimate issued last week.

Analysis of the distribution of holdings shows much smaller supplies of cotton at producing points and much larger supplies in distributing and consuming channels than two years ago. In consequence of the smaller crop, the total stock on plantations and in domestic transit, including the unpicked portion of the new crop, was only 9,729,000 bales this year as against 11,250,000 last year and 14,245,000 two years ago.

Stocks in Warehouses.

On the other hand, total stocks in warehouses and compresses was 7,375,000 bales this year compared with 7,998,000 last year and 6,298,000 two years ago, and the stock at mills was 1,160,000 against 1,085,000 and 778,000, respectively. The increased stock at mills reflects the higher rate of domestic consumption.

Cotton has moved off of plantations at a relatively high rate this season, in reflection of the increase in the demand and rate of consumption and the large early-season ginnings. The movement from plantations in August and September this year totaled 3,821,000 bales, compared with 3,149,000 in the same period last year and 3,227,000 two years ago.

The domestic consumption of 499,000 bales of cotton during September indicated an average consumption per working day of 24,000 bales. This compares with 25,600 bales per day in August. In September of last year consumption was reported to be running at the rate of 20,800 bales per day. In this connection it should be noted that the increase in the daily rate from 20,800 bales last year to 24,000 bales this year is due largely to the fact that last year the mills generally operated five and a half days a week, while most of them are now running only five days per week.

5-Day Week Consumption.

Had the daily consumption in September last year been computed on the basis of a five-day week, it would have been 22,700 bales. The average consumption per day in the six years from 1922 to 1927, inclusive, was 23,000 bales, calculated on the old basis of mill operations on five and a half days per week. Calculated on the present basis of five days per week, the average daily rate from 1922 to 1927 was 25,300 bales.

Accordingly, cotton mill operations in this country during September were a little below the average in the six predepression years. The cotton mills, however, ran at a higher rate than the average of all industrial plants. Cotton mill activity was on a basis of about 94 per cent of the 1922-27 level, while general manufacturing activity was at 86 per cent.

Cotton mill operations have declined more than general manufacturing activity since early summer, but this is because the cotton mills stepped up their operations in June and July to a phenomenally hight rate.

Favorable and unfavorable dividend changes numbered five each in the past week, says Standard Statistics Co. In the preceding week there were 11 favorable and 16 unfavorable revisions.

Cotton Declines $2 Per Bale on Southern Sales

December Closes at 8.77 as General Market Drops 40 to 48 Points.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—A decline of approximately $2 a bale in cotton today was attributed to continued liquidation and Southern selling.

After easing to 8.96 early, December rallied to 9.10, but weakened again to the lowest levels of the day and movement in the late trading when it sold at 8.76 or 41 points net lower. Closing quotations were at or within a point of the lowest and the market barely steady at net declines of 40 to 48 points.

The opening was 14 to 17 points lower in response to easy Liverpool cables. The advance in the dollar and an accumulation of over Sunday selling orders from the South or through wire and commission houses.

Initial Offerings Taken.

Initial offerings were absorbed by trade buying or covering and the demand from these sources proved sufficient to cause moderate rallies after the early selling had run its course.

March advanced from 9.20 to 9.33 and active months generally worked back to within 7 or 8 points of last week's closing prices, but demand failed to broaden and the market weakened again during the afternoon under increased liquidation or reselling by early buyers together with continued Southern selling and liquidation promoted by the action of the grain and stock markets.

October contracts sold off to 8.58 or 48 points net lower, while March declined to 9.08 at the close.

Trading was fairly active at the start and again during the last hour, when more Southern selling appeared to be reaching here, but was comparatively quiet during the middle of the day, when general business seemed to be restricted by uncertainty over the European political situation and the fluctuations in foreign exchange. The bulk of the pressure later was attributed to further liquidation of long accounts, influenced by the action of other markets and the recent recoveries in the dollar.

Exports today, 27,501, making 1,799,690 so far this season. Port receipts, 69,012; U. S. port stocks, 3,766,319.

The two periods used as a basis for contrast were the three months ending July 31, 1932, and the same three months of 1933.

Capital Banks Begin Business Under Code

Regulation Hailed as Aid to Financial Houses and Customers.

A bankers' code relating to fair competition, signed by President Roosevelt several days ago and to which all local banks have subscribed, went into effect yesterday.

It replaces the temporary code under which banks of this city and elsewhere had been operating for some time.

The code creates, apart from its emergency functions, important permanent benefits for banks and their customers by reason of the fact that it will give the force of national law to many substantial means for cooperation among institutions, advocated by the American Bankers Association.

Statement by Shepherd.

F. N. Shepherd, executive manager of the association, states: "The code contains within itself the possibilities of the major part of the reform of the present banking system desired by the public, the Government and bankers alike." It applies in the United States proper to all national and State banks, private banks, accepting deposits, trust companies and savings banks with the exception of mutual savings banks.

The code places banking on a 40-hour week basis in 13-week periods, instead of a five-week period as applied under the temporary code.

Under the new rule employes may work less than 40 hours one week and more than that amount of time in another, according to business requirements. The average, however, must no tbe more than 40 hours a week over the 13-week period.

Aid in Administration.

A special committee of the association is assisting in the administration of the code and George O. Vass, vice president and cashier of Riggs National Bank and president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, is a member of the committee.

Stating it indicated there is plenty of money in the country, Earl D. Krewson, local agency directory, New York Life Insurance Co., announced yesterday that company's statement for the first nine months of the current year.

President Edwin C. Graham, Hamilton National Bank, is back from a brief visit to Florida.

President Robert V. Fleming, Riggs National Bank, will be a speaker before the convention of the Maryland Bankers Association at Baltimore today.

George E. Fleming, a vice president and real estate officer of Union Trust Co., has returned to his work after a month's vacation in New England.

Distributors Reject Terms Of Milk Pact

Plan to Offer Alternate Proposal if Producers Refuse to Yield.

Washington milk distributors are unwilling to accede to the proposed agreement of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association for an increase of 3 cents per gallon for basic and surplus milk, according to Roger J. Whiteford, attorney for the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairies.

The distributors are willing to negotiate with the producers, said Mr. Whiteford, but they can not grant the increase.

If the producers insist upon their present proposal, Mr. Whiteford added, the distributors will offer an alternate proposal to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Effect of Proposal.

This proposal will eliminate or curtail the proposed producer's price increase, it is understood. Distributors insist such an increase to the producer would lead to a price increase for the consumer.

The proposed marketing agreement will be presented today to the board of directors of the Producers Association. It is understood some dairy farmers are insisting upon a one-price plan for all milk, instead of the three-price schedule proposed by the association.

Several Quit Meeting.

Several independent milk distributors yesterday walked out of a meeting of producers and distributors because they would not parley on the three-price schedule. They insist, according to Sefton Darr, upon a one-price plan, based on a production-cost survey by the Department of Agriculture.

Hearings of the Senate Milk Investigating Committee probably will be resumed next Monday, Senator William H. King announced yesterday.

Two Get NRA Edicts Today

Restaurateur, Ice Cream Manufacturer Face Loss of Eagles.

The District recovery board of the NRA will act today on the cases of two employers charged with failing to comply with codes. Recommendation that their Blue Eagles be removed has been made by the local NRA compliance board.

One of the employers is a restaurateur. The other is an ice cream manufacturer. The restaurateur assured the board he would readjust conditions, but failed to do so, according to Maj. Raymond J. Walter, liaison officer of the board. The ice cream manufacturer failed to appear.

The two cases are the only ones in Washington in which removal of the Blue Eagle has been recommended. A number of others were charged with failing to live up to codes, but readjusted matters satisfactorily.

The board has received to date 337 complaints. Of these, 64 were found to be erroneous due to misunderstanding. A total of 254 were adjusted and 19 others are under investigation. Twenty-two employers asked for exceptions to codes. Fifteen were denied and seven approved.

Plane Guide Rope Flips 2 Into Sound

Navy Pilot Warns Russian About Trailing Line.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Two mechanics were flipped into Long Island Sound today when a guide rope attached to the tail of Maj. Alexander P. de Seversky's amphibian plane failed to let go as he took off for Washington.

Maj. de Seversky, a former Russian ace, who last week set a speed record for amphibians of 177.79 miles an hour at Roosevelt Field, was intercepted at Philadelphia by the pilot of a Navy plane who noticed the 100-foot rope streaming out behind him. He landed, removed the rope, and continued on to Washington.

One of the mechanics suffered slight cuts about the head, but neither was injured seriously.

Scottish Rite Southern Area Council Opens

Masonic Delegates From Many Parts of World Assemble Here.

With prominent Masons from various parts of the world attending, the Supreme Council, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of the Southern Jurisdiction, opened its biennial session at Scottish Rite Temple yesterday.

After Grand Commander John H. Cowles had read from the allocution and greeted delegates, tribute was paid to members of every supreme council on the globe who had died since the last convention, two years ago. The speaker was Thomas J. Harkins, North Carolina, grand orator of the supreme council. "Taps" was sung.

Following a luncheon in the banquet hall, the supreme council met in general session and transacted routine matters.

An organ recital and reception given for delegates and their wives in the House of the Temple featured last night. Edmund S. Ender, Baltimore, was the organist.

Almost 400 Masons registered at the temple yesterday, including members who have achieved the thirty-third degree. Delegates registered from other countries included the Earl of Cassillis, a member of the Supreme Council of Scotland; His Excellency Ahmet Muhtar, Turkish Ambassador, Dean of the Diplomatic Corps and a member of Turkey's Supreme Council, and J. Walters Calls Consumer Card Drive Success

95 Per Cent of District Families Signed NRA Pledge.

The local NRA campaign to pledge District consumers to buy only in Blue Eagle stores was a success, Maj. Raymond S. Walters, head of the Bureau of Information, of the District NRA, declared yesterday.

He said that of 200,000 cards sent out, more than 130,000 had been returned signed, and that this count covered more than 95 per cent of the District families.

"Because the housewife buys from 80 to 85 per cent of all that is sold in local retail trade, the fact that 95 per cent of all District families have signed up to support the Blue Eagle shows the purchasing power of Washington is solidly behind the NRA," he declared.

Miss Etta Taggart, lieutenant general of the local NRA consumer campaign that started September 3, said the response of local teachers had been particularly enthusiastic. Government workers also were commended for their pledge record by Miss Taggart, although she admitted Government employes resented the Federal pay cut.

500 Men Back On Federal Job In Labor Clash

One Iron Workers' Group Resumes Work on I. C. C. Structure.

About 500 men returned to work yesterday at the Labor-I. C. C. buildings, ending a shutdown which started September 15 over a jurisdictional dispute between carpenters and iron workers.

Meanwhile, however, another labor obstacle threatening the Federal building program loomed larger as Coleman Bronze Co. joined the contractors' fight against a four-hour day for iron workers. Cecil De Groot, superintendent, said he would suspend the bronze firm's work of 18 men at the new Post-office today in protest against the split shift. Until now the subcontractor has complied with the union's ruling which went into effect two weeks ago.

Five other building concerns, with work at practically every new Government building in the Capital, are idle because of objections to the change. No iron workers were on the job yesterday at the Justice Department structure. At the Labor-I. C. C. buildings only one out of four subcontractors employing iron workers resumed work.

The split shift was reported to be in force without exception at the Central Heating Plant, Archives Building and Agriculture extensible building.

Leslie L. Myers, business agent of the local union, said last night the four-hour day has almost doubled the number of employed iron workers and reduced distress. About 250 members are now at work, he said, an increase which by far counteracts the number allegedly "locked out" by the dissenting contractors.

Post Carrier Ruled Victim Of Drowning

Mother Holds to Slaying Theory; Rites Today, Lad's 13th Birthday.

The green canoe found floating in the Washington Channel, near where the body of 13-year-old Francis Long was discovered, was stolen from the Floodgate Boat House.

Hugh A. Scott, of Mount Rainier, Md., owner of the craft, told homicide detectives he had last used it October 7.

The identity of the canoe owner was established after Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy pronounced the boy's death due to drowning. Water in his lungs and stomach, Dr. Murphy said, established that as the cause.

"There were absolutely no marks of violence on the body," he said. "The only marks were those of ordinary decomposition."

Boy Seen at Boat House.

Employes of the Floodgate Boat House, near Fourteenth and Water streets southwest, after viewing the body, expressed the belief they had seen Francis near the boat house.

Shown a picture of the boy, they said they had never seen him before. Francis' family said the photograph had been taken two years ago and he since had grown taller and heavier. Francis would have been 13 years old today, the day of his funeral.

Detective Sergeant George Darnell, head of the homicide squad, last night was making a canvass of Francis' playmates. Darnell is of the opinion the boy may have gone to the water with them and his playmates may be too frightened to talk.

The canoe was used by Scott to get to his motorboat, moored in the channel. When not in use, the canoe was pulled onto high ground at the boathouse. There has not been a tide high enough in the last few weeks to have floated the canoe, river men said.

No Paddle in Boat.

There was no paddle in the canoe and there are none missing from the boathouse. Scott's paddles were locked in the boathouse.

The boy's mother refuses to believe her son was the victim of an accident. She attributes his death to violence. When he was first missed she said:

"I had the strangest feeling—a feeling that something terrible was happening to my boy. I don't know why, but I kept saying to myself, 'they got him! They got him!'"

Sergt. Darnell announced police had discarded the suicide theory.

"Either it was a case of accident or murder," he said.

At the time of his disappearance Francis was out collecting on his Washington Post route. It has not been established definitely that he had any money with him.

Beaten, Robbed Year Ago.

His parents believe he was set upon by hoodlums, who, less than a year ago, beat the boy into insensibility, robbed him and left him unconscious in an alley.

The father last night told The Post that on the night of January 21, 1930, their home was entered by a burglar through a window, but the man was scared a way. At the time, Francis had a terrible fear of darkness, the father said, pointing out that the boy disappeared shortly after 6:30 o'clock at night.

Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald has not set a date for an inquest, pending completion of the police investigation.

A funeral mass for Francis will take place at 9 o'clock this morning in the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Burial will take place this afternoon in Baltimore.

Taxi Group Held Liable in Accident

Supreme Court Upholds Ruling, Refusing Review.

The United States Supreme Court yesterday, in effect, upheld a ruling of the District Court of Appeals that the Independent Taxi Owners Association, operators of Diamond cabs, can not plead exemption from liability in a damage suit involving two of the operators.

The Court of Appeals had set aside a directed verdict by the District Supreme Court absolving the association in a suit brought by James Callas, who was injured by a cab owned by Harry J. Schou and Noel Rosia, and driven by the former. The appellate court held that the association is engaged in a joint enterprise with the owners. The Supreme Court denied a review.

1934 Auto Tags Rushed at Bustling Factory of Lorton Penal Institution

Plates Go on Carrier From Trimmer Through Giant Oven.

To the average motorist the 1934 license-tag question may be a future matter, but at Lorton Reformatory it is present and urgent business.

Delayed by the lack of proper material, the license-tag factory at the reformatory now is a busy place—a bustle with activity and filled with the crunch of the metal cutting and stamping machines.

It takes 11 minutes from the time the sheets of metal are placed in the trimming machine, until the finished tag is placed in the envelope for the motorist, provided nothing goes wrong, which is seldom.

Like the assembling of an automobile, the finished tag is the product of one long trip.

From the trimming machine the 1934 tag goes to the stamping and molding machines, thence to the great oven where it gets the coat of yellow paint, next through a painting machine for its black letters, and then onto the assembling bench, preparatory to insertion in the envelope for the motorist.

Oven Holds, 2,760.

The oven is an enormous piece of mechanism—capable of handling 2,760 tags at one time. At the front of the machine, the tags are dipped in vats of paint, then pass on a chain-carrier into the oven to dry, and finally emerge from the back of the machine with bright and shiny yellow coats.

The machine which blacks the letters and numbers of the tag is much like the ordinary hand printing press.

The first series of 9,999 tags were delivered to the Traffic Bureau yesterday. This was the unlettered series. Subsequently will follow the other series, one for each letter except "I," "O" and "Q"—those letters are too much like numerals to use.

Will Be Ready on Time.

Col. William H. Peake, new superintendent of the reformatory, says unless the work is delayed again by poor material, the tags will be ready when license-tag time rolls around. Last Saturday night, a total of 54,000 tags had been made. The daily production is about 2,000. Hence the factory feels sure the 180,000 order of the District will be ready on time.

In addition to the tags for motor cars, the factory, of course, makes tags for buses. These tags are being issued in a new form this time, with the letter "S" on them. It also makes all the traffic signs.

Col. William A. Peake, superintendent of Lorton Reformatory, is shown above pointing out the different types of tags manufactured by inmates to Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby. A scene showing the convicts at work making tags is shown below.

Eight men convicted of first degree murder and condemned to die this month in the District Jail have been granted stays of execution and the sentence of a ninth has been commuted to life imprisonment, it was revealed yesterday by Thomas J. Rives, superintendent of the jail.

Joe Goodmen and George Pitman, Negroes, who were to have gone to the chair today for the murder last New Year's Day of a watchman at Dickey's feed store, are scheduled to be executed December 22. The delay was granted by the District Supreme Court.

Leonard Layton, who with Charles E. Washington and William C. Robinson was convicted of the murder of Mannie Soloman, a Washington cab driver, will spend the rest of his days in prison. He was to have died October 20, but his sentence was commuted. Robinson and Washington go to the chair December 1.

The slayers of Milo Kennedy, park policeman who was clubbed to death in Logan Circle last August, will die November 29, instead of October 20. They are Joseph Jackson, Irving Murray and Ralph E. Holmes.

E. H. Bolden and Ben Montague will go to the chair on January 5 and the execution date of James H. Lowery has been advanced to November 14.

Asks to See Execution.

Louis Soloman, brother of the slain taxi driver, appeared at police headquarters last night and requested permission to see the execution of his brother's slayers.

He was referred to Thomas H. Rives, superintendent of the District Jail. It could not be learned whether the permission was granted.

School Thief Takes $2 and $200 Check

The Fine Arts Commission yesterday announced it has approved models of two equestrian statues to be placed at the Washington approach to Arlington Memorial Bridge.

Representing Valor and Sacrifice, each statue will portray a horse and rider. Leo Friedlander, of New York, is the sculptor. The figures will be 16 feet high and the height over all will be approximately 30 feet.

Plans already have been approved for two similar statues to be erected at the entrance of Rock Creek Parkway. They will represent Peace and The Arts of Peace. James E. Fraser, of New York, is the sculptor.

Alarms to Guard Steady Gas Flow

Signals Will Sound When Pressure Varies.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday moved to assure an even flow of gas to every section of the city by ordering installation of pressure alarms at strategic points.

The alarms will sound when the pressure falls below 3 or rises above 6 pounds, the minimum and maximum limits fixed by the commission. They will be installed where gas company employes work throughout the day.

Bids Asked for Drive At Crittenden Home

Bids for construction of a new driveway, from Conduit road to the Florence Crittenden Home, 4759 Conduit road, are being received by Mrs. Guy B. Stevenson, chairman of the grounds committee of the home, it was announced yesterday.

The driveway, it was explained, had been made necessary by changes in the grading of Conduit road, and will be paid for out of funds given by the District for land bought from the home for grading purposes. The surface will be asphalt.

U. S. Employs 1,200 in New Buying Office

Government Centers All Purchases in Division as Economy Move.

Twelve hundred Government workers went on temporary employment rolls yesterday with creation of the new procurement division.

The unit, formed by presidential order as an economy move, will handle all Federal purchasing. Its functions will center in the office of an assistant Treasury secretary in charge of public works, pending appointment of a director.

Surveys have begun in supply departments to determine whether they shall be abolished or continued under direction of the central division.

Involved in the merger forming the new organization are the office of the supervising architect, directing engineers and arrchitects in Government buildings and public works; fuel yards of the Bureau of Mines; the General Supply Office and the Coordinating Service, an interdepartmental board.

The new division will be organized slowly. It will direct purchases for the Army and Navy. Waste will be eliminated through consolidation of warehouses and similar measures.

Speed Urged in Purchasing D. C. Land for Public Works

Petition Requests Action on Slum Rebuilding Program.

The Federal Government is being politely reminded to hurry up and purchase property set aside for the public-building program and thereby remove "a cloud on the titles."

A petition sponsored by the Board of Trade yesterday carried the names of approximately 200 owners in the Southwest section. It calls upon President Roosevelt to order purchase by the Government of land and structures as authorized by the public buildings act of May 25, 1926. Six hundred more signatures are expected.

The area involved is bounded by Virginia and Maryland avenues on the South, Delaware avenue on the East, Fourteenth street on the West and on the North by Federal property on the Mall.

"Properties located in such area designated slums . . . are detrimental to the community and effect the value of nearby properties," the petition reads. They "also injure the beauty of nearby Government structures."

The petition claims that, since the Secretary of the Treasury has not acquired certain areas in the Southwest section as authorized, it is now difficult to sell or rent them to individuals or to place and renew mortgages.

Douglas Acts To Consider D. C. Budget

Expected to Set Date for Hearings Today on 1935 Sums.

Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas is expecting to fix a date today for hearings on the $39,484,858 District estimates for 1935.

Because the estimates sent by the District Commissioners to the Budget Bureau exceeded by $2,775,000 the limit set by Director Douglas, some doubt was felt by District officials about what would be done.

Definite announcement that consideration would be given the commissioners' figures was made at Mr. Douglas' office.

This was taken as assuring provisions of the budget would be discussed in some detail with District officials and removing fear of arbitrary changes and eliminations.

Although the estimates exceed the ouglas limit, they are based on a continuation of the present tax rates into the next fiscal year. They provide, also, $3,750,000 to put District salaries back where they were before the 15 per cent pay slash.

Funds for continuing work on building projects, for which initial appropriations were made this year, are provided. These projects include the Woodrow Wilson Senior High School, Browns, Powell and Deal Junior High Schools, a contagious disease ward at Gallinger Hospital and the Calvert street bridge.

Dewey Vault to Be Moved From Arlington Cemetery

The mausoleum at Arlington Cemetery, which formerly held the body of Admiral Dewey, but which will be removed from Arlington.

War Department Issues Order; Mausoleum Now Empty.

The mausoleum which formerly held the body of Admiral George Dewey is to be removed from Arlington National Cemetery, it was learned yesterday from officials at the cemetery.

The huge bronze and marble vault has stood empty at Arlington since the taking of the admiral's body to the National Cathedral in 1925.

The War Department two years ago informed representatives of the Dewey family that the mausoleum would have to be removed, since it was no longer in use and was taking up valuable space in the National Cemetery.

The family and heirs tried to sell it, according to Col. Charles G. Mortimer, officer in charge of Arlington, but found no buyers for the vault, whose cost has been estimated at from $18,000 to $30,000.

Arlington officials finally advertised for bids to have the structure removed, and accepted that of the Alexandria Park Association, which operates Columbia Gardens Public Cemetery at Lyon Park, Va. A nominal payment, believed to be $250, was made to the Government, and the purchaser agreed to remove the mausoleum, the vault, the foundation, and the encircling walk. It was also agreed to resod the site and repair any damage the removal might cause.

The mausoleum, it is understood, will be used as the general receiving vault at the Columbia Gardens Cemetery. The name of the naval hero and other identifying marks have been removed from it.

After the removal of her husband's body, Mrs. Dewey protested when the War Department suggested the admiral's shrine be removed. After her death in 1931, however, the War Department informed the heirs it must be removed.

Mrs. Dewey had specified in her will that her husband's body be removed from the National Cathedral and reburied with her own at Arlington.

However, by the time of her death, Cathedral rules had been altered, permitting Mrs. Dewey to be buried at the Cathedral, and executors of the will elected to ignore the widow's request, ruling that it had been her original wish to be buried in the Cathedral with her husband and that she had suggested Arlington only because Cathedral rules had at first not permitted her burial there.

Realty Firm Victor In Income Tax Case

Revenue Official Erred, Appeal Board Holds.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue erred in holding that the Loughborough Development Corporation owed $9,173.54 additional income tax for the year 1927, the United States Board of Tax Appeals ruled in an opinion announced yesterday.

The dispute arose over the transfer of real estate near Twenty-second street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The corporation deeded a tract south of Massachusetts avenue to the W. C. and A. N. Miller Development Co. for the Twenty-second street property and $53,786.90 cash. The Loughborough Corporation listed the money in its income tax return, but the Commissioner of Internal Revenue contended the property acquired was worth $71,268.05 more than the total value of the property traded plus the cash received, and that income tax was due on the difference.

The Board of Tax Appeals held the property was acquired for investment and not primarily for sale, and no additional tax was due. Albert W. Walker is president of the Loughborough Corporation.

High Court Denies McReynolds Plea

Refuses to Review Appeal in Bank Merger Tangle

Joseph and Ellen T. McReynolds were denied a review by the United States Supreme Court yesterday of a District Court of Appeals decision that they followed the wrong procedure in attempting to recover from the Federal-American National Bank, now absorbed by the Hamilton National Bank, $125,000 that they paid to the Merchants Bank & Trust Co. under alleged fraudulent representations.

The Court of Appeals held that the McReynolds were not entitled to an accounting by the Federal-American Bank, which took over the Merchants Bank, but should have asked damages or the setting aside of the contract covering the bank merger.

D. E. Stephan Hurt In Fall From Horse

Park police said they believed the girdle holding the saddle broke as the mount lunged over the barrier. Stephan's condition is not serious.

New Dividend By Hamilton Bank Planned

Treasury Speeds Action to Free Assets of Merged Group.

Liquidation of Balance Due Depositors Aim of Officails.

A plan to speed freeing of frozen assets in seven banks forming the recently opened Hamilton National Bank is under consideration by the Treasury Department.

The plan involves transfer of conservatorships in charge of the remaining assets of these component banks into two receiverships for liquidation of remaining assets due their depositors and creditors who received a 50 per cent dividend when the Hamilton Bank was opened.

The plan also contemplates overtures to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation relative to further advances on remaining assets to accelerate payment of another dividend.

Consideration of the receivership plan is said to be the reason for delay in replacement of conservators in four component banks who since have become officers of the Hamilton Bank.

Men occupying these dual positions are Joshua Evans, jr., a vice president of Hamilton Bank and conservator of District National Bank; Robert A. Sisson, an assistant cashier of Hamilton Bank and conservator of Washington Savings Bank; George F. Hoover, a branch manager of Hamilton Bank and conservator of Northeast Savings Bank, and E. L. Norris, another branch manager, conservator of Woodridge-Langdon Savings & Commercial Bank.

Other conservators are John Poole, for Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.; George W. Offutt, Potomac Savings Bank, and John D. Howard, Seventh Street Savings Bank.

The receivers to be selected by Comptroller of the Currency O'Connor have not been announced.

Eastern and Central Elevens Battle to 0-0 Tie in High School Opener

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

AS an indignant subscriber, I would like to inquire how come three respectable universities of the Nation's Capital are on the "black list" of the Southern Conference football teams.

They are there in black and white on the "black list" of the conference, according to the pamphlet setting down the constitution and by-laws—Georgetown University, Catholic University and George Washington University. No Southern Conferenee team must be tainted by competition with this terrible trio—G. U., C. U. and G. W. U.—unless the games are played under conference rules.

After an honest attempt to take a circumspect view of the situation, I am constrained to report that the Southern Conference's "holier than thuo" attitude is—to use a short ugly word—the bunk, believe me you. The bunk, rank hypocrisy and otherwise a joke.

Action Inconsistent.

The conference rules differ from the rules of the three local colleges only in that no conference team uses transfer students. But the "black listing" of the three Washington colleges by the conference is pointedly inconsistent with conference history.

For example, two conference teams—Virginia and Washington and Lee—last Saturday played Columbia and Yale, respectively. Both Columbia and Yale, like the three Washington institutions, do not bar transfer students. Yet the two members of the conference made no suggestion that Columbia and Yale play under conference rules.

When Maryland, in the past, played Yale and Michigan, neither of its opponents played under conference rules. Yet Maryland is specifically forbidden to play Georgetown, George Washington and Catholic U., unless the games are under the conference eligibility code. Somewhere something is rotten.

Effective Barrier.

The senegambian in the proverbial woodpile anent the "blacklisting" is not so hard to discover. Southern Conference teams, Virginia teams, particularly, will have no parts of competition with Washington teams, and the demands that games be played under conference rules serve as an effective barrier to such competition.

The "blacklisting" of the three local colleges was effected chiefly to give a conference member, Maryland, the attractions best calculated to draw the Washington patronage. By refusing to play George Washington, Georgetown and C. U., the Virginia teams hoped to gain for Maryland the bulk of the local patronage.

Seventeen colleges throughout the District, Virginia and North Carolina are on the conference "blacklist" and in each case the barred colleges are in territory of conference teams. Thus the "blacklist" is a protective measure by the conference. Football, undeniably, is a business.

Blessing in Disguise.

To at least one local institution, George Washington, the "black list" has been a blessing in disguise. Barred from conference competition under their own rules, the Colonials were forced to go far afield for opposition and have succeeded in bringing to Washington the city's choicest football attractions, with corresponding success for the G. W. Athletic Association exchequer.

Football in Washington has now reached the point where the Capital colleges no longer need the prestige of Southern Conference competition. The schism of last year which saw such institutions as Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Florida form an independent group from the Northern Conference members, has more than cut in twain the once-high standing of the Southern Conference.

So, why was I so indignant up above?

Stockholders of Cubs Meet to Pick President

Yanks Linked in Report Of Asheville Franchise

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 16 (AP).—The Asheville Times says today that George Weiss, vice president of the New York Yankees, arrived here today simultaneously with reports that the former world's champions would operate a Piedmont League club here next season.

Weiss was acompanied by Walter Johnson, manager of the Cleveland Indians, and J. P. Dawson, business manager of the Baltimore Orioles, all of whom said they were merely visiting for several days.

The paper said none of the party indicated any other purpose for the visit, but that "it was expected that arrangements would be made to place a Piedmont League franchise in Asheville under the direc-

Army Awaits 1st Big Test Of Power

Pitt Panthers, Stronger Than Last Season, Face Minnesota.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP).—There's a considerable mixture of anticipation, disappointment, and viewing-with-alarm all tangled up in Army's football work this week at West Point.

The anticipation comes of the first big test of the season against Illinois at Cleveland Saturday, the disappointment from the fact that this is the only out-of-town contest of the year the corps of cadets will not attend, and the alarm from the power the Illini displayed walloping Wisconsin, 21 to 0, Saturday.

For three straight weeks Army has ridden through practice foes, Mercer, V. M. I. and Delaware, and not even the young but white-headed coach, Lieut. Gar Davidson, has any idea as yet what manner of success against major foes is in store for the lightest, but the fastest eleven the Cadets have had in 10 years.

Lindberg Illinois Star.

Fearful reports were turned in today by the scouts who saw Illinois wallop Wisconsin, particularly concerning the ramblings of Les Lindberg, the sophomore back who appears to be one of the best in the Big Ten.

On the basis of Saturday's 34-to-6 conquest of Navy, Pittsburgh, is the team the East must lean on heavily again in the sectional bid for national honors.

The Panthers appear two full touchdowns stronger than last year when ties with Ohio State and Nebraska alone marred a seasonal record that included victory over Notre Dame before Southern California wrote an inglorious ending in the Post-season Rose Bowl game.

Pittsburgh tackles Minnesota's powerful outfit in Minneapolis Saturday, then meets Notre Dame October 28. Center at Pittsburgh adds a Southern flavor November 4 while Nebraska comes East for battle November 18. Carnegie another tartar, has the November 30 date in Pittsburgh.

Has Stronger Line.

To meet this heavy opposition Jock Sutherland has molded a line that appears even stronger than last year's mighty forward wall with Rooker.

Sutherland has a half dozen fiery climax runners in Sebastian, Randour, Nicksick, Matesio, O'Dell, and Leonard, and the attack seems faster and more versatile than when Warren Heller was earning all-American honors last fall.

Leather Badges Given To Kibitzer Coaches

Tucson, Ariz. (U.P.).—The University of Arizona has football coaches to spare, but they all have a thumb in the "pie."

In recognition of their support of the institution's team and their "hot-stove" coaching advice, various alumni were presented with leather badges entitling them to membership in the "Congress Street Football Coaches" Association.

Lawson Smith, who was named president, was given an 18-inch leather badge. The "coaches" are entitled to sit in the front row of the bleachers during any nonsecret practice for the 1933 season.

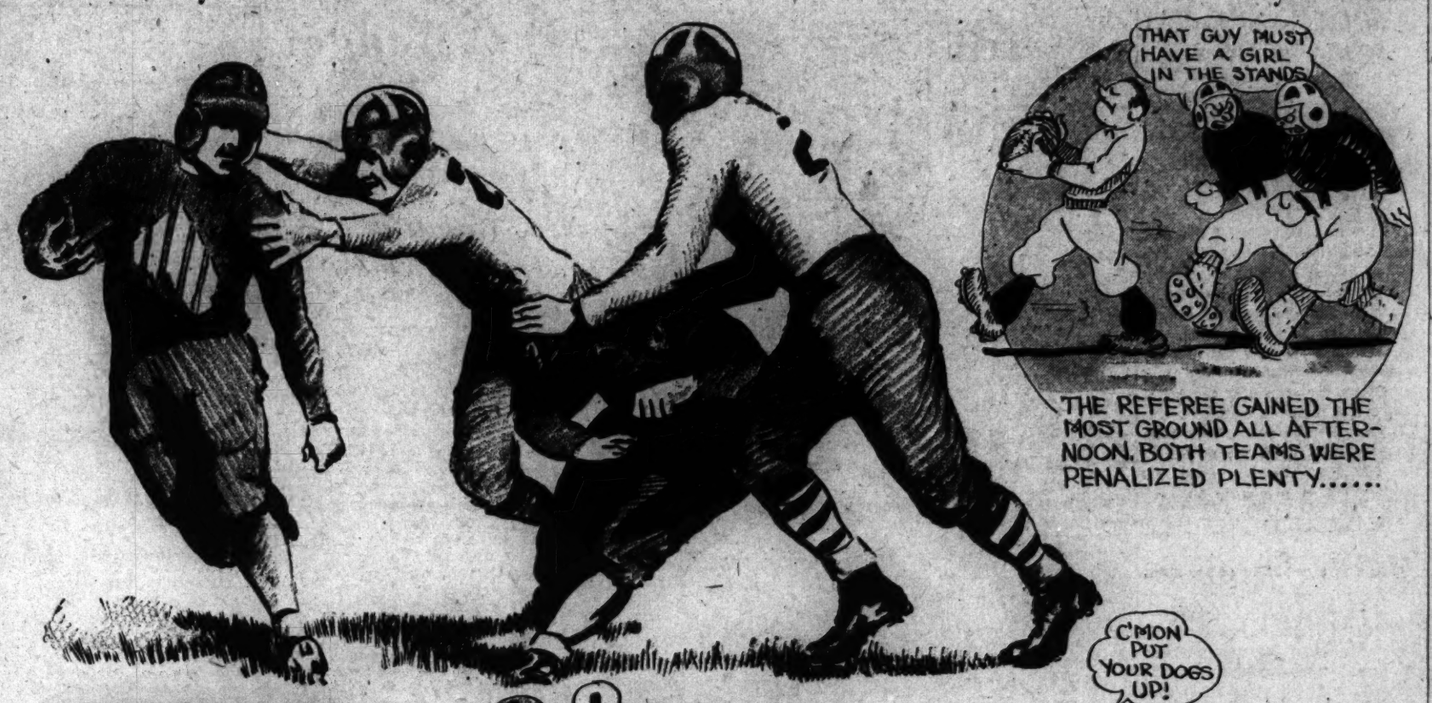
As Schoolboy Teams Battled to No Decision

—By Pierotti



Even Contest Is Bitterly Fought

Coach Complains Following Injuries to 2 Eastern Players.

Keegin Makes 35-Yard Run; Neither Team Threatens Score.

ONE of the bitterest high school battles of the past few years resulted in a scoreless tie yesterday at Central High School Stadium, where Eastern and Central opened the annual interhigh school championship race. Four thousand fans, divided in their loyalty, saw the teams wage their fruitless fight for victory.

Strong feeling between the teams, apparent throughout the game, was intensified by charges and countercharges of poor sportsmanship and use of illegal cleats. Two Eastern players, Tommy Nolan, quarter back, and Al Weireshem, center, were injured early in the fray, seriously enough to require medical treatment.

Both were cut on the shank of the leg. Nolan's wound required four stitches and Weireshem's seven. As Weireshem was carried off the field, Assistant Coach Artie Wondrack, of Eastern, rushed up to Central's coach, Bert Coggins, to complain about the type of cleats used by Central. Coggins invited Wondrack to have a look at the Eastern players' cleats.

Towers on Inspection.

Umpire Ed Towers settled the issue between halves, forcing both teams to lie on their backs with legs in air as he walked from player to player, inspecting their footgear. He gave them all a clean bill of health.

The game developed into a mighty battle between the forward walls, with Central's line men gaining a slight edge in the second half. Time and time again the backs attempted to bore through the line, but it was like driving a hole through the Rock of Gibraltar with a straw.

Dunn, Pistolas and Nicolopolous, the little entente which stood guard in the center of Central's line, came through with flying colors. No ball carrier succeeded in penetrating this zone, and frequently the trio came through to drag runners down from behind. The entire left side of Eastern's line, Thompson, Wolfe and Campbell, scintillated. Campbell at right end and Weireshem at right guard, also conducted themselves commendably.

Neither team threatened to score and the major part of the battle was fought in midfield. A lengthy pass from Frank Koscis to Dick King, 35 yards down field, placed the ball on Eastern's 34-yard line, but the Blue line braced and held for downs and Mills kicked out of danger.

Keegin Breaks Away.

Joe Keegin, Eastern half back, skirted end midway in the second period and jogged 23 yards to midfield before downed. It was the longest run of the game and went for naught as Central's line broke through and smeared its foes' plays almost before they started.

With time slipping away and still no score, both teams fell back on a desperate passing game. Joe Mills, for Eastern, and Frank Koscis, for Central, tossed the ball with abandon, usually to a vacant spot. The open play led to numerous interceptions, Dunn and Nicolopoulas clutching wild heaves for Central, and Keegin and Joe Mills attaching themselves to loose pegs for the Lincoln Parkers.

Tigers in Long Practice for Columbia

Hinman Lone Regular on Injured List; News of Other East Teams.

(Associated Press.)

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 16.—Princeton's football varsity settled down to work today for the Tigers' first crucial test of the season, the game with Columbia here Saturday. Fritz Crisler sent the squad through a long drill in blocking and passing to iron out imperfections that cropped up in last week's contest with Williams. The squad was in fine condition with the exception of Dan Hinman, veteran center, who still is on crutches, and Ken Willis, second string quarter back who suffered a chipped bone in his ankle Saturday.

New York—At Columbia, Lou Little called for the first secret workout of he season with the emphasis on forward passing, both on offense and defense. A change in the line-up sent Otto Schwartz in at full back in place of Maniaci and the former probably will start against the Tigers. Capt. Cliff Montgomery did all the passing for the first team.

Penn Seeks Full Back.

Army at Blackboard.

West Point, N. Y.—After a conference with the scouts who witnessed the Illinois victory over Wisconsin, Lieut. Gar Davidson held a long blackboard session with his Army varsity squad and outlined the Cadet defense for Saturday's game with the Illini at Cleveland. Later the varsity had great trouble stopping Illinois plays as put on by the "B" squad.

N. Y. U. Hard at Work.

Row on Ball Field Costs Player Life

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 16 (Spl.).—Resulting from an argument at a baseball game yesterday afternoon at Robey as to whether a first baseman blocked a runner, Orval Morgan, 26, Robinson Run, coal miner, is dead of a broken neck and Robert Shreves, 27, Robey farmer, is in the county jail here awaiting formal charges by State police.

Shinnston and Robey teams were playing before a crowd with the score 3 to 4, when Shreves, batting for Robey, hit a long ball. As Shreves started around first base he declared that Morgan blocked him. The pitcher threw the recovered ball to Morgan and the umpire called Shreves out. An argument ensued and, witnesses told police, Shreves struck Morgan below the left ear with a fist and Morgan fell dead.

Sports Scribes to Begin Golf Cup Play Monday

The annual golf battle for the Cleland Cup will be staged next Monday at the Army War College course, with sports writers of Washington as the contestants.

Raymond Bryan, of the Times, is the present holder of the Cleland Cup, having won it last year after a spirited fight.

Capt. Kendall J. Fielder, sports director at the Army War College, and the Cleland Cup committee, composed of Shirley L. Povich, of The Post, and Roddy Thomas, the Star, will announce the handicaps of the writers in the next few days.

The tournament is conducted on a medal-play handicap basis.

Gophers Dispel Gloom, Drill For Pitt

(Associated Press.)

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 16.—Light work sufficed for Minnesota's regulars today while a big Pittsburgh shadow appeared across Northrop Field to warn of the Panthers' approaching invasion Saturday. Determined to make the Pittsburgh game supply a recompense for two Big Ten ties, the Gophers remained in high spirit today despite Saturday's disappointment in the Purdue deadlock.

Scoring Punch Sought.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 16.—Coach Hanley excused the Northwestern first stringers today, but sent the reserves through a brisk drill. As the Wildcats failed to score in the two games they have played, Hanley said he would work toward developing a scoring punch this week.

Illini Changes Tackles.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 16 (AP).—Seeking a more aggressive forward wall, Coach Bob Zuppke moved Harry Palmer and Arvo Antilla up to first-string tackle positions today, relegating Bart Cummings and Red Gragg to the second team. Lindberg and Froschauer were drilled extensively on tackling. Capt. Herm Walser went through a heavy workout on the second team.

Shakeup at Wisconsin.

Madison, Wisc., Oct. 16.—A shakeup in both line and back field were ordered by Coach Spears today as a result of Wisconsin's showing in the first Big Ten Conference game against Illinois. Pacetti, veteran guard, was shifted to tackle, replacing Ferguson, and Kummer took over the guard position. Sanger, reserve quarter back, was promoted to first string back field and Haworth regained his old post at end, replacing Lovshin.

Iowa Morale Low.

Iowa City, Iowa, Oct. 16.—Morale at the Iowa football camp sank to a low ebb today with the possible loss of two outstanding players for the Wisconsin game. Francis Schammel, first team right guard, was in a hospital with a leg infection which developed Saturday, and Herman Schneideman, veteran blocking half back, was called to Quincy, Ill., by the death of his father. Two possible substitutes at right guard, Wilmon Hass and Lumir Kouba, may not be able to play in the Wisconsin game because of minor injuries.

Notre Dame Captain.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 16 (AP).—Notre Dame's game captain for the Carnegie Tech encounter at Pittsburgh Saturday will be Tom (Kitty) Gorman, center. Coach Hunk Anderson was highly pleased with Gorman's performance in the Indiana game when he played 58 minutes. The Irish reserves were showed a few Tech plays today and will scrimmage against the varsity Wednesday.

Officials to Probe Spears Encounter

Only Gave Cameraman a Little Push, He Says.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 16 (AP).—While Dr. Clarence W. Spears, Wisconsin football coach, was explaining it was just a "little push," several university officials today planned an inquiry into his encounter with a newspaper photographer at the Wisconsin-Illinois game at Champaign last Saturday.

The photographer, Albert M. Sullivan, of the Milwaukee Sentinel, whose camera was destroyed during the incident, was under the care of a physician today. An X-Ray photograph showed a bone of the toe on the left foot slightly askew. Sullivan was instructed not to walk for several days.

Spears said that the little shove, to get the photographer out of his line of vision, should not have upset anyone with all his faculties, much less have hurt him.

"But the man fell down, and landed on his camera, and that is how it was broken," the coach asserted. He added that three times before the encounter he had asked photographers not to dart in front of the Wisconsin bench.

Joe Knight Knocks Out Godwin in Fifth

Miami, Fla., Oct. 16 (AP).—Joe Knight, 170, of Cairo, Ga., contender for Maxie Rosenbloom's light heavyweight championship, battered Bob Godwin, 168, of Moultrie, Ga., into submission in five rounds here tonight. Ten were scheduled.

Boston Redskins Top League on Offense

New York, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—The Boston Redskins, coached by "Lone star" Dietz, former Carlisle Indian star, have shown the greatest offensive power in the National Football League, according to figures prepared today. The Redskins have made total advances of 1,190 yards, and the New York Giants are second with 1,116.

The Portsmouth Spartans, with 619 yards against them, the the leading defensive players. The New York Giants lead in total points, 116, and the Green Bay Packers with 36 completed passes in 70 tries have the best aerial record.

G. W. Warned Of Auburn's Strength

Scout Walsh Says Foe Outplayed Georgia Tech Last Saturday.

WITH Assistant Coach Len Walsh back from the South bearing glowing tales of Auburn's ability, George Washington's gridders resumed practice yesterday, bent on regaining the prestige lost Friday night by a victory, decisive or otherwise, over the Plainsmen.

Walsh paid the enemy the tribute of being the best team he has laid eyes on in a long time.

"It's the best team to come to Washington since Alabama," he said, "although it does not have Alabama's power. Auburn has more speed and deception than Crimson Tide, and it boasts the finest collection of backs on any team I've seen this season."

Figures Tell Story.

Walsh discredited Georgia Tech's victory over Auburn Saturday with a terse, "The figures tell the story." The records show that the Plainsmen outgained Tech 271 yards to 147, rolled up 19 first downs to Tech's 5 and completed 13 out of 20 forward passes for gains totaling more than 100 yards.

"Firpo" Phipps, half back, is, in Walsh's opinion, one of the best passers in the game. "He simply stands back and flips 'em from the chest, with no preliminary motions," Len said. "You can't tell where he is going to throw it."

Phipps is a good running back and good defensive player, but can't kick. Aside from punting, he is rated on par with Jimmy Hitchcock, his running mate last season, who was named on several All-American combinations.

Auburn has two other men who will bear watching, Dave Ariail, all-Southern end, and "Boots" Chambless, guard.

A lengthy scrimmage between the first and second teams yesterday sent players to the showers virtually exhausted. Coach Jim Pixlee must replace Harry Deming, regular tackle, who is suffering with a ruptured blood vessel in the arm. "Polly" Volkman and Ed Clark are the most promising candidates for the berth.

"Big Ten" Coaches Speak

CHICAGO, Oct. 16 (AP).—Class was called for the Big Ten football coaches today and each one was given a chance to recite, cheer or alibi for his ball club.

Professor—"Well, what have you fellows to say for yourselves and your teams? Some of you did right well Saturday; others weren't so hot. What about it?"

Harry Kipke, Michigan—"I thought our boys showed a little improvement. We have a team come up gradually but we lack a passing attack and will have to depend on a running game for Ohio State for the first time in years."

Professor—"What do you mean a little improvement?' You beat Cornell, 40 to 0, didn't you?"

Kipke—"Yes, but we haven't a passing attack."

Mel Shorey and Harry Pitt Shoot Best Ball of 66 to Lead Pro-Amateur Golfers

Three Teams In Tie for Second

MEL SHOREY, East Potomac golf professional, and Harry Pitt, Manor Club star, were a winning combination yesterday in the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. pro-amateur sweepstakes at Manor.

Shorey and Pitt posted a best ball of 66, five below par, to capture top honors from a field of 15 teams. After touring the first nine in 34 strokes, Shorey and Pitt unfolded some of their prize shots on the stretch to score a brilliant 32.

Pitt was in rare form on the incoming side, which he negotiated in 34, thus enabling him to finish with a 70, one below par. Out in 36, even par, the Manor ace gained birdies on the twelfth, thirteenth and fifteenth. Shorey finished with 73.

Triple Tie For Second.

There was a triple tie for second prize between the teams of Arthur B. Thorn, unattached, and Sam Rice, Indian Spring; Walter (Red) Cunningham, Burning Tree, and John Downey, unattached, and Eddie Stevens, Manor, and Martin F. McCarthy, Beaver Dam.

Thorn and Rice had 34—36—70; Cunningham and Downey, a brace of 35's, and Stevens and McCarthy, 35—35. Playing the last hole with two other twosomes after sundown, Stevens and McCarthy needed a par 4 to tie for second place. After Stevens failed, McCarthy knocked his approach shot 12 feet from the pin and sank the putt for his par.

In the individual pro sweepstakes, Walter (Red) Cunningham, won first prize money with his sub par 35—35—70, and tied Pitt for low medal for the day. Shorey emerged second and Bob Barnett, third. Putting like a machine, Cunningham used up only 28 strokes on the green. A weird second shot cost Cunningham a 6 on the ninth hole, ruining his chances for shooting the first nine in 33. On the fourteenth the stocky Burning Tree pro holed out a chip shot for a birdie 3, one of his five birdies.

given a secret workout today for the first time this season. Coach Sam Willaman barred even the newspapermen as he continued lining up a team he hopes will defeat Michigan Saturday and thus prove that the Buckeye victories in the two opening games were indications of their strength. The Michigan game will be for both schools the first Big Ten test of the season.

Indiana Is Cheered.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 16 (AP).—News that Don Veller, injured quarter back, is expected to be able to play against Northwestern Saturday cheered the Indiana football camp today as the varsity engaged in a light workout and listened to criticism of faults shown in the Notre Dame game. Wendell Walkec, sophomore full back, injured at Minnesota, remains on the casualty list, however.

Win Posts on Varsity.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 16.—Coach Noble Kizer announced today that Ed Skormnski and George Dennis, sophomores, have earned regular places in the Purdue football line at center and guard, respectively. Other changes may be made, but Kizer intends to experiment this week before making definite decisions. A short drill was held today.

Michigan Kept Indoors.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 16.—Rain kept the Michigan squad indoors today, learning new running plays for use against Ohio State next Saturday and development of a defense against Buckeye formations illustrated by a yearling eleven. Instead of praise for their showing against Cornell Saturday the varsity heard a lecture on the prowess of Carl Cramer, who ran wild against Michigan two years ago. The Wolverines were informed that unless the Wolverine defense improves Cramer may repeat the performance.

St. Mary's Celtics will practice tonight at Second and G streets northeast, in prepaartion for Sunday's game with the Richmond Arrows. Manager "Buck" Grier requests all players to report. The Celtics recently defeated the Charlottesville Pros, 8-0.

INTERHIGH SCHOOL football warfare will be resumed this afternoon when Roosevelt and Tech troop into the Central Stadium trenches to throw footballs at one another. The kick-off will be at 3:30 o'clock.

Since Central and Eastern apparently made the 1933 championship race safe for Technocracy yesterday, Coach Elmer Hardell will try to impress the citizens with the efficacy of his lads by a crushing victory over the Rough Riders. The Manual Trainers will start the fray an ods-on choice to win.

Although Roosevelt again has another of its small squads with the usual amount of inexperience, Coach Lynn Woodworth hopes to surprise the opposition with a smart, well-drilled team. Charley Grimm, center, and "Huck" Cavanaugh, half back, are the outstanding players of the team.

Tech has one of the lightest but fastest teams since Hardell assumed command of its grid fortunes. Speed and deception are the keynote of its attack. In three games the Eckington crew disposed of Baltimore Poly, Handley High School and lost to Episcopal High School.

Pegler Sees

Great Future for Grid Pros if League Line-Up Is Made Permanent.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—After a long period of probation the business of professional football is beginning to develop customer-appeal in New York. If the magnates will now decide upon a definite and permanent league line-up their game will be established. This is the ninth season of the New York Giants and if it is a profitable one, as seems likely just now, it probably will be their first successful campaign from the standpoint of Mr. Mara, the promoter.

Since the panic set in and college graduates, athletic and otherwise, were compelled to scale down their notions of suitable employment for educated persons, the old prejudice against professional football has greatly diminished. In boom-time it seemed that a college football player ought to find something better to do upon his graduation from school and several of the fine old idealists of the coaching profession denounced the professional game as something very sinister.

Professional Himself.

Of course, even the finest idealist among the exceedingly right-minded character-builders would have to admit that he is a professional in sport himself. But their professionalism is different. They live an easy life amid scholarly surroundings and it is not very hard for a man of some years, dealing always with kids, to acquire the character of a sage. Very dumb or ordinary phrases become gems of philisophy and there is a tendency to regard these old boys, some of whom are not so old, either, as institutions.

They have a great advantage that few of the students are with them for more than four years. By the end of his third year the student begins to develop a very practical opinion of his surroundings, and by the end of the senior year he may see no great difference between the professionalism of the coach, or old man, and that of the professional football player. But by that time, out he goes.

True Few Years Ago.

It seems quite foolish now to recall that there ever could have been a time when any one seriously objected to the participation of varsity alumni in professional football on the ground that the professional game was unworthy of them. But that was true only a few years ago. It was thought to be much more desirable that the young graduate should apply his energy and education to the selling of bum bonds.

Nowadays there are just as many bum bonds to be sold, and some of them are bummer than bonds ever have been before in the history of swindling, but nobody seems to have any money or any desire to buy them. So the graduated varsity football player finds his professional football job quite an important help and nobody has the nerve any more to suggest that he should lay off for the sake of his alma mater.

Changes Too Rapid.

Up to this time the trouble with professional football has been that the leagues have changed shapes, size and membership too rapidly for the customer-interest to keep informed. Teams enter the leagues and drop out casually, and very often the customer is puzzled to learn that a game does not count in the league standings, but is only an exhibition contest.

Of course, the personnel changes constantly, too, and even the most enthusaistic customer could hardly keep up on the names of all the athletes on his favorite football club. But that seems to be an inherent condition in professional football, which the game, if it succeeds, will have to succeed in spite of.

So many new stars are graduated every year and fame is so brief in football that unless a man is a Benny Friedman, a Cagle or a Grange he is not likely to be missed by the public if his employer drops him in favor of a new graduate whose reputation is fresher.

Begin to Get Tips.

The college coaches were the first to recognize and publicly admit that professional football is far superior to the varsity kind even at its best. They took to visiting the Polo Grounds in New York on Sunday afternoons on backdrivers' holidays to watch the game played as they wished their immature young students could play it. Some of them brought their varsity players along to peer among the professionals and learn how. Coaches from other cities, finding themselves in New York or Chicago on Sunday afternoons following the college games, also dropped in to be entertained by a very high expression of the art.

In New York and Brooklyn there is only the narrowest interest in the football affairs of the local colleges and universities. This interest has been whipped up in some cases as the college people, who are not at all dumb, perceived that there was money in the football business. However, the popular interest in the schools is not very great compared to the potential interest which can be aroused by a couple of good, local professional teams playing known opponents on an intelligible schedule.

The football magnates have one great advantage in the fact that they did not have to buy real esate and build huge parks for their game. The baseball magnates did that for them long ago. Their game comes after the baseball season and so does not conflict. Most of their contests are played on Sundays when the park premises otherwise would be vacant and when the rent, therefore, is cheap.

"Big Ten" Coaches Speak on Elevens are going to give everything we have to win this Michigan game Saturday, and know it will take everything we have to win. It will be the hardest kind of a contest, and I'm reluctant to predict the outcome."

"Doc" Spears, Wisconsin—"We're not as hopeless as the newspaper stories would indicate. Our line was poor on offense but relatively good on defense. Zuppke's boys kept us in a hole with their punts. The yardage gained by both teams was about the same."

Dick Hanley, Northwestern—"We didn't look so good against Iowa, but we sure improved Saturday to hold Stanford. What a race this is, Professor! There are anyway six teams in the Big Ten today which could have won the title in a romp five years ago. Upsets? Say, they are just starting. This race won't be decided till the last day. Every team is getting better daily."

Bernie Bierman, Minnesota—"We should have taken Purdue, but the fact we didn't was proof we still have to find a scoring punch. Getting close doesn't count. Alfonse played the best game at right half for us that any one has shown me yet."

Noble Kizer, Purdue—"Guess we were lucky to escape with a tie at Minnesota. The Gophers displayed one of the most powerful attacks we have met in four years. We had our backs to the wall most of the time and our line saved us. We had only one chance to score and capitalized on that. We've got to get more scoring power or expect another dog fight at Chicago Saturday."

E. C. Hayes, Indiana — "Notre Dame had too much reserve power, and we had to sacrifice offense for defense by inserting Jones as full back. I'm well pleased with my sophomores."

Clark Shaughnessy, Chicago — "Sure we have piled up 72 points in two games, but we haven't played a Big Ten team. Will some one tell us how to keep that Purdue score down Saturday?"

Eagles Buy Zyntell.

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League tonight purchased the contract of Jim Zyntell, former Holy Cross guard. He reported to his "eagle."

American U. Idle Next Week-End

Lowder and Hinckley to Be Out Several Days.

With two weeks in which to prepare for the game with St. John's College of Annapolis, Coach Walter H. Young granted the American University squad a day off yesterday. The players needed it after their gruelling struggle with Bridgewater, which resulted in American's second defeat of the season.

Ed Lowder, freshman full back, and Phil Hinckley, half back, were injured Saturday and will be on the shelf for several days. Although the rest of the men were bruised and weary after the game, these were the only two serious injuries.

The game with St. John's will be the Eagles' homecoming contest. After that the team has only one game at home, that with Gallaudet. The finale will be with Randolph-Macon on foreign soil, November 11.

Junior High Schedule For Soccer Announced

November 6 has been set as the date for the opening of the Washington Junior High School soccer championship series. All games will be played on Monument Grounds at Constitution avenue and Sixteenth street.

J. J. Lowery, director of physical education at Stuart Junior High School, has been named secretary of the Junior High School Physical Education Club which arranged the soccer series.

The schedule:

Watch Venable, Of 'Noogans, C. U. Told

Coach Bergman's Scout Has High Respect for Stocky Half Back.

WORD was passed around among Catholic University's players yesterday that the chap to watch Friday night against Chattanooga is Bill Venable, the same short, stocky half back who almost ran away with the show and the ball game last year when the Southerners fell before the Brooklanders.

Forrest Cotton, assistant coach, who scouted the foe, highly respects Venable's ability to get around in football circles. Greased lightning, and a triple-threat man in the bargain, Venable was the spearhead in the attack that resulted in Oglethorpe's upset last week.

Cotton was impressed with Chattanooga's brilliant overhead game, which had the opposition running around in circles. Howard Smith did the passing, with Beurah McCall hauling in the pigskin throughout the greater part of the fray. Passing paved the way for the touchdown that sent Oglethorpe to defeat.

Is Improved Team.

Chattanooga has improved at least 50 per cent over last season, when it offered C. U. bitter opposition. Fine team spirit, confidence in its ability, backed up with a hard-running attack, will, in Cotton's opinion, make the evening thoroughly disagreeable for the Cardinals.

With the game moved up a day, "Dutch" Bergman is leaving no stone unturned to have the local eleven at top form. A lengthy drill in fundamentals, followed by a brief scrimmage was the order yesterday, and more hard labor is scheduled for the rest of the week.

Tom Nally is on the side lines with an injured leg, the result of a mix-up in the St. John's game Saturday, but the remainder of the first team is in excellent condition.

Entry List Now Totals 61 for Post Tourney

Four additional entries for the match play with handicap tournament for The Washington Post Trophy were received yesterday by Mrs. W. F. Holtzman, of the tournament committee, bringing the list to 61.

The latest to sign up for the event scheduled at Columbia Country Club the week of October 23 are Mrs. C. H. Merrillat, Washington Golf and Country Club; Mrs. Herman Stabler and Mrs. Earl Amick, of Columbia, and Mrs. W. F. Summey, unattached.

With Friday noon set as the deadline for entering, the tournament committee of the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association expects more than 100 to compete for the 18-hole medal play (with handicap) qualifying round next Monday. Mrs. Holtzman is accepting entries for the event at her home at the Broadmoor, Cleveland 6871.

Passers in Drill For Bridgeport

End Practice Tonight for Game Tomorrow.

The visitors boast one of the strongest pro organizations outside of the National League. Fred Loeser, All-American at Yale, plays center for the team. Other outstanding linemen are Ed Kosky, who played at Notre Dame last season; Don Armstrong, of Dartmouth, and "Dutch" Rueter, of Lafayette.

Bridgeport held Chris Cagle's Brooklyn Dodgers to a scoreless tie earlier in the season; also drew with the Orange Tornadoes, a team that later was tied by the Passers.

Equipped with new plays and Johnny Fenlon and Jimmy Bankhead again teamed in their forward-passing act, the local aggregation hopes to atone for its crushing defeat by the Chicago Bears.

Dave Legum Captures Jewish Tennis Trophy

Dave Legum defeated Lou Chatlen, seeded No. 1, in the finals A. Z. A. sponsored of the District Jewish Junior Tennis Championship tournament by a score of 6—4, 8—6. Legum went through the entire tournament without the loss of a set.

Legum's ability to pick up the low ones and a good backhand stood him in good stead throughout the play with Chatlen. The winner was presented with the Shah Trophy.

Va. U. Gets Holiday For Game With Navy

University, Va., Oct. 16 (Spl.).—Almost the entire University of Virginia student body will see the Cavaliers play Navy in Annapolis next Saturday afternoon in the first gridiron meeting of the two teams since 1909.

Each fall one Saturday is set aside as an athletic holiday. After talking it over with student leaders President John Loyd Newcomb has announced that all classes will be suspended for Saturday.

THE mixed doubles team of Margaret (Leaman) Lynn and and Paul Harrison again defeated the team of Katharine Forteney and Ollie Pacini in the second block of their match, held at the Arcadia bowling alleys last night, adding a total of 55 pins to a lead of 67 gained in their opening match at the temple. Harrison's 589 set took high honors, being followed by Pacini's 586. Scores last night are as follows:

In the Federal Men's League at Arcadia, Jerry Dwyer, Postoffice, captured high individual game with 154. High individual set honors went to Lee, of the G. P. O., who rolled 372. Patent Office's 589 and Commerce's 1,724 were high for team game and set.

North Carolina Avenue No. 1 romped away with all honors in the Methodist Protestant Church League games rolled on the Arcadia alleys last night. Hayghe's 149 and 369 annexed individual honors.

In the Petroleum League's games at Columbia, Chapman defeated the Lucky team 2 out of 3; Shell captured the odd game from American and Standard No. 1 took two from Standard No. 2. Freeburg's 134 game was high for the night while Maley's set of 365 topped all others.

What is believed to have been the first ladies bowling league in the District of Columbia was organized at the Old Ingram Memorial Church, Tenth and Massachusetts avenue northwest, over 20 years ago. Some of the girls who bowled in this league, which was known as the Ingram Memorial Church League, are still pounding the maples. Guess who.

Chevy Chase Title Still Undecided

Mrs. Wrong, Miss Claytor Tied After Play-Off.

The Chevy Chase women's golf championship still continues to defy all attempts to determine a winner.

After tying for the title in the annual tournament, Mrs. Hume Wrong and Miss Louise Claytor yesterday engaged in a play-off. At the end of the 18-hole match they again found themselves deadlocked.

Today they will attempt for the third time, to settle the issue. Both previous efforts have resulted in identical scores by the two golfers.

In the tournament proper, they each had cards of 93—89—82 for the 36-hole match. Yesterday they had identical scores of 97 for the 18-hole playoff.

Leading by two shots going to the eighteenth, Miss Claytor had to sink a 4-foot putt for a 7 to stave off defeat after Mrs. Wrong scored a 5.

Injuries Blow To Chances Of G. U.

Callahan and Saur Will Not Play Saturday Against Western Maryland.

BLUE Monday was reflected in the bruised anatomy of Georgetown's squad yesterday and Coach Jack Hagerty granted his men an additional day's respite from their gridiron duties. Today preparations will get under way for Saturday's engagement with Western Maryland at Baltimore.

Hoya hopes for victory were dulled by shoulder injuries to Capt. Fred Callahan, center, and Paul Saur, tackle. Callahan will be out for 10 days and Saur at least two weeks. Finding capable reserves for their positions promises to be a perplexing problem.

Hagerty is well pleased with the team's performance against Manhattan last week. It was his stirring talk between halves that gave Georgetown a new lease on life and enabled it to come from behind and gain a 20-20 tie. The Jaspers were outplayed all the way through the second half.

Fumble Ended Drive.

With only three minutes of the game remaining, Georgetown inaugurated a drive on its own 35-yard line that penetrated to Manhattan's 8-yard mark, where Parcell's fumble halted the parade. Bill Carpenter's punting came in for praise from Hagerty. Some of his boots traveled 50 yards, and one 65 yards.

From all indications Saturday's battle will be all that the name implies. Although not as strong as last year, the Green Terrors still boast a formidable machine and will be ready for the Hilltoppers. On a basis of comparative scores, Georgetown is two touchdowns better than its opponent, as Western Maryland defeated Mount St. Marys 12-6, while the Hoyas turned the trick by an 18-0 count.

But comparative scores mean nothing to the G. U. coaches and the usual amount of intensive practice is scheduled.

Mrs. Hedrick Victor In Wives' Golf Final

Mrs. L. H. Hedrick, the medalist, defeated Mrs. John Rogers, 5 and 4, yesterday to win the golf tournament for wives of officers of the Army War College Club at the Army War College course.

Mrs. John Conklin conquered Mrs. F. L. Purdon, 5 and 3, in the second flight finals. Mrs. N. Brinson won from Mrs. O. H. Saunders, 7 and 5, in the third flight, while Mrs. F. Sibert beat Mrs. H. E. Taylor, 5 and 4, in the fourth flight.

Title Golf Lead To Richmond Woman

Mrs. Jones Shoots an 85; Mrs. Haynes Is Tied for Second.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—With the aid of a steady but none too kindly putter, Mrs. Jean Jones, of Richmond, former Virginia State golf champion, today shot a consistent round of 85 to capture the medal in the qualifying round of the Mid-Atlantic Women's Golf championship tournament over James River course of the Country Club of Virginia.

Close behind Mrs. Jones with a pair of 87s were two former Mid-Atlantic champions—Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, defending champion, from Washington, and Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, Baltimore, three times owner of the title.

89 for Mrs. Scott.

Mrs. Buford Scott, Richmond, returned to competitive golf after a year's absence and shot an 89 for fourth place, one stroke ahead of Mrs. C. B. Walden and Mrs. C. C. Vaughan, both Richmonders. Miss Lily Harper, the 17-year-old 103-pound star from Portsmouth, started off with an eagle 3, but her putter failed her as she 3-putted green after green to come in with a 91.

Mrs. H. C. Kersten, one of the pretournament favorites, found trouble on both sides and her pair of 46s gave her a 92 and a tie for eighth qualifying place with Mrs. W. R. Graham. Mrs. Thomas Priddy, Richmond city champion, was out in 46 and back in 49 for the next place with a 95.

Mrs. Sutton Has 99.

Mrs. John Ryland and Mrs. J. G. Spitz were bracketed with 97s next in line, while Miss Martha Martin and Mrs. Carl Boschen had 98s, Mrs. R. N. Sutton, Washington, a 99, and Miss Lucy Pinder won the play-off from Mrs. Douglas Tschiffelly, of Washington, for the last place for which they were tied at 101.

Mrs. Jones meets Miss Pinder in the first round match at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. Miss Harper and Mrs. Priddy meet in what promises to be one of the feature matches, Mrs. Haynes will play Mrs. Boschen and Mrs. Morrow will meet Mrs. Sutton. Mrs. Walden and Mrs. Spitz are paired for the opening round. Mrs. Jetsten meets Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Scott meets Miss Martin.

more, Nat Machlowitz, in at full back to replace the injured captain, Harry Temple. Two other newcomers, Allan Walz, tackle, and Irwin Klein, end, may get into the line-up against the Red Raiders.

Colgate Uses Brooke.

Cornell Regulars Rested.

Ithaca, N. Y.—Despite the battering by Michigan's great line, Cornell's varsity reported in good shape as preparations for the Syracuse game began. The regulars were excused from heavy work, but the second and third strings held scrimmage.

Hedges, Dartmouth, Out.

Hanover, N. H.—Dartmouth began work for Penn with Full Back Dave Hedges out of the line-up with rib injuries and a twisted knee, suffered in the Bates game. Jackson Cannell rested his regulars most of the afternoon, but the substitutes scrimmaged against the scrubs, who scored a touchdown against them.

Harvard Eased Along.

Cambridge, Mass.—In the absence of Head Coach Eddie Casey, in New York attending a Harvard Club dinner, the Crimson regulars were not forced to work hard during today's practice session that was supervised by Nils Nelson, the back-field instructor.

Chase Me, at $16.80 Mutuel, With Sullivan Up Wins Laurel Feature Handily

Mile Contest Sees Choice Defeated

Cutie Face Outsprints Fillies as Glorify Runs Wide.

THEY laughed when he came out to run. That was at Havre de Grace last month. The 4-year-old first-time starter was named Chase Me. "What a name," giggled the fair ones in the stands. "Look at that chinstrap," remarked the veteran horse players, referring to the martingale, a leather contraption to keep the horse from throwing his head back.

There was much eyebrow raising that day when Chase Me's odds dropped from a mountainous 30 to 1 to an anthill 4 to 1. So Chase Me ran. And he was chased. However, the chasing was done at distances ranging from some five lengths at the start to a sixteenth of a mile at the finish.

Yesterday Chase Me went to the races for the second time. He was opposed by former Derby candidates and whatnot among the upper crust of horsedom hereabouts.

The race was the Tolchester, the feature test at Laurel.

And the field was chasing Chase Me at the finish. The No. 1 chaser was Bold Lover, a stake winner. The No. 2 chaser was Cathop, Western sprint star. Among the other chasers were Snap Back, Band Wagon and Keep Out. And the backers of the winner chased down under the stands for a $16.80 mutuel.

Two-Length Victory.

Cathop, Bold Lover and Band Wagon did the principal early running in the mile race. Chase Me was chasing at this time. With the turn for the stretch reached, Jimmy Sullivan, the Washington boy, let out several notches on Chase Me and the fun began. Chase Me tickets, only cardboard a moment before, were now being clutched tightly. And rightly so, for Chase Me soon bounded to the front to get home by two lengths.

They laughed when he came out to run.

The E. R. Bradley combination of Jockey Don Meade and Best by Test, a son of Black Tony, scored a lucky win in the opener. Omayya, which broke on top of the field, appeared to have a winning lead swinging for the stretch, but went to the outside fence at the turn. Meade hugged the rail and beat Omayya to the finish line. Doeskin took third money from a well-beaten lot.

Tut Tut graduated from the maiden ranks by defeating Bookie B in the second race. Bookie B was bet on up and down the East Coast and along the Ganges River and closed at even money. However, Tut Tut picked up the favorite in the stretch and went on to win. It was reported after the race that Bookie B bled. It was mutual, for he left most of his backers well slashed. Trundle paid a $20.20 mutuel for third.

Blackcock ran and jumped his way to victory in the third race, the day's steeplechase. A. Scott rode a heady race on the winner. Blackcock jumped steadily and Scott held him off the pace set by Sid and Depart, passed them on the last turn and won by four lengths. Depart was second and Jack Anthony third. The race was marked by no mishaps and a good time was had by all.

Off Duty Is Beaten.

The fourth sprint resulted in a victory for Tullihoo, which escaped much of the rough going that marked the race to get home ahead of the favored Off Duty. Chinese Custom hustled into the third money. Race Street, the early pace setter, stumbled home fourth in the field of eleven.

A game horse and a tough rider—Cutie Face and Jockey Renick—teamed to win the fifth race, a sprint of 6 furlongs dubbed "the Anne Arundel," and the day's secondary feature. At that, Glorify, a long shot, might have won had she not "suffered from the bends" at the stretch turn running to the outside fence. She had a wide lead. but Cutie Face cut the corner to gallop to the pay-off line.

Eagle by Burkenshaw.

Neil Burkenshaw, former Assistant Attorney General, assured the success of his golf season yesterday when he holed out in two shots on the 375-yard sixth hole at the Congressional Club. Burkenshaw sank a 125-yard mashie niblick shot for his "Eagle."

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The United States makes a lot of money in its mints, but it makes a lot more—nearly 40 times as much—in its Bureau of Engraving and Printing. In the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury for the fiscal year of 1932 it is stated that the face value of the United States currency (including National bank currency and Federal Reserve notes) printed at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for that year amounted to $4,279,507,440.

In the same report it is also stated that the total face value of domestic coins executed at the mints of the United States for the same period was $111,999,580. The mints, then, made about one fortieth of the total amount during the year—less than 3 per cent.

Little Reb, a race house campaigning in the 1870's, established a record with four firsts in 24 hours, with one win late one afternoon, and three the following day. The last race was run less than 24 hours after the afternoon race of the day before.

One of the most valuable sources of information on ocean currents is that obtained by throwing bottles overboard in one part of the ocean and finding them after the currents have carried them to some distant land. Every year thousands of such bottles are cast in the water, each containing information as to the date and point at which they were started.

Garibaldi Mixes With Zaharias

Rubber Match Scheduled Here Thursday.

Two of the most elastic of the big, bad woofers, George Zaharias and Gino Garibaldi, will meet in a rubber wrestling match on the regular Thursday night card at the Auditorium this week. The boys have staged two previous encounters here, which proved to be regular "ten, twenty, thir-" meller-drammers—with gestures.

The first match was a very hectic affair from the start to the finish, which came when Zaharias bunted a foul with two strikes on him. Growl No. 2 was an even more hectic affair, with Garibaldi taking top honors. Zaharias recently surprised even himself by punting out a win over the "Crown Prince of Rassling," Ray Steele, with his special, double-action knee plop.

Herman Hickman, former Tennessee gridironer, will make his first local appearance against Paul Boesch in the semifinal. The 30-minute time limit bouts will find Cliff Olsen trying to crash the big time against Dick Shikat, Jacques Humberto against Casey Berger and Vanka Zelesniak toying with George Hill.

Hecht Co. Swimmers Will Compete Friday

The Hecht Co. will hold an interdepartmental swim meet at the Ambassador Pool Friday night at 8:30. The meet will be similar to the swim held last year by the same organization, competition being between two teams.

Last year's meet resulted in a tie between the two teams, which was brought about by a dead heat in the final event.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al, Laurel Race Track, Oct. 17.

Did you know that Equipoise is being unwound? Yes, the American champion, after being trained to a high pitch for his races this season, is being eased up now. Horsemen have learned not to send a keyed-up horse to the stud. Equipoise is being sprinted and then jogged. Soon he will only jog and then, at the end of the season, "Ekky" will be sent away from the tracks. And each day lessens the chance of a Winooka-Equipoise race. Rufe Naylor, manager of the Australian horse, passed up the race at a mile although Mitchael Polson, trainer of Winooka, wanted to send the star to the post at that distance. Friday Winooka runs here against a small field at 6 furlongs. Gold Step will be one of the starters. BILL.

First Race—Be Shy has been facing tougher fields and his last gave indication that a winning effort is not far away. Worked well for this test. Sun Monk is short on early foot but will be running in the stretch. Looks second best. Some Good for the show.

Second Race—Blimp defeated Mountain Elk the last time they met and I'm taking them in the same order despite a shift in weights that favors the latter. Both are in top shape. General Lejeune won the last time he sprinted and may be the sleeper among these.

Third Race—Lone Hand has shown me that he is a fit one and I'm going right back. Should be a price among such as these. Kindacorn, the improved plater, must be beaten. Resisting has disappointed here but could take the show end.

Fourth Race—Bazaar figures to take care of opposition offered by this field. The Bradley representative has been well placed. Time Off may get his track and make it tough for the rest. Jabot to show.

Fifth Race—Wise Daughter appears to be much the best among these. Has shown good form in both Maryland races, although beaten. Flabbergast is my long-shot with a chance. Hindu Queen for the rest.

Sixth Race—Reservis steps up a bit among these and gets my call. Sharp as a tack, the clockers say. War Plane for the place. Uncle Donald may get his mud and give them all a battle.

Seventh Race—Tazewell seems fitted in a field of this caliber. Has only to run his race to get home in front. Spanish and Kingbird for the other awards.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BEST BY TEST, $5.80, $3.60, $2.80; OMAYYA, $4.80, $4.00; DOESKIN, $5.40.

BEST BY TEST, in closest attendance of the early pacemaker, took command when OMAYYA bolted out at the stretch, and was kept under strong pressure until the end. OMAYYA had keen speed when sent into command, but bolted out at the stretch turn. She, however, continued with excellent courage under punishment. DOESKIN went well placed and held the others safe. SARILLA improved her position gradually, but could not threaten the leaders. WILD MUSIC went evenly. DAWNCHILD suffered early interference. HERO OLGA was bothered soon after the start. MAY McDONOUGH was shuffled back early. The others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, foaled in Maryland. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:00. Off at 2:06. Winner, M. J. Cromwell's ch. c. (3), by Canter—Nettle. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:17, 1:44, 1:50 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TUT TUT, $12.40, $4.20, $4.00; BOKIE B., $2.60, $2.40; TRUNDLE, $20.20.

TUT TUT, hurried to the front and rated until challenged, responded determinedly when displaced and, coming again, was up in the final sixteenth. BOKIE B., under steadying restraint early, took command when ready, but flattened out badly when she bled inside the final furlong. TRUNDLE, prominent for six furlongs, weakened when put to a drive. SISTER MADGE dwelt when the start came, raced as if sore and was never able to menace the leaders. ROLLICK and CELSUS had no excuses.

THIRD RACE—About two miles. Steeplechase. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:31½. Winner, T. Hitchcock's blk. g. (4), by Despote—Siskin. Trained by P. Green. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 3:58 2-5 (14 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACKCOCK, $5.00, $3.00, $2.60; DEPART (J. P. Jones entry), $5.80, $3.60; JACK ANTHONY, $2.80.

BLACKCOCK, kept in the thick of contention, wore DEPART down after taking the twelfth fence and came out smartly in the last half mile. DEPART took command at the ninth fence when SID became unmanageable, raced under slight restraint until challenged and held on well. JACK ANTHONY finished gamely when placed to punishment, but could not menace the first two. He pulled up lame. GEORGE JESSEL, reserved strongly for the first mile, entered a forward position when ready, but landed badly at the next to last fence and lost all chance. DOCK LIGHT was held safe. SID was very rank all the way. He ran out badly after the eighth fence and again after the twelfth. TRIESTE landed poorly at the fourth jump. ALCHEMIST was done early.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:04½. Winner, Miss M. Hirsch's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TULLIHOO, $9.60, $4.60, $4.00; OFF DUTY, $3.00, $2.40; CHINESE CUSTOM, $4.00.

TULLIHOO, rated in near pursuit of RACE STREET, took command at the stretch turn and, kept under mild urging, held OFF DUTY safe. Latter, kept close to the leaders, swung to the outside and closed with good courage. CHINESE CUSTOM worked his way up on the outside and outfinished RACE STREET during the final furlong. RACE STREET had high early speed, but tired after five furlongs. IDLE ALONG saved ground all the way and had no mishaps. BLONDINO was forced wide from the start. LUCULENT tired.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; allowances. The Anne Arundel. For fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:30. Off at 3:34½. Winner, R. J. Tubbs' b. f. (3), by Chilhowee—No Regrets. Trained by J. V. Stewart. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CUTIE FACE, $7.40, $4.20, $3.80; GLORIFY, $9.00, $6.00; SWIVEL, $7.00.

CUTIE FACE, taken under slight restraint early and going in her best form, assumed command when GLORIFY bore out entering the home stretch and came away nearing the finish. GLORIFY went into an easy lead, showed good speed, but bore out badly at the stretch turn. SWIVEL finished resolutely from a slow beginning. FLYING HOUR was done after three furlongs. CORRYMEELA had no excuses.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Tolchester. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:00. Off at 4:08½. Winner, Mrs. J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHASE ME, $16.80, $6.00, $4.00; BOLD LOVER, $3.40, $2.60; CATHOP, $3.40.

CHASE ME, not hurried in the early stages, moved up steadily on the outside in the last five furlongs, closed fast when reaching the home stretch and, shaking off the leaders, drew out under urging. BOLD LOVER, made entirely too much use of chasing CATHOP, weakened badly after disposing of the pacemaker. CATHOP, urged stoutly when put to a drive, continued with good energy. SNAP BACK was never able to threaten the leaders. KEEP OUT was always a trailer.

SEVENTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:38. Winner, Tranquility Farm's dk. b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS PURRAY, $12.60, $6.40, $3.80; PRETTY WISE, $7.20, $3.40; VESTED POWER, $2.60.

MISS PURRAY, strongly handled from the start and a keen factor early, responded strongly to punishment and was up in the last few strides. PRETTY WISE, taken into a brief lead and saving ground, held on with rare courage when vigorously urged during the last three furlongs. VESTED POWER drove into contention between his field, came to the outside for the final drive and held on gamely. ACCOLADE, forced to race on the outside while close up, weakened slightly in the closing furlong. Ilchester could not better his position in the late stages. LOUGH PORT faltered.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:05. Off at 5:06. Winner, G. W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCE TOKALON, $7.40, $4.80, $3.40; UNENCUMBERED, $7.40, $5.40; MARCASITE, $5.20.

PRINCE TOKALON, steadied off the early pace, entered contention with a rush approaching the home stretch, slipped through on the inside and was up in the last fifty yards. UNENCUMBERED raced RENEWED into submission after six furlongs, secured a brief lead and fought it out willingly. MARCASITE finished with good speed. EVEN UP, messed about in the early stages, was badly blocked when sent up on the inside at the far turn, was finally taken wide for racing room at the stretch turn and closed stoutly. He showed a winning effort. PLAYPOLE went well placed and had no excuses. RENEWED tired. AXENTEA was unable to menace the leaders.

Burl to Battle Pete Sarron Tonight

Both Men in Good Shape, to Decide Which Will Meet Miller.

PETE SARRON and Eddie Burl will be battling for a chance to storm the citadel of the boxing elite in their 10-round bout which opens the season at Portner's Arena tonight. The winner will fight N. B. A. featherweight champion Freddy Miller, who has been definitely signed to appear at Portner's November 1 and, if he survives, possibly Pete Sanstol at a later date.

With so much at stake, the bout, in the opinion of most close followers of the nose-punching industry, promises to be even more furiously contested than the principals' three previous encounters which resulted in a win for each and one draw.

Both in Good Condition.

Both boxers are in tip top condition, which was not the case in the two bouts they fought here last summer. The first of these local appearances found Sarron overconfident because of a previous easy win, not in the best of shape and Burl, surprisingly enough, "in the pink." Burl took the decision. For the second fight here, neither boxer was in very good shape, and the bout was a draw.

Burl's boring in style has always proved very puzzling to the unorthodox Sarron, who usually bewilders his opponents with a fancy assortment of gyrations and baffling delivery of punches from all angles. In the past, Burl has disregarded all this and kept plodding in, much to the embarressment of the Birmingham windmill.

Sarron Is Heavier.

Perhaps the greatest asset in Sarron's favor lies in a weight advantage which may be as much as 5 pounds. The limit set for this bout is 128 pounds—2 pounds over the featherweight top poundage. At present Burl weighs 123 pounds and Sarron is believed close to the maximum. The inevitable day's rest which precedes the fight may add a few pounds to Burl's weight—and it also may increase Sarron's.

Roddy Davis, who discarded his swaddling clothes against Maxie Koshover at Fort Washington last summer, will encounter the second tough opponent of his career in an eight-round semifinal against Mickey Genaro. Davis, a flashy boxer who lacks real ring experience, is generally conceded a very slim chance of outsmarting the cool, crafty veteran who has fought the best.

Body Trained By Basket Ball At Y. M. C. A.

Facilities Now Available in The Post's "Keep Healthy Week."

Basket ball, among the most popular team games in America, is one of the foremost activities offered during "Keep Healthy" week, sponsored by The Post and the Central Y. M. C. A. The "Y's" facilities are made available to Washington men during this week free of charge.

During the last fall, winter and spring months more basket ball teams were organized in cities, towns and hamlets than in any other sport, the Y. M. C. A. reports.

The game was invented by Dr. James A. Naismith in 1891 at the Springfield, Mass., Y. M. C. A. The first contest was played with two peach baskets nailed opposite each other 10 feet from the floor of the Springfield gymnasium. The game was played with a soccer ball.

Basket ball today requires considerable training of the body to be in proper condition to meet its demands. It requires great speed and calls for a maximum usage of the large muscle groups, heart and lungs. It is one of the best games for the development of agility, accuracy, alertness, speed, skill, reflex judgment, self-control, self-sacrifice and good sportsmanship.

While the sport usually is considered as a match between two teams intent on winning, the "Y" points out that it offers all advantages of real exercise, coupled with fun and relaxation. In playing the game every player is constantly handling the ball. Correct passing and shooting not only sharpen eyes, but bring about better coordination between mind and body. Shooting, dribbling, guarding, passing, blocking and all other phases of the game are helpful in achieving quick thinking and better coordination between mind and body.

During the past basket ball season the Central "Y" program in basket ball consisted of 39 senior teams and 21 junior, the 60 teams comprising more than 600 players divided into 12 different leagues.

Radio Waves and Ripples

PLAYING rights for most of the songs "Tin Pan Alley" composes are held by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

To do battle against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers the radiocasters are planning to raise a war fund.

Battle cause—the way the society charges radio men for microphoning popular songs.

Method of raising war funds proposed by the National Association of Broadcasters meeting at White Sulphur last week—every broadcaster pay 10 per cent of the yearly cost of radioing A. S. C. A. P. songs.

Yearly cost of song radioing—$250 to $5,000 per year (estimated), depending upon station revenue, and 4 per cent of gross receipts.

Battle fronts—suit to dissolve A. S. C. A. P. on monopoly grounds, investigations by Department of Justice and Federal Trade Commission.

Allied with the broadcasters in the fight against A. S. C. A. P. are hotel, restaurant and barber shop owners who also pay A. S. C. A. P. to play popular songs by orchestra, phonograph, radio.

Whitecaps.

WJSV—Elmer Everett Yess, play serial, 8 p. m.; Kate Smith, 8:45 p. m.; Nino Martini, 9:45 p. m. WRC—Blackstone Plantation, 8 p. m.; Ben Bernie, 9 p. m.; Meyer Davis Orchestra, 11:30 p. m. WMAL—Tech-Roosevelt High School football, 3:15 p. m.; Smith Brothers, 8:45 p. m.; Beethoven, biographical, play and music, 9:30 p. m. WOL—Dr. Carl Van Doren, books, 2:30 p. m.; Night on the Riviera, vocal and instrumental, 10:30 p. m.; Organ Fantasies, 11:15 p. m.; Joe Haymes Orchestra, 11:45 p. m.

When N. B. C. sent a hillbilly team away from an audition without a job recently, it went over to WOL.

So, it seems, do one or two concerns that are likely any day now to start paying for efforts of the hillbilly team listed at 7 p. m. on your Friday programs as the Hometowners. Originators of the Hometowners idea are George Emmons and Vincent Lane, Washington.

Not just to sit for her picture on Phil Baker's accordion was Midget Stella Royle, brought from the World's Fair by National. She was a guest star in a Baker radio show.

WOL football broadcasters believe they have found a way to make letter perfect their accounts of the George Washington games. They are going to ask the G. W. management to put the microphone bench where they can see both goals without climbing around one of the Griffith Stadium posts.

The Catholic University game at 8:15 Friday night, as well as George Washington's playing of Auburn Saturday afternoon at 2:15 are due for WOL radioing.

WRC Beauty Talker Natalie Osterman ran out of words five minutes before the end of her broadcast yesterday.

It was a very important page, so McGrath shut off record, Natalie read.

Arthur Godfrey's WMAL Breakfast Club memberships have reached the 10,000 mark, according to Godfrey. There'll be 25,000 by Christmas, according to Godfrey.

What happened to the Arcade Sunshine show (WMAL Mondays) is that the contract expired. The minds are hunting new talent.

In case it should be needed, Rudolf Schramm is writing a theme song for WRC's "Doors," radioplay.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Commander James E. VanZandt is coming to a WJSV microphone Tuesday, October 31 to tell what his organization means to do for the soldiers.

Dr. Hans Kohn, lecturer on political science at the Workmen's Seminary in Jerusalem, is Columbia's National Student Federation speaker Thursday afternoon, 3:30 . . . and Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy Helvering is the American Legion speaker at 4:35 the same afternoon . . . Booth Tarkington is writing a sketch for radioing with the Col. Theodore Roosevelt address through Columbia Sunday night . . . it is said to deal with a group of boys who want to make up their minds whether to become assets to the community or liabilities.

D. A. R. Chapter Meets Tonight.

Fort McHenry Chapter, D. A. R., will meet this evening at Hotel Roosevelt. Plans will be completed for a reception at the Willard Hotel November 4. Mrs. D. W. Thayer is chairman of the reception committee.

"Cap" Stubbs — With an All-Star Bill — By Edwina

Walt Mason Himself

Moving Along.

If depression still carouses through the country, up and down, we are building seven houses in our little hayseed town. Seven citizens are blowing rubles they had kept on ice, quite resolved to make a showing, all regardless of the price. They had heard a pleasant rumor that the slump had seen the worst, and in optimistic humor many rubles they disbursed. First one genial, hopeful fellow said he'd build himself a shack, and he'd paint it green and yellow, with a dog-house at the back. Hardly had this building started than another fellow said, feeling gay and buoyant-hearted, he would also build a shed. He would build himself a dwelling that would rank among the best, with some roses by it smelling like Arabia the blest.

Then another voter hinted he would build a dwelling, too, and he'd have it nobly tinted in all shades of pink and blue. And a dozen more are planning to erect a barn or byre; "This depression we'll be canning," they remark, in words of fire. "This depression must be mastered, it too long has kept things jammed; he who dallies is a dastard, he who doubts is doubly damned." So our village is improving, setting an example fine; industry at last is moving, and the merchants are in line. Seven homes are being builded on the erstwhile weed-grown lea, they'll be painted, they'll be gilded, they will be a sight to see. Punktown sets a good example to the Nation and the town; she resolves to jump and trample on the slump that kept her down.

Prison Labor Fight Reaches Climax Jan. 8

Supreme Court to Decide Status of Products Made by Convicts.

The Supreme Court yesterday set January 8 for the beginning of arguments on the celebrated Alabama prison labor cases, which involve 20 States and the Federal Government in the long-disputed right of prison authorities to offer their manufactured products in competition with the products of free labor.

Nineteen States already have passed laws excluding Alabama's prison goods, or requiring they be labeled conspicuously to indicate their prison origin. The Alabama authorities are seeking to have these laws nullified, on the ground they constitute discrimination against the State and an infringement of sovereignty.

The Federal Government is involved because much of the Alabama goods move in interstate commence, which that Commonwealth contends can not be molested by the laws of other States.

First Test of Case.

The question has not been before the Supreme Court in precisely this form, although a number of decisions have dealt with the movement of prison goods over State lines.

The arguments will present a direct issue between the advocates and opponents of prison labor. Prison administrators generally favor the extension of penal labor, on the principle that steady occupation of inmates disposes of many problems of discipline. Organized labor, on the other hand, vigorously opposes the shipment of any prison products in competition with free labor.

Under the Hawes-Cooper bill, passed in 1932, all Federal prisoners are to be assigned to suitable occupations effective January 19, 1934. The Supreme Court's decision in the Alabama case may have a far-reaching effect upon this already advanced Federal program.

82,276 Convicts at Work.

The last national survey of prison production, by the Department of Labor, revealed some 82,276 inmates regularly engaged in State and Federal institutions in 1932. Their combined production was valued at approximately $75,000,000 annually, about one-fifth of it in new roads.

Secretary of Labor Perkins pledged her support several months ago to the national effort to curb "prison competition."

"I agree with labor representatives who hold that prison labor should be eliminated as far as possible from competitive industries," Secretary Perkins said.

The Labor Department's survey revealed that Alabama prisoners in 1932 were paid 15 cents per week. In addition, workers in the prison cotton wills were paid overtime for all hours above 10 per day. A contract shirt factory also paid a small bonus for all production over and above the daily fixed quota.

Man Sees Wife Killed by Truck

Mrs. Mary Peet Struck at Same Place Where Mate Was Injured.

As her husband watched from the front porch of their home, Mrs. Mary Peet, 51, was killed instantly last night, when she stepped from a bus into the path of a truck near T. B., Md.,

Mrs. Peet, employed in Washington, was returning to her home on the Southern Maryland pike. Each night at bus time, her husband, O. Lawrence Peet, a farmer, walked to the roadside to meet her.

Last night he was standing on the front porch when the bus stopped before the house. As Mr. Peet started across the lawn he saw his wife step from behind the bus into the truck's path.

Mrs. Peet failed to hear his shouts. Before he could reach her side the truck struck her. She was thrown several feet.

A passing motorist took the woman to Casualty Hospital. She was pronounced dead upon arrival.

The couple had no children. Less than four years ago Mr. Peet was knocked down by an automobile at the same spot. He suffered back injuries which kept him in bed several months.

Police said the truck was driven by William Vogel, of 301 Allison street northwest. He was questioned by Maryland authorities.

W. W. Anderson's Illness Is Critical

Noted Engineer's Doctors Hold Little Hope.

W. W. Anderson, 81, Washington civil engineer, who played an important part in draining and planning Potomac Park is critically ill at the Highlands, the aftermath of an apoplectic stroke suffered Friday.

Attending physicians hold little hope for recovery.

Mr. Anderson, born in Rockville, obtained his engineering degree at Johns Hopkins University. He was active in construction of Mississippi levees and later edited a newspaper in Elizabethtown, Ky. During Cleveland's administration he held the post of Indian Agent at Doule, S. Dak. Owner of ranches in Nebraska and South Dakota, Mr. Anderson divided his time between Washington and his Western properties.

Wife Moves to Meet Demand of Kidnapers

Chicago, Oct. 16 (AP).—Although police showed an attitude of skepticism, Mrs. Julia Hall tonight clung to the belief her husband, William Walton Hall, 31, law student and night club owner, was being held by kidnapers for $5,000 ransom.

Mrs. Hall, who 24 hours after her husband's disappearance, Friday, turned over to police four letters in which the ransom demand was made, expressed a desire to be permitted to negotiate for her husband's return without police interference.

States Plan Aid For Transients

National Service Set Up to Treat Wanderers "Like Humans."

Twenty-four States are actually engaged in solving the transient problem and 40 States will have begun intensive action by November 1, Morris Lewis, national director of transient relief, told the Monday Evening Club last night. Eight States have no program.

A national transient service will be established by January 1, he said. Under this plan it is quite probable camps similar to C. C. C. camps will be established. Men will be divided into camps according to age and capacity, Lewis said, where they will be treated like "human beings."

Plans in accord with the Federal program are being worked out for the District and will be put into effect soon, Arthur Rosichan, local director of transient relief, told the club.

Track in Texas Lures Farley With Officials

Jones, O'Connor Among Group Leaving to See Opening Races.

This business of opening up race tracks on Government time seems to be prospering.

When it was first announced that Postmaster General Jim Farley and Vice President John N. Garner were to open up Arlington Downs track in Texas to aid the Lone Star State's revival of hoss racing, nothing was said about anybody else going.

But it appears it's going to be a party. If it marks the inauguration of a return to rugged individualism in personal conduct among officialdom, it is a wow of an inauguration.

Somehow Mr. Farley's party pulled a "Topsy." It "jes growed." True, there is a postoffice or two to be dedicated on the way, but it is Texas, with a resurrected business of race tracks, that is the ultimate destination.

The Postmaster General was to leave last night ahead of his guests. They are Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; James A. Moffett, NRA oil administrator; Assistant Postmasters General Joseph C. O'Mahoney, William W. Howes and Silliman Evans; Harllee Branch, Mr. Farley's executive assistant; Jed C. Adams, member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals; J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of Currency; L. W. Roberts, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Eugene Vidall, director of aeronautics in the Commerce Department.

The guests were to leave early today by plane, and are to be joined at Atlanta by Farley.

Because dinner coats just aren't the thing for the great open spaces, the party didn't have to pack them in the luggage. This cheering information was given in the trip itinerary, one of the most comprehensive ever published by the Postoffice Department.

The itinerary spilled the beans. It's to be some party! For instance:

There will be breakfast in bed when the plane reaches Dallas. There will be valets to press clothes overnight. Traffic men will see that all baggage gets to hotel rooms ahead of the guests.

And, the itinerary added, no money will be needed in Texas.

"You will not be able to spend a dime in Texas," it declared.

The instructions even told how much clothing would be necessary. Two extra suits were said to be plenty.

Wednesday, a postoffice at Meridian, Miss., is to be dedicated. Moffett will speak on the President's oil program Thursday in Dallas. And somewhere on the program Arlington Downs is toh ave its race track opened with the blessings of official gentlemen.
